

were formally presented to Governor Hayes at Columbus, Ohio, by a special committee of five, of which W. T. Black was chairman. Governor Hayes accepted the nomination and honorary membership, thanked the committee, and said he would make formal acknowledgment in writing. It appears that on the 10th of July, 1876, he made the formal acknowledgment, through his private secretary, in a letter, the fac simile of which the World published, and further indicated that he would put them in the way of getting money to help carry the election.

This binds Mr. Hayes never to support a candidate, nor appoint to office, any foreign born citizen, and to labor to amend the naturalization laws so that only American born citizens can vote.

It will be seen by the reports of the recent elections, that the Democrats have carried the State of Ind. electing their whole State ticket, thus insuring in their favor the ultimate result of the Pres. election. Ind. has not been carried by the Dems. in a Presidential election for 20 years. Even at the State election of 1872, when Hendricks by reason of personal popularity was chosen Gov. by a maj. of 1100 the remainder of the State ticket was lost. Notwithstanding the withdrawal of the Greenback candidate for Gov. in the interest of the Republicans just before the late election, which was the last desperate movement, and intended to be a fatal blow to the Democracy, the State stands immovably pledged to Tilden, Hendricks and Reform and takes its place among the permanent reliable Democratic States.

The election in Ohio is most gratifying—whatever may be the result there it is to be shown by more complete returns. It has been a State of 20,000 more Republican majority for half a generation with rare exception where local causes operated or a light vote was polled. The majority is now substantially swept away, at a full, contested election, when Hercules efforts were put forth by the Republicans to hold it. Even if the Republicans have carried it by a lean majority, the moral effect of such a vote throughout the country will be damaging in the highest degree to Hayes and his party. The vote of Ohio is not needed for the election of Tilden, and has not been claimed by the Democracy, but such voting as this in his own State, must be regarded as most inoffensive if not disgraceful to the Republican Candidate.

On the 5th of July last chapter 931 of an organization known as the "American Alliance" met in Philadelphia and adopted a series of resolutions which said of the nomination of Messrs. Hayes and Wheeler that they were "broadly indorsed by the American Alliance conference," and that the alliance "earnestly advised all who are in favor of American principles, as advocated and set forth in these resolutions, to give these nominations an active and determined support."

"These resolutions" were sent to Mr. Hayes, who returned the following reply dated July 5, 1876, addressed to "Lemuel J. Tyler, secretary of the American Alliance": "I have just received your letter informing me of the nomination of Messrs. Hayes and Wheeler to the American Alliance. Return my thanks to the Alliance, as I deeply sympathize with its principles. I remain your fellow citizen, R. B. Hayes."

"This fact was published by the New York World and called forth from A. E. Lee, the private secretary of Mr. Hayes, the following letters, the first of which was addressed to the Secretary of the American Alliance. Columbus, O., September 13, 1876.—Dear Sir: It is not true that General Hayes has a knowledge of or that he has given any assurance of support to the American Alliance, or that he has given any assurance of support to the American Alliance, or that he has given any assurance of support to the American Alliance."

"The influence which has been exerted by Harper's Weekly, miscalled a 'Journal of Civilization,' has been a great one. The editor of this paper is a distinguished and honorable man which have appeared from time to time in that paper as simple disgraces. The pencil of Thomas Nast, a clever but unscrupulous artist, has spared no prominent person in political life, nor have the pens of the editors been more extravagant. This outrageous prostitution of pen and pencil to partisan uses reached its climax in the campaign of 1872, when the shameful pictures of Mr. Greeley called forth indignant remonstrances from the respectable papers of the country. If the Weekly did not assume so high a position in the newspaper world and pretend to be, as its name indicates a 'Journal of Civilization,' this reckless pictorial slander would not seem so inexcusable. Either the Harpers should cease the publication of abusive and unjust articles and the printing of scandalous caricatures or change the name of the paper to a 'Journal of Abuse and Promoter of the Degradation of Public Morality.' It is not necessary that an angry party should descend to low severity, either of pencil or of pen, in order to advance the interests of the political organization to which it belongs, and it is yet more out of place in a journal which pretends to belong to the high and pure class of literary publications. Mr. Nast has created to a great extent, a taste for this unhealthy kind of personal attacks and in that respect his undoubted assistance and a certificate of honorary membership."

A CORRESPONDENT inquires whether it is true that Governor Tilden stated to Mr. Daniel P. Jones, when asked to contribute to the Christian Commission during the war, that he would rather see all the soldiers starve to death than give them one cent. Of course it is wholly untrue, and no affidavit of Mr. Jones to that effect would be credited by any sensible citizen.
