How THE INDIANS CLIMB TREES,-In South America even the weakest women may not uncommonly be seen seen plucking the fruit at the tree tops. If the bark is as smooth and slippery that they cannot go up by climbing they use other means. They make a hoop of wild vines, and putting their feet inside they use it as a support in climbing. The negro of the west coast of Africa mat a larger hoop around the tree, and gets inside it, and jerks it up the tree with his bunds, a little at a time, drawing his legs up after it. The Tahitian boys tie their fert together, tour or five inches apart, with a piece of palm bark, and with the aid of this fetter go up the cocoa palms to gather thuta. The native women of Australia climit the gum trees after opossums; where the bark is rough they chop holes with a hatchet, then one throws about the tree a rope twice as long as will go around it, puts her batchet on her cropped head, and, placing ber feet against the tree and grasping the rops with her hands, she hitches it up by jerks, set pulls herself up the enormous trank sim as tast as a mah will climb a ladder .- Appic-
