Facts for the Public. The National Bee-Keepers Convention, in session at New York, Oct. 16 to 19th, 1877, aware of the general lack of information concerning improved methods of apiculture and its products, respectfully submit the following statement of facts for general information...

1. It is now only a few years since the invention of movable comb hives has opened up a new era in bee-keeping, and placed it on the basis of a successful business pursuit. Such hives, adapted to climate, furnish every facility for intelligent management of bees by regulating swarming, guarding against moths, and manipulating both bees and combs.

2. The inventors of the extractor or honey slinger, a machine which empties the honey from the combs by centrifugal force, without injury, so that the combs may be returned to the bees, marks another great step in apiculture. Thus virgin honey, free from foreign admixture is obtained, having the flavor of the flower from which it is drawn.

3. The further invention of artificial comb foundation, made of pure wax, first successfully used to a large extent this season, completes the requisites for planning bee-keeping on the basis of a great industry in our country. Bee-keepers this season have had a foundation with readiness as receptacles both for honey and brood.

4. Simultaneous with the first and all of these improvements, the introduction of Italian bees and improved modes of rearing queens, of transporting and introducing them to colonies, has greatly improved the value of the honey gatherers, both because of the superiority of the Italian bee and the introduction of new blood. New blood prevents the danger from in-and-in breeding.

5. The great drawback to apiculture is the sting of the bee. Owing to the simple appliances used for the protection of the person and for subduing the bees. The most vicious colony may be subdued in a very few minutes.

6. To consumers of honey, a few facts are necessary in this article to preserve them from imposition. Since the introduction of their own and generally admitted, but the price many lovers of honey cannot afford. It makes a beautiful dish for the table but is no better than extracted honey. All comb is wax, and wax in the stomach is perfectly indigestible. Extracted honey is the pure liquid honey and it is taken from the combs by the honey slinger, free from any foreign admixture. It is entirely different from what is known in the market as strained honey. Consumers need to improve upon themselves by the false idea that pure honey will not granulate. They desire ungranulated honey and dealers will attempt to supply the demand. Almost all pure honey will granulate when exposed for some time to light and cold. The granulated state is a fine evidence of pure honey. Much of the raw honey heretofore sold in the markets, and recommended not to granulate, is a very inferior article, composed largely of glucose or some inferior substance. The granulation of honey can be reduced to its liquid state in a few moments by placing the jar in warm water. When thus liquified it so remains for some time before again crystallizing. Consumers may be sure of a good whole-some article by purchasing granulated honey and reducing it.

7. To producers. By full use of improvements in bee-keeping, the honey crop of America may be almost indefinitely increased and become a great source of national revenue. Some need fear over-production. The home demand and consumption is largely increased whenever people learn to know the superiority of such honey. Dealers in N. Y. have already commenced a large export trade, and they tell us that their only difficulty is in procuring honey in proper shape and quantity to supply the growing demand. Trade demands that they be put up in nice, attractive packages, and in small parcels or jars so as to be readily handled by grocers and consumers. Honey was for centuries the principal sweet food, and in one of the most healthful of all. Improvement in refining sugars have within the last two or three centuries led to its general adoption. Why may not also new improvements in apiculture restore it to its true place as a general favorite which was lost by bad management and the consequent corresponding limited supply?

We believe that improvements in bee-keeping as compared with old methods are not less than those seen in railroads and steamboats as compared with former modes of travel.

For mutual information we would advise the organization of local societies and conventions to further this business among all interested in apiculture.

J. H. NELLIS, Pres. THOS. G. NEWMAN, Secy. Sand for Cattle Bedding.

Sand if not the best, is one of the best articles in use for bedding cattle. It is a good desiccator, and keeps the stable sweet, and in one of the most healthful of all. Improvement in refining sugars have within the last two or three centuries led to its general adoption. Why may not also new improvements in apiculture restore it to its true place as a general favorite which was lost by bad management and the consequent corresponding limited supply?

For STARCHING LINEN.—Use one tablespoonful powdered borax to one quart of boiling starch; it will improve the stiffness and gloss.

For CLEANING PAINT.—The best soap for cleaning paint is made by taking one ounce pulverized borax, one pound best brown soap, cut in small pieces, and three quarts of water; put all in a kettle; set it on the back part of the stove, or range, until the soap is dissolved, stirring frequently; it must not come to a boil; use with a piece of old, soft white flannel. It cleans paint without injuring it; it is also beneficial for the hands, and much better for washing clothes than any other soap.

The Death warrant of Thomas P. Fisher, convicted of the murder of Morgan Powell, in 1871 was signed by the Governor on the 9th inst. He will be executed at Mauch Chunk on the 20th of February next.

A St. Louis widow has had three husbands. She has on hand a law-suit to break the will of the first, another to recover the insurance money on the life of the second, and a third to obtain alimony from the last.

A farmer residing near New York, in this State, has kept a record of the number of tramps visiting his premises in quest of food. The number from April 1st, 1877, to November 1st was 545, or an average of about 16 per week.

The Sheriff of Montgomery county wants to sell a turpentine, the Sheriff of York county has a circus for sale, a circus is offered to the lowest bidder by the Sheriff of Schuylkill, and Snyder county's hangman wants to dispose of an Odd Fellows' Hall.

Now come the days when the sturdy farmer dumps a load of dirt into some mud-hole in the highway yells: "Haw, Buck!" at his ox, pricks the night one with a bradawl, and goes home under the impression that he has worked out his road tax in full.

A gray-haired drunkard staggered into a temperance meeting in Philadelphia, and in a maudlin way tried to make a speech. The Chairman utilized him as "an awful example," making him stand up before the people to be prayed for, and exhorting them to beware of becoming such a wreck. Over a hundred signatures to the pledge were obtained, including that of the illustrative drunkard.

About three years ago, a murder case known as the Wainwright tragedy excited almost as much interest in London as the recent Penge case, and as a matter of course a drama, which draws in the provinces, was founded on it. While this was last month being acted at a travelling theatre in Market Harborough, an incident occurred which nearly proved fatal.

The Philadelphia Exhibition, Cold weather has come, and there is no money to buy heating apparatus or fuel. The Philadelphia Times says: "Apparatus for heating having been daily pined and the rate adjusted, was allowed to swing when the stood upon which his feet should have rested slipped from underneath them. The man was observed struggling and gasping for breath, and he was promptly cut down, but not before he had turned black in the face."

A new difficulty confronts the Philadelphia Exhibition. Cold weather has come, and there is no money to buy heating apparatus or fuel. The Philadelphia Times says: "Apparatus for heating having been daily pined and the rate adjusted, was allowed to swing when the stood upon which his feet should have rested slipped from underneath them. The man was observed struggling and gasping for breath, and he was promptly cut down, but not before he had turned black in the face."

The Hindoos, tired of their passive position in the matter of conversion, have determined to organize a mission for the propagation of Brahminism among the benighted English Christians of Australia. Suraschi, the new apostle, is an eminent Brahmin of Benares, who, while recently visiting the Australian colonies, was struck by the fearful prevalence of drunkenness among the inhabitants. Returning to his native country, he called together a meeting of Brahmins and Hindoos, the holy city of the Hindoo, and laid before them details of the miserable and degraded condition of their fellow subjects in Australia. It was unanimously agreed that the only lasting remedy would be the conversion of the Australians to a better and purer faith. A large sum of money has been subscribed, and several Brahmins have placed themselves at the disposal of Suraschi, who is busily engaged in translating portions of the Vedas into the English tongue, for the use of missionaries.

Mrs. Bennett was a medium highly esteemed by the Spiritualists of Boston. Her seances were made interesting by the appearance of apparitions in great numbers and variety. She long withstood the tests of investigators. However, she was caught a few evenings ago. Prescott Robinson, a firm believer in Spiritualism, trapped her neatly and successfully. She promised that in a certain seance his dead daughter should appear, and he had his friends there in readiness. A form purporting to be that of his child emerged from the cabinet in the dim light, and handed a flower to him. He dimly recognized her, patted her on the head, and then suddenly seized her in a firm grip. One of his friends turned up the gas, and all saw that the "child" was a woman walking on her knees. A general fight ensued, the personators of spirits trying to rescue the woman, and the captives trying to keep her a prisoner. She escaped, but not until the humbug had been thoroughly exposed. Another "spirit" ran out of the house, scantly attired, carrying most of her clothes in her arms.

A soldier in Cromwell's army, passing with his comrades over St. Mary's bridge, Derby, observed a young girl lading water from the river. In the spirit of frolic and mischief he threw a large stone, intending it should startle her by making a splash, but it struck her on the head, and made a hideous wound. She fell into the river. The soldier did not wait to see that she was rescued. He galloped on, feeling that he had been guilty of a wanton murder. The unknown consequences of his folly preyed upon his mind. His conscience was always upbraiding him. Years after, when discharged from the army he settled down in Derby. He took a public house in Bridgegate, and after a short acquaintance with a woman of suitable age, got married. Very soon after he saw his wife combing her hair, and inquired how she got that great scar which disfigured one side of her head. She replied: "Some wretch of a soldier had once nearly killed her with a stone, but if ever she caught the man she would pay him off for it." It is not recorded how she punished her husband when he confessed being her assailant, or how great was his relief when the haunting thought of a wanton murder was removed from his mind. He was one of the five troopers who rode under the oak where Charles was hidden at Boswell. From this soldier was descended Mr. Hutton, a well known antiquary of Derby, who related the above.

THE NEEDHAM Musical Cabinet

THIS new and wonderful instrument enables any one, whether understanding music or not, to play any desired melody or harmony, sacred or secular, from the most plaintive dirge to the most lively dance music. It possesses a mechanism of marvelous simplicity, requiring but the intelligence of a child to manipulate, yet capable of reproducing, without limitation, the musical compositions of the PAST, PRESENT and FUTURE. The execution is faultless, strict in melody, harmony and rhythm, and the instrument is eminently adapted for Sunday Schools, prayer and revival meetings, home devotional exercises, and in all cases where good, correct music is required, and no musician is at hand to perform.
