Senator R. P. Allen appeared in his seat this evening, after a few days' absence. The gentleman is announced as a candidate for Lieutenant Governor on the Democratic ticket by Madame Rumor. It is but simple justice to Mr. Allen to say that not a single man has been named for this position who would bring greater intelligence, culture or dignity to the position.

PLIGHT OF REPRESENTATIVE BULLARD The citizens of Harrisburg, members of F. Search was instituted at once and in a short time a clue was found from which it was learned that Bullard had been noticed purchasing a ticket at the Philadel phia and Reading depot for the 5:20 train cast, over the Lebanon Valley railroad for Reading. The sergeant at-arms telegraphed to the principal points in the state, giving a Gaines, the sergeant-at-arms, is not an ass, and among them they let Bullard "skip."

Are You Gaining?

If you are gaining a little every day be content. Are your expenses less than your income, so that, though it be little, you are yet constantly accumulating and growing richer every day? Be content, for as concerns money, you are doing well. Are you gaining knowledge every day? Though it be little, the aggregate of the accumulation, where no day is permitted to pass without adding something to the stock, will be surprising to yourself. Solomon did not become the wisest man in the world in a minute. Little by little-never omitting to learn something, even for a single day-always reading, always studying a little be tween the time of rising up in the morning and lying down at night-this is the way to accumulate a full storehouse of knowledge. Finally, are you daily gaining in character? Be not discouraged because it be little by little. The best men full short of what they would wish to be. It is something, it is much if you keep good resolutions better today than you did yesterday, better this year than you did last year. Strive to be perfect, but not to become downhearted so long as you are approaching nearer and nearer to the high standard at which you aim. Little

THE RUSSO-TURCAN WAR.

The Russians have lost about 100,000 men 10 months; -the other material losses are incalculable. The Ottaman Empire would lose everything if the Russians pressed theu to the wall. But the English nation, with all its love for Christianity, and its immense be-nevolence in the way of cheap Bibles for those who cannot read them, would prefer that British bayonets and ironelads, for the sake of trade, should uphold Moslem power than see it suppressed. But England is too ate. The case stands now as follows :

"The latest authentic advices from Con tantinople do not confirm the statement in bridge laws of this Commonwealth, and to the special despatch from that city to the lay out, make, build and repair the Standard that the Porte has received a despatch of the commonwealth, and to share the received a despatch of the commonwealth. the special despatch from that city to the several roads and bridges thereof, has putch to the effect that the preliminaries of been introduced in the Legislature. An armistice, if properly handmust make the Russians more than ever masters of the situation. They are at liberty to fix, not only the line of demarca tion, but the time during which they may remain in possession of the territory occupied. This will leave their bands free to settle details according to their own views, which, in Pittsburg Telegraph, writing to that paper, the peace preliminaries, have given place to speaks of the Lycoming county Senator as general principles, thus: In the latter with regard to Bulgaria, the future limits of this province do not appear to have been specified, nor the degree to which autonomy of Bulgaria or reforms in Bosnia and Herze-govinia are to extend. MORE RASCALS COMING TO GRIEF. WASHINGTON, January 28. The House, by more than two-thirds majority, passed a resolution presented by Mr. Mr. Baker, of Indiana, declaring against the granting of subsidies. The vote was much larger than had been expected, but too much reliance should not be placed upon such a vote. It is not an iron bound record. Similar votes have been taken in other Congresses and the same men have subsequently, in the same Congress, voted the most liberal subsidies. They are likely to do so in this Congress. Our oil producing counties are much agiproposes to give the producers a new outlet. are willing to build and pay for it? If they can get their oil to market cheaper than hey now do by the construction of an addiual line, they should have the privilege of doing so. If consumers can get oil cheaper by it, they are also the gainers. It is well for the people. It might as well be argued to the counties interested. that the North & West Branch R. R. should not be built, because the L. & B. is in exisence and a competing line.

The argument against pipe lines, that they will inflict injury upon parties that have invested money in more costly means of transportation, is an equally good argument against sewing machines and mowing nachines. A costlier plan of making reeches and making hay was abandoned for cheaper, swifter, better methods, just as railroads superseded to a large extent the use of turnpikes and canals.

The usual reasons assigned for Blaine's ssault upon Massachusetts appear to be er. oneous. Some allege that it was caused by he obtuseness of Massachusetts republicans in failing to recognize the greatness of the Maine statesman at Cincinnati, and others say that it was on account of Mullican But these are mistakes. Blaine himself has explained the cause of his Olympic rage. It was all along of Daniel Webster and the shburton treaty. For thirty years it has generally been supposed that the treaty negotiated by Webster with Lord Ashburton was quite a diplomatic success of the great Massachusetts statesman. The treaty gave to Maie the British settlement of Madwaska with about seven-twelfths of the disouted territory. And what was still more mportant, it prevented a conflict between the two countries over a region that was not worth going to war about. But Blaine now says that Maine should have had the whole of the territory, and he reproaches the memory of Webster for its loss. The country nevertheless will rest satisfied with the settlement as it stands. The accession of a few thousand Blue Noses more or less under the Ashburton treaty would have been of small consequence. Webster concluded that they were not worth a quarrel and the wisdom and patriotism of his course have been approved by the country. Had he ceded the whole of Maine Blaine would prob ably be now thundering in the parliament of the Dominion at Ottawa or teaching school in Madawaska instead of assailing the memory of Daniel Webster in the senate of the United States. It is plain that Webster had the better of the trade with Ashburton

Notwithstanding the fact that the resolution was so worded as to compliment both a democratic and a republican leader and Senator, more than one-half of the members of the House were afraid to meet the issue and either made ; hasty exit from the Hall or sat in their seats and did not answer when their name were called. Only 83 men had the nerve to put themselves on record on this all-absorbing and important question, while 117 were absent or did not vote. No one accuses the average Penusylvania legislator of possessing in undue amount of brilliancy or quickness of aprehension, but it does seem that it is almost time that they were able to have an intelligent opinion upon this much ventilated silver question.

On Tuesday morning the house disposed of the case of Hon. O.F.Bullard summarily and suddenly. The Judiciary committee presented a long report, the gist of which was that there were no precedents in England or America to show that members o Parliament, Congress or other legislative bodies were privileged from arrest when charged with criminal acts, and recommending that Mr. Bullard be remanded to the custody of the jailor of Delaware county, from which he had been taken by the order of the House. To this the House agreed by an almost unanimous vote, only 5 or 6 votes being recorded in the negative. Petitions praying for the re-enactment of no effect upon the minds of members. Though their opinions on financial subjects may be misty and wavering, it is safe to assert that every Senator and every Represen-

Secretary Sherman's subordinates in New United States Custom House from the offenfitting that the Custom Houses, the homesof fraud and peculation, should open their doors to the protection of such scoundrels as the members of the Louisiana Returning Board. The wonder is that the reform administration of Mr. Haves, which is the creation of those eriminals, did not protect them. It will be strange if the Newzealander, who comes to muse on the ruins of all countries, does not find in the history of Hayes and the Presidency and the Louisiana Returning Board of 1876 the most astonishing figures of all time. Looked at in any way there is nothing but fraud in all the proceedings from Nov. 8, 1876, from the incredible flight of conspirators to the shelter of a United States Custom House and their surrender by an administra-

Perhaps this is not an unmixed evil to the Southwestern country, for extending business will ultimately complete the road, and the defeat of this subsidy project will make it all the easier to get through Congress a liberal appropriation for the Mississippi levees and other strictly legitimate improvements in that

The Philadelphia Press of Tuesday say that there transpired on Monday in the small two story frame house, No. 123 St. Mary's street, an event which, while not without a parallel, is yet so strange and wonderful as to merit more than passing notice. Cases of suspended animation have been a fruitful heme for the romancists, and many a tangled story and weird plot has been woven out of apparent death, but subsequent and unexpected recovery. But while many well authenticated cases are to be found chonicled in medical works, one rarely falls to the lot of the newspaper reporter so full of thrilling details as that which the Press is enabled to give this morning. On jast Sunday a week the congregation worshipping in the old Swede's church, on Swanson street, were alarmed by the sudden fall of one of their number, and it was soon learned by those present that a man named Schrack had bee the Local Option Law pour into the Senate and House every day but apparently have the presenter man to the open air where he the prostrate man to the open air, where he revived slightly, and was then carried to his home—the house above mentioned. Shrack is quite an intelligent man, and tells of his wonderful experiences without hesitation. His family and friends are, however, relicent on the subject, fearing to increase the already great excitement which has been manife-ted in the immediate vicinity of the house. The case, however, is one which, viewed either from a medical or a psycological standpoint, seems well worthy of farther investigation by scientific

The income tax case against Mr. Tilden has at last been brought before the Courts hrough the Senate by a two-thirds vote, of and argument has been begun. The case is the Silver Bill. It is the better opinion, per-likely to prove one of interest and perhaps mportance, on account of the question measure through, over a veto, will not be raised by demurrer. The claim of the Goernment is for taxes due in all the years rom 1862 to 1870, and amounts, with interst, to about $150,000. The demurrer to the claim for the taxes for 1861 has been sustained by Judge Blatchford, and argument on the other claims has been begun. Mr. Tilden's council contends as to these claims that the act of the assessors, in fixing or accepting the amount of taxable income, parook of the character of a judicial decision, oinding on the Government and not subject o review. The attorneys for the Governent hold, on the other hand, that the ac of the assessors was purely ministerial, and that the errors made by them are open to review in the Courts.
