READ, AND HEED.

To those of our subscribers who have paid up in response to notices given through the papers and by mail we are duly grateful. We have, by systematic arrangement got our list in such shape that we know who the honest patrons are, and can rely on them for each year's instatllment as it becomes due. We also have all the delinquents marked, so that we know who those are that sponge on the printer for their information. Let it be understood once for all that we publish a paper as a business out of which we expect to make a living. This paper is sold as the merchant sells his goods, for money, and those who do not pay for it, need not expect to receive it. We have no dead-head list. During the past year hundreds of names have been stricken off the roll, who failed to pay, and we are still at it. Others are on proion, and will be cut off unless they settle very soon. Our endeavor is to instruct the pub lic by furnishing useful information and the news of the day, but we expect and interd to be paid for it. A small list of good paying subscribers is far better than a large one of worthless or doubtful names, and we propose to keep og cutting down until we have none left but honest men. If any now receive the paper who cannot afford to pay for it, they should notify us at once of their condition, pay up back dues and stop the paper. To continue to take it when they know they will not pay for it is not much better than theft. It is obtaining goods under false pretences. Before very long those who have paid no attention to our numerous notices will be visited by a constable, and find themselves in for costs. Then they will come flocking in with indignation to know why we sued them. Our answer to such will be, we must be paid for our goods. If you do not pay anything for two years and a quarter, we take compelled to do so All notes given for subscription will positively be sued in February unless set tled before that time. If sued we shall add interest, and include subscription to date in the suit, at the rate of $2.50 a year. We have given very possible chance to those indebted to us to settle at the low rate, and as many have paid no attention to it, we shall charge the high rate to pay costs. We have exercised the greates leniency, but forbearance has ceased to be virtue and we shall now crack the legal whip.

Koons, two Consta-bles, two assessors, one Judge and two Inspectors of election in East Bloomsburg, and one Judge and two Inspectors of election in West Bloomsburg. There will probably be the usual contest over the Town Council, the main issue being, as it has been for the past two years, between the party of progress and the old fogies. The cow question will all be fought over again, and the re-ult of the election will depend very much upon the activity of those who are opposed to turning the public streets into pastures. The question is not as to the rights of the poor man alone, but as to the rights of all citizens, and it must be as the ma-jority vote. The political complexion of the council is a matter of no importance. What is needed are good, honest citizens who will con-

Kathleen was a natural beauty, and made a very decided impression on the heart of our hero long before she had learned the meaning of the word "Love." It was at a little village on the coast of Maine, where she lived with her old grand-mother, nine years before our story opens. Carl Seymour was an artist, and not rich when he met his love for the second time at Newportmet her to fall blindly at her feet, and worshipping her as all others did. But this second met her to fall blindly at her feet, and worship-ping her as all others did. But this second meeting was very di crent from the first; the old grandmother was dead, and Kathleen was chaperoned by a wordly-minded aunt, who had determined her niece should make a brillian marriage. Carl Seymour proposed, and was rejected, to find her engaged to a milliousire. After three years of separation, in which time the annua money must have taken wings, Kathleen reappears as the governess to Mrs. The rate of subscription for the Monthly issue is only $1.50 a year; Semi-monthly, $3.00 a year.
