From the earliest movement in Congress for the appointment of a committee to investigate the electoral frauds in some of the Southern states, the Republican organs began to cry aloud. The movement was denounced as revolutionary, and intended as an entering wedge to lead to an investigation of the title of Hayes or any other power. I do most earnestly the country wanted rest; that business would med with untold evils. Of course the in his occupancy of the White House. He desperate resorts of argument. was put there by a legally constituted tribunal, and however erroneous the decision of that body may have been, he is there by virtue of jority of the committee that if by force or the laws of the land. Wherefore then, this great outery against an investigation? It and bribery, a man* may buy or defraud a was, first, to prevent the exposure of the fraud perpetrated by the Republican party, which they succeeded [in making Hayes sident; and secondly; to show that the ocratic party was a revolutionary organination seeking to plunge the country into another civil war, which charge they have been using as a campaign argument to divert from themselves the defeat which they see staring them in the face. The action of the House of Representatives on Friday last has taken from their hands this weapon on which they have counted so much, and they must look where for campaign Ithunder. The resolution of the House adopted by the decisive If so then our republican form of governvote of 234 to 14, was as follows :

vote of 234 to 14, was as follows: Whereas, At the joint meeting of the two houses of the Forty-fourth Congress convened, pursuant to law and the Constitution, for the purpose of ascertaining, and counting the votes for President and Vice President for the term commencing March 4, 1877, on counting the votes Rutherford B. Hayss was declared elected President and William A. see that the laws of the country are enforced when the civil authority fails. Ours is a civil government, and in time of peace its maery is ample to carry on its affairs without the advice or interference of the general of the army. The speech of General Sherman before the graduating class at West Point was a piece of inexcusable nonsense. He launched out in silly bombast about what the army would do, did anybody attempt to interfere with President Hayes. This was the world, has gradually deteriorated, until led for because nobody but perhaps Ben. to-day we have scarcely a respectable squad-Butier has shown any disposition to question the title of Hayes to the Presidency ; and secondly because if the matter were being questioned it is a matter for the civil authorities under the administration of Robeson alone. This single fact is evidence of the most gross to deal with, and not for army officers to settle. If the proper civil power should see fit mismanagement, to use the mildest term to question Hayes' title, or to impeach any It was simply impossible to spend all of this er of the government for misdemeanor in office, it is not likely that the permission of money honestly, and there was no conceiva-General Sherman would be asked before any ble way in which it could have been got rid steps would be taken. The country has no of except by a monstrous scheme of plunder What this scheme was, how it was carried need of the advice or services of the military until it finds the laws obstructed and calls on on and who were engaged in it, it became the duty of the committee on naval affairs to find out. While Robeson remained at the the army to enforce them. The soldiers are entirely subordinate to the civil power and should therefore keep their own counsel until head of the department every kind of obstacalled on to perform their duty. Sherman's cle, was thrown in the way of investigation. and it was impossible to reach the truth. speech was all the more out of place, because it is his brother John Sherman, whom the In-. But with a new administration came an envestigating Committee are after, and if any-bod's title is to be questioned it will be that tire change; the records of the department were thrown open to Congress, as they alof the Secretary of the Treasury. If the genways ought to be ; officers dared to tell what eral of the army has nothing to do but to go they knew without the certainty of being ordered to foreign ports, and little by little about trumpeting what the army will do if his brother should be convicted of assisting the record of eight years of robbery was laid in the fraudulent returns of the electoral bare. It is altogether the most astounding vote, he had better resign. At all events he story of official debauchery that has been is a better soldier than speech maker, and the given to the world since the downfall of the Tammany ring. The Times long since exsooner he comes to that conclusion, the better can he sustain his reputation for a man of posed the rascality practiced in the removal some common sense. In speaking of his re-marks the Philadelphia Times says : of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, but that was only a small example of the system that was only a small example of the system that

It is just such folly as that of General Bherman's speech at West Point, together with the willing service the army has render-ed to the most degraded rule in the South. with the willing service the army has render, that has taught the country to look upon the proposed reduction of the army with satisfac-tion; and, until military officers learn that the rights and wrongs of the humblest citi-nem of the Union are paramount to the an-therity of the highest titled soldier, there will be popular distrust of the military power. If General Sherman had desired to point the proposed reduction are paramount to the an-therity of the highest titled soldier, there will be popular distrust of the military power. If General Sherman had desired to point the proposed for the unrest that has been created by foolish speeches in Congress, at Wesh ment propriety have told the cadets that in the purity of the civil service of the country is the and that while men like John Bherman hold Cabinet portfolios as the ro will the people how the sword will confront tell the people how the sword will conford their rulers to account in the administration of their own laws.
