Preserving Fruit in Sand.

A California paper gives the following:

Some months ago we gave an account of some experiments with the preservation of fruit in dry sand, which our friend; Mr. Rixford, had in progress. He had a resurrect sector of the progress of the progre ford, had in progress. He had a resurred tion the other day, and brought us samples ford, had in progress. He had a resurrection the other day, and brought us samples of the preserved fruit. It will be remembered that the fruit was deposited in the dry sand under his house on one of the hilltops of the city. We have before us a Los Angelos orange, which was put in the sand last April, when the fruit was fully ripe. It was taken up after seven months of burial, and shows but little mark of its hiding-place. The shrivel on the skin is scarcely perceptible, and the color is bright. On cutting the fruit, the juice bursts forth and floods the knife and the hand. To the taste the flavor is delicious. Mr. Rixford thicks that the fruit is but little changed from its conditions when not into the sand. It was too.

INTO OF CALISES FOR TRIAL AT the fruit is but little changed from its condition when put into the sand. It was too ripe when put in, and would have remained estable three weeks in open air. If the sand treatment should be applied to the fruit be fore it becomes too ripe, there seems no room for doubt that it can be preserved for months in marketable form. Another specimen from the sand bank was a small apple. Mr. Rirford says it was of a port of when it was put in, but it was so late in the second scott in Bernard Scholer.

FROM C. T. CAMPBELL'S LECTURE IN MAY PIELD, KY.

Barkeepers in this city pay on an average tains an average of sixty five drinks, and at ten cents a d.ink the poor man pays $6.50 per gallon for his whiskey. In other words, he pays $2 for the whiskey and $4.50 to a man for handing it over the bar. Make your wife your barkeeper. Lend her two dollars to buy a gallon of whiskey for a beginning, and every time you want a drink go to he and pay ten cents for it. By the time you have drank a gallon she will have $6.50, er enough money to refund the $2 borrowed of you, to pay for another gallon of liquor, and have a balance of $2 50. She will be absto conduct future operations on her own capable to support yourself, shunned and de spised by all respectable persons, your wife will have enough money to keep you until you are ready to fill a drunkard's grave.

Paying Wages Promptly.

A correspondent encouses what the Ledger has very frequently said about the importance of having small bills promptly paid and of having workingmen paid their wages at frequent intervals. He complains, and justly too, that he and other workers who, from pecossity are compelled to submit to frequent ous in their wages, are often compelled to wait four weeks or more for their money. The smallness of their wages prevents many of them from getting that much shead of the world, and they are, therefore, compelled to pay what are known as "trust prices" for all the necessaries of life. Buying in small quantities, and on credit, it costs them very much more to live than would be required if they were paid weekly and could buy in larger quantities for cash. This is clearly recognized by many large employers, who, in spite of the additional work imposed upon them, setthe with all their employees weekly; but there are others who delay paying until they can make monthly settlements. There is another little matter about wages that costs nothing, and which considerate employers do no overlook. If wages are paid on Friday, the frugal bousewife will have a chance to pu frugal bousewife will have a chance to put some of the weekly earnings to good use before the temptations of Saturday night and Sonday frolics have wasted the much needed money. But apart from any saving thuohtained, the wife supplied with money on Friday night can have the choice of the markets and buy where it is to best advantage, instead of getting her supplies where she must. This is just the season of the year when it would be well to begin the good custom of naving every Friday night. As our tom of paying every Friday night. As our correspondent says, "It would be a good New Year's gift to working men and women."
