WHY A HORSE BALKED.

they gave their names.

A Hartford man recently bought a young norse for $200. Within a week or two the horse began to act badly, and finally developed such a balky disposition that the owner could do nothing with him. Persussion of every kind and finally severe beatings were resorted to, but still the horse renained stubborn. At last, in a desperate mood, the horse was taken to the original owner, who bought him back for $25. The cause of the whole trouble was soon discovered. The horse had been broken to wear a hames collar, and had never worn any other kind-his owner had put a breast collar on Luzerne county, which was her last place of him after using him a little while, and no one 'happened to think' that this change had produced the sudden obstinacy in the animal. Wearing the collar to which he had been acc stomed, the horse is all right again and the gentleman who has got him back at worth fully $200 again
