LINCOLN'S HOBBY PHRASES.

(Noah Brooks, in Midsummer Holiday Scribner.)

In his letter declining an invitation to the Illinois Republican Convention, in 1853, Lincoln made use of two or three striking figures. Reviewing the military events of the past year, which had been favorable to the cause of the Union, he said: "The father of waters again goes unheeded to the sea." And, referring to the fact that Southern Unionists and ex-slaves had done something to help on the good work, he said: "On the spot, their part of the history is dotted down in black and white." There was something in the phrase "dotted down in black and white" which mightily tickled the popular fancy. At the time, however, criticism was provoked by this odd figure employed by the President: "Nor must Uncle Sam's web-feet be forgotten. At all the watery margins they have been present not only on the deep sea, the broad bay, the rapid river, but also upon the narrow, muddy bays, and whenever the ground was a little damp, they have been and made their tracks." Lincoln was amused by the discussion in the newspapers to which the use of the phrase "Uncle Sam's web-feet" gave rise. He explained the remarkable facts performed by the goat boats, in making their way through sloughs and bays, heretofore considered unnavigable, reminded him of the steady passage of water-foot. The pleasure concerning light-draft steamers going where the ground is a little damp, is familiar to everybody.

It will be long time before our people will forget Lincoln's rosy simile of "old ex-squirts charged with rose-water," as applied to the conservative programme for prosecuting the war. This was used in a letter addressed to Outbrett Bullitt, of New Orleans, in which letter he also said that the conservative were like complaining passengers on a ship—"The mutineers must go untouched lest one of these sacred passengers should receive an accidental wound." His imagination was powerfully stimulated by any reference to the history of the republic. His address at Gettysburg, now one of the great historical speeches of the world, suggests, rather than expresses a crowd of images. To Lincoln's aloof, apparently, American history was filled with noble and pathetic figures. In some of the loftier flights of his eloquence may be found traces of a strong poetic fancy—an imagination fired by love of country, and inspired by the contemplation of the stirring events that have marked its history. No more striking example of this can be found anywhere than in the memorable words which closed his first inaugural address:

"The mystic chords of memory, stretching from every battle field and patriot grave to every living heart and hearth-stone, all over this broad land, will yet swell the chorus of the Union, when again touched, as surely they will be, by the better angels of our nature."

HOW EASY IT IS TO BE GUILLOTINED.

The refusal of the partridge Laprade to be guillotined recalls the man "guillotined by persuasion," of Chavette. "But I say, you know, said the executioner, 'everybody is waiting. The magistrates are there, the clergy are there, the soldiers (who are to present arms to you just as if you were the President of the Republic) are there—everybody is there. All they are waiting for is—you only you."

"I don't know"—replied the condemned man.

"I'm a new executioner; you are the first person I've had to guillotine; give me a good send-off, can't you? Just put yourself in my place."

"You just put yourself in mine."

"It can't be any question of expense; don't you know that everything is paid? It won't cost you a penny; the State stands treat."

"I haven't asked the State to stand treat to anything."

"Come, now, old fellow, let's understand each other. You mayn't think so, but this resistance doesn't proceed from your own better nature—some one has put you up to it. You have taken a totally erroneous view of the affair. What, after all said and done, does it amount to? It is a nothing—a mere formality. Let us look into it in detail. You are called and awakened early and given a comfortable breakfast—order whatever you want. Nothing is so very dread, full about that, is there? Then you have your hair cut—it's healthy this hot weather and makes you feel fresher. Then you go calmly and pleasantly out for a ride. In a carriage; understand? While you are driving along you amuse yourself chatting about this, that and the other thing with the priest, and you never feel the time pass. Well, when you get there they come out to meet you, they open the door for you, they help you out of the carriage, they do every thing in their power for you. Then you go up stairs—only a step or two, and the ascent is so easy that you'd almost think that you were going down stairs. You bow to the public, and—well, before you have time to turn round—brrrrr!—all is over. (Smiling.) Everybody goes home satisfied. That's all there is about it."

ALMOST TOO HORRIBLE FOR BELIEF.

Lately, in Chihuahua, Mexico, a woman went into a shoemaker's shop in front of his dwelling, and was measured for a pair of shoes. The son of Crispin said to the woman: "You have a very pretty foot." "Do you think so?" said she. He replied: "Yes, that is the prettiest foot in Mexico." The woman was to come back next day and leave one dollar, when the shoes were to be commenced. The next day the woman with the pretty foot called according to agreement, and the shoemaker being out, his wife got her into the back room and stabbed her to death. The wife then cut a steak out of the dead woman's leg and packed the body under the bed. The shoemaker came home and ate his dinner. He answered "It was the best he had ever eaten." The wife then told him he had eaten part of the "prettiest leg in Mexico."

A BATTLE WITH A CIRCUS.—The Indianapolis News says: "At Leesville, Orange county, the Transatlantic circus had a performance on the show bills. Some sharpers got hold of a man by the name of Dore, and tried to beat him out of his money by games, but finding that he would not gamble, matched his money from him. Next a woman with the company stole a watch from a man, and also a revolver. Then a shot was fired into the canvas, after which the showmen caught three citizens, dragged them inside the tent, lashed them to a wagon and nearly bayed them to death, and stamped upon them. By this time the citizens raised, and arming themselves with shot guns and revolvers, soon succeeded in releasing the men from the hands of the showmen. Now the battle commenced in earnest. Over 100 shots were fired, resulting in mortally wounding four showmen and several others. One citizen was dangerous lying shot.

A Minnesota gentleman has invented a one-rail railway, for which he modestly claims that "the continent could be crossed in twenty-four hours, with his system in perfect working order." The distance across the continent by the present rail route is about 3,500 miles. To make the trip in twenty-four hours would require an average continuous speed, without any stopping for fuel, water, crossings, bridges, letting off or taking on passengers, of over 137 miles per hour. An Ohio paper says of this modest gentleman's wonderful scheme: "Really we think that our one rail friend is claiming too much. Can't he take off the odd seven miles per hour that his present schedule requires."

Curious Church Singing.

Nobody except the people in the front pews last Sunday, and only the few there who listened intently, could hear the tenor, when the choir started out. "When I can read my title clear," singing very distinctly, with his face turned toward the leader of the organ: "I've lost the place; I'm in a fix. What ever shall I do?" And then the leader, in his profoundest bass, replied in faultless tone and meter: "The tune is on page ninety-six. The words on forty-two." —From the Burlington Hawkeye.

Ostriches for the Cavalry.

It is reported that a grotesque genius some years ago conceived the idea of importing and utilizing ostriches for the United States Cavalry instead of horses, and actually imported eighteen of these long-necked birds. These laid numerous eggs in the sands of New Mexico, and the flock of ostriches now number 117 at Fort members. It is said that Colonel Hatch, of the 9th regiment of cavalry, is about to mount one of his companies on ostriches. They are strong, docile, fleet as a horse, will go for days without eating or drinking, and need little or no grooming.
