I. W. Hartman expects to enlarge his stor by cutting a passage way between his present store room and the one recently fitted up in his block. This will give plenty of room, and will be an improvement, indicating that his already extensive business is on the increase-

Real estate is being quite frequently called for and is rising in the market. Persons desiring to pur hase should not delay. A very few good properties are offered by the Sheriff and the wise and vigitant will make money out of them. Those not already condemned, are not likely to be, and future lists will be short.

There was a heavy fall of rain on Tuesday and a slight hall storm. The sky was covered with black clouds and for a little while it was very dark. A heavy clap of thunder following immediately after a bright flash of lightning led every one to suppose that the lightning had struck somewhere near, but we have not heard of any damage being done.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.-Harry, son of Mills Chemberlin, went out on the river last Tue day to shoot ducks, in company with a young man who lives with Douglas Hughes. He had pu his gun down on the seat of the boat, and in picking it up, took hold of the muzzle and drew the gun towards him. The hammer caugh on the sent and the gun was discharged, badly burning young Chemberlin's hand, and tearing the skin and flesh from his left side enough to leave the intestines exposed. Dr. McKelvy was called at once and dressed the wound. He does not think any shot entered the intestines, as the muzzle of the gon was so near the body that the load did not scatter. The wound is not considered a fatal one.

The present brick, cheery temperature, follow-ing , spell of unseasonably warm weather, has made every one think of thick garments, and a goods could not have been asked. Messre, Strawbridge & Clothier had announc-ed yesterday as their opening day for Ladies' Winter Coats and Mantles, and though but a few days ago such coverings as fors and heavy woolen wraps were looked upon as out of season yet, when the day arrived, the temp rature had undergone a change, and a more appropriate andergone a change, and a more appropriate time for such an opening could not have been

The opening days of the great retail he of the principal cities are always awaited with interest by the ladies, as few of the fair sex are conrageous enough to select the styles of their garments until the standard authorities exhibit what Fashion decrees shall be worn for the eason, Yesterday Messrs. Strawbridge & Clothier,

Yesterday Messrs. Strawbridge & Clothier, seemed to outdo all previous displays of this character in the exhibition of ladies', misses' and children's coats, manthe and outside wraps generally. Usually a few pattern garments, made by French modistes, are displayed at opening, but on this occasion several thousand garments, every one made by foreign artists were on exhibition. Any description of the' garments in detail cannot be attempted, but the even titelf should be mentioned as worthy of general interest to our lady readers. All day throngs of ladies passed through the spacious salesrooms, reminding one of the crowds that gathered in the art gallery of the Centennial Exhibition. The firm have spity headed their announcement "Art in Apparel," and we advise all our lady readers who have not called to take advantage of the continuation of the opening Friday night. The wildest excitement prevailed al through the mountain region when the fact of the terrible tragedy became generally known. Many persons think that Spear-
