If he ignores any of them, he does it at the peril of losing votes and los ing place at the next election. The man who has a claim against the government for services during the war, for property taken, or for anything else, rarely ever thinks of or for anything else, rarely ever thinks of putting it in the hands of any of the numer-ous law firms or claim agents in this city. He encloses the papers relating to the mat-ter to the member from his district or one of the Senators from his state, and urges that his business be hurried through. Should the Congressman fail to establish the claim and get the money, he frequently, because of his failure, makes an enemy of the claimant, who failure, makes an enemy of the claimant, who forthwith declares and works for some oth-er aspirant for Congressional honors. Applications for appointment to positions, claims, pensions, and the many stages through which these and the many stages through which these matters have to go." The correspondence of a member of Congress, too,entails a great deal of labor. Letters from constituents must be answered promptly, and in order to do this there is scarcely a member who is not compatible to employ a member who is and the many stages through which these not compelled to employ a secretary or an
