Harley Merry had some difficulty on Monday with a man by the name of Maxwell from Dan, ville. According to Merry's statement this nay wanted free passes to the entertainment and also wanted to attend at the door for the Mars. troupe. Having been annoyed with him at Danville Mr. Merry wishing to get rid of him finally, expressed his opinion very freely, and polied some epithets not at all complimentary Maxwell, who at once brought a suit for slander, and Harley was arrested by Capt. Brockway, as deputy sheriff, in the absence of Sheriff Ent and Deputy Fritz. Maxwell insisted on the immediate incarceration of Har ley in the jail, but the deputy very properly permitted him to go on with his performance After the play the matter was retuctantly settled by Harley, by his paying the costs, and giving Maxwell five dollars for "expenses." People who know Maxwell will not believe that any thing that Merry said to him or about him ould injure his character to any great extent. A communication signed "M." appears in the Republican this week, concerning an article printed in the COLUMBIAN recently on the Cur ey murder. The writer, in the first place, is nistaken in supposing that we would not have printed his letter if it had been sent to us Our columns are always open to the public fo proper purposes. If we published what was antrue we would very gladly have corrected it.

As to the facts as published, we have only to that region, and the same in substance appear ed in the daily papers just after Curley's arrest This correspondent should have made his correction at that time, so that nearly all the papers in the state would not have printed bout the same statement that we did. We had no desire or intention to hias public opinion against the prisoner, and supposed that we were using due precaution in the preparation four article, by taking dispatches dated at entralia and printed in the daily papers, as or guides. Just exactly what the truth is in this case will be known better after the trial.

The insinuation that we printed this article ecause we were not engaged as counsel for Curley is too silly to notice. We may remark, owever, that we refused an opportunity to be oncerned in the case. As to remaining 'disreetly silent' during the trial of Hester, Tully and McHugh, we would invite this correspondent to call in and look over our files of that me, and he will find a full report of the whole ase from the arrest up to the execution. We have no fear that our article will convict Curley if he is innocent, nor do we believe that this letter from Centralia will acquit him if he is guilty.

Respectfully yours, REPORTER.

The lecture field is full to overflowing, Som of the productions are good, others passable, and the majority simply intolerable. It requires something more than the ability to write to make an acceptable lecturer. There must be pleasant delivery and graceful gestures. Men who desire to inflict their essays on the public for pay, must expect to give something in re turn. They should take enough time to com mit their lecture to memory, so that they will not be compelled to stand before an audience with book in hand, and read it off like a school boy. To interest an audience a public speaker must talk at it, and not simply to it. Last Friday evening Dr. Geo. B. H. Swayze delivered his lecture entitled "Life's Golden Gates," at the Normal School to a small au dience. The composition showed much care and labor in its preparation, though it is by no means of a character that will ever make it a popular discourse. It is abstruce without being either interesting or entertaining, and cov ers altogether too much ground for any man however able, to get over in one lecture. The delivery of the speaker was bad, his gestures awkward and inappropriate, and the subject matter so unfamiliar as to make it necessary for ented the two adjoining rooms in said blocks him to refer constantly to his notes which he held before him. We do not wish to be understood as criticising barshly, but as truthful ournalists it is our business to comment as cirimstances require, on those who put them selves before the public to amuse, entertain o instruct it for pay. Dr. Swayze has undertaken ability to make it successful, and while hi lecture bears marks of considerable research and learning, whatever there is of good in it, is spoil. ed by the delivery. We hope that he may overcome these difficulties, and eventually reach the point to which he aspires that, of popular lecturer. HOW TROUT HEAR NOISES IN THE WATER.

Prof. E. D. Cope, a well known naturalist controverts in Forest and Stream Sath Green's allegation that trout can not hear. The proessor says that there is a nerve at the base of every scale on a trout, and the point where the scale is united with the skin. All these nerves, from the base of every scale, lead to a large ganglion situated on the centre of the fore, head of the fish below the eyes. Nerves from smoks was seen issuing from the roof of this this ganglion communicate to the interior ear These nerves, at the base of each scale, are formed to receive vibrations in the water. Any yibration in the water reaching the scale of the fish is thes communicated to the interior ear that supported the flume rested in the running water on the ground, the vibrations of this running water on the ground would be carried by the timber to the flume and to the water in it, four feet above. The ear of the fish would separate and take cognizance of the difference n the vibrations, as the human ear in the ai distinguishes the difference between the voice of friends. Prof. Cope's explanation is complete in scientific detail, and is made clear by a drawing of the scale, ganglions and interna-

THE LAW OF PINDING.

The law of finding is this: The finder has a clear title against all the world but the owner. The proprietor of a railroad car or shop has no right to demand the property which may be found on his premises. Such proprie tor may make regulations in regard to lost prop erty which will bind their employes, but the cannot bind the public. The law of finding was declared by the King's Bench one hundred years ago in a case in which the facts were these : A person found a wallet containing a sum of money on a shop floor. He handed the wallet and contents to the shopkeeper to be returned to the owner. After three years, during which time the owner did not call for the prop magnificent costumes and its infinite variety of which time the owner did not call for the propattractions. The complicated and novel mafrom the shopkeeper. The latter refused to de liver them up on the ground that they were found on his premises. The finder then sued the shopkeeper, and it was held as above stated that against all the world but the owner the title of the finder is perfect. And the finder has been held to stand in the place of the owner, so that he was permitted to prevail in action against a person who found an article which on any stage, and the fail of the curtain on the plaintiff had originally found but subsequently lost. The police have no special rights in regard to articles lost unless thos the sun. It will be a long time before another rights are conferred by statute. Receivers o articles found are trustees for the finder. They many artists and costing so much money will have no power in the absence of a special statbe presented. The cast includes Miss Belle ute to keep the article against the finder an more than the finder has to retain the article against the owner.
