THE STACK-O'HARA CASE.

Some years ago Bishop O'Hara of the Ro man Catholic church removed Father Stack from his charge of a church at Williamsport. Stack took the matter into the civil courts and after much litigation it was decided i the Bishop's favor. Stack then brought suit against the Bishop for $50,000 damages, and this case was tried at Williamsport last week. W. H. Armstrong, and Mr. Price represen ted the plaintiff, and, J. M. Parker and Ex-Judge Harding the defendant. The jury rendered a verdict in favor of the defendant on Saturday. In speaking of the argument

the Gazette and Bulletin says:
The arguments of Messrs, Parker, Arm strong and Price are universally commended as examples of legal scumer, learning and eloquence, while on all sides the police-court offort of Ex-Judge Harding, replete with billing-gate and vituperation, is sneered at as an ineffectual attempt to bullirag, Bishop O'Hara needs no character to be given him by Garrick M. Harding, while as regardto reputation, M. P. Stack's is as far above him as the stars are above the bull frogs. Mr Parker had all that he could do to answer the learned arguments of opponents, without being handicapped by so frivolous and unfortunate an argument-no, not argument-athat of which Mr. Harding relieved him

Is the Amending Power of the Constitution

If we turn to the original Constitution, we find that after providing for a mode in which it could be amended, it laid this important restriction upon the amending power: that no State without its consent shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Sen ate. Its equal suffrage in the Senate meant under another provision, that each State shall have two Senators. The amending power was vested in three-fourths of the States, but the equal suffrage of the States in the Senate was forever excepted out of that power. In like manner, to every State was given in the Electoral College, by which its vote for President of the United States was to be cast, a number of electors made up of the same number as it was entitled to have of Senators added to the number of its Representatives in the lower house of Con-Notwithstanding the restriction which the Constitution lays upon the amending power, is that power itself capable of being so amended as to do away with this restriction, and by a vote of three-fourths o the States, introduce, through the amending process, a different mode of representation in the Senate and in the Electoral Colleges? I presume that most persons would be startled by this inquiry. But it is an inquiry that goes to a deep question: Are there any fundamental rights and powers of the people of every State which are so fixed and immutable that they are beyond the reach of the will of three-fourths of the States? It is not enough, with respect even to this matter of equal suffrage in the Senate, to point to the special restriction laid upon the amending power. That power either is or is not capable of being changed by a threefourths vote of the States. If it is capable of being changed, the restriction may be taken away. If it is not capable of being changed, the restriction will remain. But there are other important rights that may be affected by the amending process. - Can three-fourths of the Staets so amend the Constitution as to make the President Executive for life, and make his eldest son his successor? In other words, have the people of every State an unalterable, fixed, and vested constitutional right to have the Executive office filled and occupied for a fixed term of years, and an equally fixed, vested, and unatterable fixed constitutional right to have the President appointed by electors to be chosen in each State as its legislature may direct? And are there any other rights of the States or their people which are not subject to the amending power of threefourths of the States? Whether the amending power is itself capable of being enlarged, is a question very important to be considered when we are considering the strength and stability of the Constitution; for it is an unlimited power, the system of the Constitution may be converted into almost anything that can command the physical force requisite to compel submission .- George Ticknor Curtis, in Harper's Magazine for

Panic at Hyde Park

Schanton, May 19.—The residents of Hyde Park, this city, are in an intense state of apprehension as to the safety of their property. Most of that section is completely undermined by coal mines, and indications of danger from subterranean convulsions have been experienced at various periods. During last night and this merning a number of fine properties along Scranton and Jackson avenues were badly shattered and the havoc extends for a distance of nearly half a mile. The cause of the shock proceeds from the Oxford mine, which was abandoned some years ago. Within ten years past many cave-ins have occurred in the vicinity many cave-ins have occurred in the vicinity where last-nights catastrophe took place. The scene was visited by hundreds to-day and the cave-in has caused fear and terror among the property holders. Three fine stores, owned respectfully by Michael Toohill, John O'Hare, Thomas McNicholas and Mrs. Gallagher, were badly shaken, and hifl, John O'Hare, Thomas McNicholas and Mrs. Gallagher, were baily shaken, and workmen placed huge props against the walls to prevent the buildings from falling into the street. A planing mill and the adjacent buildings, owned by Joseph Ansley, were twisted out of proportion, and house belonging to John Walsh and a man named Stell have been rendered unfit for occupancy. The track of the Lackawanna and Bloomsburg railroad has sunk at the Scraney. The track of the Lackawanna and Bloomsburg railroad has sunk at the Scranton avenue crossing, and much inconventence will doubtless result. Large gaps have opened in the street, and wagons are in danger of tumbling in. The water in the wells and cisterns has disappeared. At least fifteen well ogitivated gardens are cut up with fissures. It is feared that greatest damage will ensue, and many residents in the endangered districts are hurriedly preparing to seek more comfortable quarters.

The fire was first discovered about half-Northwest wind blowing at the time, which fanned the flames to such an extent that they were soon beyond control and began spreading rapidly. Lawson's Machine Works, which were close to the car works, were soon blazing, and the authorities, seeing the Fire Department was unable to cope with the lames, telegraphed for asistance. The course taken by the fire was from the Susquehanna river bridge, on Front street to Broadway, the main thoroughfare, and on through the town, destroying in its way the Academy of Music, the Armory, the Presbyterian and other churches, the Adams and Philadelphia and Reading Express offices, Western Union Telegraph office, Philadelphia and Erie passenger depot, the Miltonian and Indepedent news paper offices, the gas works, all the hotels, banks, places of business, stores, factories, tanneries and workshops, rendering about fitteen hundred people homeless, most of whom that night had to sleep in the open air. Some, however, were provided with tents. The Reading Railroad depot and telegraph office, on the opposite side of the river, were not damaged. The Western Union men saved nothing but their books. A clear swath of about one mile long and a half to three quarters of a mile wide was itement prevailed. The citizens of Danville and Williamsport were first to respond to the wants of the people, a train containing goods reaching Milton from these points at telegraphed to the authorities of different cities asking them to furnish aid to the o'clock, when the town presented the appearance of a sea of flames. Among the esidences destroyed were those of ex-Governor Pollock and the late Wm. Cameron, brother of General Simon Cameron. All the hotels in the town, except a frame building, and all the churches, except the Episcopal, small edifice, and about 100 business houses were destroyed, many of which were large and costly. The churches were the Presbyterian, Baptist, Catholic, German Reformed Methodist, Evangelist, Lutheran and Covenanter, involving a loss of $100,000 in church property alone. The hotels were the United States, Huff House and Broadway, worth about $60,000. The most costly buildings destroyed were the car works and Reber's tannery, valued at $200,000. The inthe tannery $45,000. Altogether about 450 are the contributors: buildings, comprising two-thirds of the town, are in ashes. The insurance on these properties is about $500,000, representing one-third of the loss. The following named companies suffer by the fire. Fire Association, Franklin, North American, Pennsylvania, Girard and America, all of Philadelphia; Farmers', of New York, Mutual, of Danville; London Liverpool and Globe, Germania and Watertown, New York, and Lycoming. The latter loses nearly $100,000. Only three business houses of the one hundred in the town are standing and only one of any consequence-Wilson's fly net factory. The rolling mill and nail factory, two grismills and two planing mills, in the suburbs were saved. The Milton National and First National banks were destroyed and all the printing and newspaper offices. The property burned represented in value about fourifths of the entire Milton proper. A man named J. Augeny, aged about sixty years, was overcome by the amoke and heat and burned to death. He was found n an alley burned in a frightful manner He was an inmate of the Poor-bouse, Many of the families who have been rendered homeless are camping on Allen's Island Others passed the opposite the town. night in open fields and other exposed points The large number of sufferers are being about 6 o'clock. The loss is estimated at about $2,000,000. During the fire the bose of the Milton Steam Fire Company was burned. On Sunday thousands of people visited the scene of this terrible disaster. It was intended to run excursion trains but the Milton people requested the railroad not to Mrs M E Nuss, Mrs John Culp, Mrs Daniels do so, and they were abandoned, but nearly every body within thirty miles who owned a horse or could hire a livery, drove there. Mrs Dr W M Reber. On Monday morning in company with a number of others from this place we visited the stricken town. None of the reports of the fire have been exaggerated in the least. The town presents a sad spectacle indeed. No one seems to know what is to be done, but all seemed to look at the bright side, and to hope that business may soon be resumed. It will be a long time before Milton will be the pretty active, town she has been for ome years. We found men already at work cleaning up the debris, and several buildings were being erected for temporary use. A num ber of safes were opened by the owners and contents in most cases found to be in fair condition. Men were engaged in opening the bank vanits as we left. Among the losers is W. H. Smith of the Independent, formerly of this county. His entire stock of presses type, &c. was destroyed, and no insurance on them. His loss is $4500. He proposes to start up again in two freight cars, until be can do better. An abundant supply of provisions has been sent in from different points for the immediste necessities of the people, and are being daily distributed. Families who last week lived in fine style with plenty of this world's goods, are now compelled to go to the commissary for food. There is nothing to be bought, and many of them have no cooking utensils to prepare food even if hereof legally convicted in any court of they could buy it. Imagine Bloomsburg secord, forfeit and pay any sum not less than burned from Scott town bill to East street, ifty nor more than five hundred dollars, at and from Rock street to the rail road, and you will have some idea of the condition of

AID FOR MILTON.

On Sunday afternoon a person connected with the COLUMBIAN called upon the several ministers of the town and requested them to announce from their pulpits a meeting of the citizens to be held at the Court House on Monday evening to take steps towards the relief of the afflicted people of Milton.
