THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT. A CURIOUS ACCOUNT OF THE ORIGIN OF THE WELL-KNOWN NURSERY STORY. From the London Congregational Magazine.

As the occupations and pleasures of childhood produce a powerful impression on the memory, it is probable every reader who has passed his infancy day in an English nursery recollects the delight with which he repeated that puerile jingling legend, 'The House that Jack Built.' Very few, however, are at all aware of the original form of its composition or the particular subject it was designated to illustrate.

The Democratic party is now the only national party of the land. [Cheers.] It finds its supporters both in the North and the South, and expect to elect its candidates by electoral votes coming from each. France and England can be elected in no other way. Choose them for your President and Vice-President, and it will put an end to national strife, and the people of this whole country will be prepared to go forward as one people to the destiny that awaits them, of becoming the most prosperous and the most powerful nation that exists on the face of the globe.

Had the Democrats favored the rebellion as they are now falsely charged by the Republicans with having done, it must have been a success, and this glorious Union, with its present greatness and hopes for the future, must have perished from the earth. So far from the Republican party having put down the rebellion and saved the Union, it was the patriotic Democrats with Republicans who rallied to its support and that saved it, a thing which neither could have done without the aid of the other.

So long as America continued in the occupation of the aborigines, the order of nature was unbroken, but first disturbed. The buffalo and deer, the wild fowls and turkeys, furnished abundant food to the savages without serious encroachment upon the fertility of nature. In savagery life there appears to be no want of necessary destruction or of natural means of subsistence. It was reserved for the civilized white man to carry on a war against the bounty of nature, and to kill and destroy, without thought or study of those impulsive laws under which nature holds in its hand the supply of man.

The following is the interpretation: 1. The kid, which is one of the pure animals, denotes the Hebrews. The father by whom it was purchased is Jehovah, who represents Himself as sustaining His relation to the Hebrews as their God. The pieces of money signify Moses and Aaron, through whose mediation the Hebrews were brought out of Egypt.

The great strikers of the human system, the kidneys, are subject to a variety of diseases that Louis Kidney-Pill will certainly cure. THE WORD 'CANADA.' The origin of the word 'Canada' is curious enough. The Spaniards visited that country first in search for gold and silver, and find in some of the old maps, the name of the land, 'Aca-nada'—there is nothing here. The Indians, who watched closely—learned this sentence and its meaning. The French arrived and the Indians, who wanted none of their company, and supposed they were anxious to introduce them in the Spanish sentence, 'Aca-nada.' The French, who knew less of the Spanish than the Indians, supposed this inauspiciously recurring sound was the name of the country, and gave it the name of 'Canada,' which it has borne since.

Shrewdness and Ability. Hop Bitters so freely advertised in all the papers, secular and religious, are having a large sale, and are supplanting all other medicines. There is no denying the virtues of the Hop Bitters, and it is a pity that the Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability in compounding a Bitters, whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation. Dr. S. J. B. & Co., New York.
