The Democrats are proud of the noble character and integrity of their candidate for President against whom nothing can be said. On the other hand, the Republicans glory in the infamy of James A. Garfield and wish their accursed earthly arms were reaching to the stars to denounce that traitor to his country and his people. They do not admit that Garfield took $250,000 of the public money, and afterwards had the audacity to say, what are you going to do about it? Let every honest citizen show them what is going to be done about it.

War Vessels in Hampton Roads. THE REVENUE TO BEHOLD IS UNDESIRABLE TO PREVENT HANCOCK'S INMIGRATION. WASHINGTON, October 25.—The officers and crews of the half dozen iron-ore war vessels in Hampton Roads are somewhat annoyed at the delays Uncle Dick Thompson imposed upon them in the matter of the approaching fiscal year. The ships are at anchor detached from their several stations, and the flat has gone to the parallel that will take place until after the November elections. In 1876 the flagship Hartford of the North Atlantic station and several other men-of-war were ordered to Hampton Roads prior to the election. Two or three of them were ordered to Washington subsequently, and they remained in position to bombard the Capitol until after Hayes was peacefully inaugurated. It is a singular coincidence that a squadron of ships was should at the present time, and kept in position to render efficient aid to the party in power if an emergency similar to that of 1876 should occur.

A Republican who is in the immediate confidence of his party leaders recently declared to your correspondent that it was the intention of the leaders to surrender possession of the Government, no matter what the result of the election might be. He added that it was their deliberate purpose, if Indians had gone Democratic, to call the election of New York together and east the election of some of that State for Garfield and Arthur. He said that at least $500,000 was spent to carry Indiana.

THE VOYAGE OF THE MARSHALL, MICH. Will send their addressed Electro-Volts to the office on 20th day of trial, speedy guarantee. They mean what they say. Write to them with safety. Nov. 21-11.

SENATOR EATON ON THE TARIFF. Senator Eaton of Connecticut spoke in New York last Friday night, to a large audience. As he stepped forward to speak, he was hailed vociferously as "the man who voted against the Executive Commission." After having said a few words to the cheering throng, he turned to the audience to accept his profound thanks for their kindly greeting. He accepted it as the outpouring of Democratic sympathy for a public servant who had tried to do his duty. Although much excited by speaking, having spoken the day previous in Trenton, he could not resist the temptation to refer to the important question of the tariff. For many years an effort had been made to take this great economic question out of politics. It was to be done by a tariff commission, as was done in England, and it was said that all that was required to do this was to amend the Constitution to give the President of the United States, or that any one else, the power to create such a commission. "All that is required to make this commission successful is audacity and ability," he said. It was this that was required by the tariff commission, and it was this that was required by the tariff commission, and it was this that was required by the tariff commission.

Senator Eaton next reviewed Gen. Garfield's record in the Senate, and said that he was proud to have known him. He said that he was proud to have known him, and he was proud to have known him. He said that he was proud to have known him, and he was proud to have known him. He said that he was proud to have known him, and he was proud to have known him.

Garfield on Coal and Iron Taxes. How can miners and producers of coal and iron be expected to support and vote for a man who has placed his hands on the general Pennsylvania interest? See Congressional proceedings March 13, 1871, when the following joint resolution was passed by the House: "Be it enacted, etc., That hereafter, on and after the passage of this joint resolution, no tax or duty shall be levied or collected on foreign coal." During the debate of the above bill, March 10, 1871, James A. Garfield said: "But I desire to ask gentlemen whether, considering the axiom that the whole is greater than the sum of its parts, it is not better to have a single tax on the duty on coal, than to think it wise to perpetuate this tax, which is of so little value, either to the country or the Treasury, than it is to continue this duty on coal and iron to the injury of its repeal." By this act English coal is now selling in New York for $1.50 per ton, delivered, and Pennsylvania coal at $5.00 per ton delivered.

Garfield will not Answer. A representative of the National Press Association waited on General Garfield and asked him to answer a question of the association, these brief but interesting communications. "Why, in 1864, did you vote to reduce the tariff on wool from eighty to sixty cents per hundred?" "Will you explain the following extract from a speech delivered by you in 1869, and published in the Congressional Record of the same year? 'I am willing, as a compromise, to favor the reduction on railroad iron.'"

"What have you to say to a pamphlet circulated in 1872, and in which you are said to have introduced a bill, which you supported, instructing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay a rebate on the duty on wool, and to have no doubt and other articles which enter into the composition of the tariff?"
