The Cultivation of Grasses.

The different varieties of grasses are like the different varieties of apples and pears. Those that will do well in one locality or latitude will fail in another. For instance, orchard grass will do well say from Pennsylvania north, while even in Maryland and further south it will prove to be of no profit. We have known three tons and a half to four tons per acre to be obtained from three cuttings in the adjoining county of Montgomery.

This was many years ago, and it was continued to be cultivated for a long period and until the farm fell into other hands. It is the earliest of all grasses, and comes in well for the first spring pasturing. It does better in orchards than any other grass, hence its name. Where, however, the summers are hot and dry it is of but little value.

Now, as to Red Top or Herdgrass, in high northern regions it is a good grass, especially where the soil is very heavy; but in such soils as generally prevail in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, and most of the Middle States, it does not begin to compare with timothy. But timothy likes to be dry and warm. Indeed, it rarely begins to grow till the warm weather comes on, and those in our northern agricultural districts that depend on it would find their neighbors with red top, as a general thing, beat them "all hollow." Herein also has been the trouble with the South. They read our papers, note what grasses yield the premium crops; sow largely and fail. Then comes the story that grass will not grow in the South; and it is true of our grasses; but as we have recently noted, if only the right kind is selected, there is hardly a spot in our great country where grass will not grow. All that is necessary to be remembered is that grass—the grasses—is very fastidious. Its tastes are local. What is good for one region is no guide to the best for another. And this should be remembered not only by those who are actually experimenting with grasses in new countries, but by those of us who are simply readers of the wonderful results said to be had from certain kinds in other localities.—Germantown Telegraph.

The Rearing of Calves.

It may be laid down as a first proposition that a dairy farmer should raise at least as many heifer calves as are required to fill up the vacancies that occur year by year in his herd of dairy cows; and it is all the better if he has a few more than he wants for that purpose. Some people contend that three year old in-calf heifers can be bought for less money than they can be raised for, counting in the risk. This depends, however, entirely on the facilities a man has for keeping young cattle so as not to interfere with his milk pastures.

On all mixed farms it is commonly a simple matter enough to summer and winter young cattle so cheaply, that it is better to raise them than to buy others for the dairy herd, and many farmers find it to their advantage to raise them for sale when "on note," or to fatten for the butcher. Judiciously carried out, rearing pays very well, and heifers raised on the farm are commonly found more profitable to it in after life as milkers, than others that are raised elsewhere and purchased; besides which it is more than probable that rearing will always pay well, providing only that the stock is of good quality; for the demand for milk in our towns and cities is sure to go on increasing, and there will always be a brisk demand for stock of good quality for grazing purposes.

A careful breeder can but seldom buy dairy stock that will suit him as well as those of his own rearing. Those he buys may, perhaps, be as well bred as his own are in every respect, but if they are only as well and no better bred, they will scarcely ever do as well in the milk pail as those that have been reared on the farm.—Farmer's Union.

About Clover.

A Michigan farmer writes to the journal of that name, that he considers clover to the farmer of as much value as a fertilizer as a crop of corn for fattening stock and making manure. In an experience of forty-two years he has learned its value. He says when he wants to seed down a field of wheat, he waits until the ground is well settled at the opening of the spring, and the hard frosts are past, and then sows the seed, six quarts of clover seed and four quarts of timothy seed well mixed, then harrow in lightly and roll the ground. He sows one hundred pounds of plaster to the acre. In seeding with oats, the amount of seed is the same, sown after the oats are dragged in, but the ground is then rolled, benefiting both oats and clover.

Clover is the most profitable summer pasture for hogs; but the pasture or field should be divided into two or three lots, so that the stock may be changed from one to the other during the season.

Lawsuit Over a Sign-Board.

There is an old sign-board of the "Old Oak Tree" public house, over which a great fuss is being made in England. It has found its way to the Court of Appeal, after passing through bankruptcy and chancery. One might fancy an ordinary sign-board not worth this flurry, but this is not an ordinary one. It was painted fifty years ago by David Cox, of the Royal Academy, and is valued at £1,500. It represents an old oak tree, after which the public house where it hung in Bangor was called. The point at issue is whether a sign board is a fixture or a piece of furniture. It was seized as the latter, but the two decisions altered given go the other way.

The census estimates cover the acreage of improved land in the various States and gives its approximate value. But the water areas are not estimated. In a letter to the New York Tribune Seth Green, the noted piscieulturist, declares that every acre of the water area in that State is equal in value as a food-producing element to the land, when properly stocked with the inhabitants of the water. "I have become thoroughly convinced," says Mr. Green, "through years of investigation, that an acre of water can be made to produce as much food as an acre of land."

After deducting from the rations of a cow the food of support, which will be the same whether she gives much milk or little, the surplus will be converted into milk, and will determine the measure of profit to her owner. It is, therefore, desirable to make that surplus as large as possible. The last pound of food she can utilize will pay the best.

It has been discovered that three coats of paint do not keep a house any warmer than no coat at all, but people will hang to old prejudices.—Detroit Free Press.

A WISE DEACON.

"Deacon Wilder, I want you to tell me how you kept yourself, and family well the past season when all the rest of us have been sick so much, and have had the doctors visiting us so often."

"Bro. Taylor, the answer is very easy. I used Hop Bitters in time; kept my family well and saved the doctor bills. Three dollars' worth of it kept us well and able to work all the time. I'll warrant it has cost you and your neighbors one to two hundred dollars apiece to keep sick the same time."

"Deacon, I'll use your medicine hereafter."

GRAPE WINE FOR COMMUNION.

The superb quality and entire purity of Speer's Port Grape Wine, of New Jersey, and the success that physicians have had by its use, has induced them to write about it, and caused hundreds of others to prescribe it in their practice as the best and most reliable wine to be had. It is held in great favor for communion purposes, and said to be a cure for consumptives. For sale by C. A. Kleim, druggist, Bloomsburg, Pa.

IMPROVEMENT FOR MIND AND BODY.

For genuine merit there is no tonic sold that begins to compare with Parker's Ginger Tonic. As an appetizer, blood purifier and kidney corrector, it meets with astonishing success, and invalids finds its use promptly followed by renewed energy and vivacity, mental and physical improvement, and gradual restoration to perfect health. Lock's Mill's, Oxford co., Me.

Messrs. Morris & Ireland:

Gentss—On the 22nd of November, 1879, our spool mill at this place, 70x65, two stories high, was totally consumed by fire, in which there was a large quantity of spool lumber, spools and blocks, all seasoned. The fire burned for three and a half days, we had one of your safes in our mill and Tuesday morning I opened it, eighty hours after the fire. It was too hot to handle, being covered with burning blocks. Some time after it was opened and the contents were in a good state of preservation, not a book or paper being destroyed. I am satisfied with your safes and have purchased another, and can cheerfully recommend them to any one wishing to secure their valuables from being destroyed by fire.
Yours truly,

TREMENDOUS TEST.

Roasting Thirty Hours in a Bed of Red Hot Coals.

Corning, N. Y., January 6, '81.

Morris & Ireland, Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen—On the night of the fire in our village on the 26th ult., I had in use one of your No. 5 Safes. I am pleased to inform you, after the floor gave way it fell into the cellar, into a heap of burning coal, where it roasted for thirty hours. Our citizens and myself gave up the loss of anything being saved in it, on being taken from the ruins I was happily disappointed to find my cash, vouchers and other articles of value perfectly preserved. The combination works well now. I am satisfied your new and improved work, one of which, a No. 20, I have ordered of your agent to-day, will afford absolute protection in any fire.
Truly Yours, E. S. BANKS.

STILL AHEAD

Rochester, N. H., Dec. 30, '80.

Messrs. Morris & Ireland:

Dear Sirs—In the disastrous fire which took place in this town Nov. 26, the Morris and Ireland safe in my store was subjected to a severe test, being thrown into the cellar and a huge mass of debris piled upon it, and it was in the ruins some two days. I take pleasure in informing you that upon excavation it was opened without trouble and the contents were found to be undisturbed. I cheerfully recommend your safe and should I want another I should certainly give you the preference.
Yours truly, C. W. HOWE.

STILL ANOTHER.

From the Great Fire in Troy, New York.

Troy, N. Y., December 11, 1879.

Messrs. Morris & Ireland, Boston:

Gentlemen—After witnessing the charred books out of the safes you sold, also one of my own which was another make, I then was led to the hope of the best, in which I had deposited my books, which was in the fire over forty-eight hours, and had to be continually played on during Monday night, as it was completely surrounded with burning ruins and only got in the afternoon, on getting them into the rooms I found they were in a good state of preservation, not a book or paper being destroyed. I am satisfied with your safes and have purchased another, and can cheerfully recommend them to any one wishing to secure their valuables from being destroyed by fire.
Yours truly, DAVIS & CO.

THE GREAT
BOSTON FIRE.
JANUARY, 1880.

Morris & Ireland's safe Again Triumphant—Messrs. Alice, Kendall & Co.'s Large Safe Reveals Its Valuable Contents Intact, after being subjected to intense heat for one Hundred and Thirty Hours.

Boston, January 2, 1880.

Messrs. Morris & Ireland, Boston:

Gents—On the night of December 28, last, the building occupied by us at No. 51 Federal street, and which was four stories high and about 60 feet deep, caught fire and was destroyed, with all its contents, consuming it nearly to ground of paper, books, &c. Your safe was in the midst of the flames. While several other large buildings adjoining ours were burned at the same time, the flames were extinguished the following day, but our stock continued to burn for over three days. After a delay of 36 hours we were able to have our safe dug out from the ruins and opened, and were pleased to find all the contents well preserved. The safe contained our most valuable books, papers, bill-ies, etc., and we know from the interior heat it was subjected to during the 130 hours it was in the ruins, we decided to do after knowing the wonderful record of your safes in the great Boston fire of '72. We regard the protection of your safes as perfect as fire-proof can be, and this fire is a guaranty of its assertion to those who may wish to purchase.
Yours very truly, ELDE, KENDALL & CO.

Also a Communication from Ex-Governor Alex. Rice.

Boston, January 2, 1880.

MESSRS MORRIS & IRELAND.

Gents: I have made careful examination of the contents of the safe you loaned us, and now some years since by the firm of Rice, Kendall & Co., and which was subject to the test of enormous heat in the great fire of last Sunday night. I regard the security of the safe under the circumstances as most remarkable. None of its contents were burned, nor were any of them so injured by heat as to be materially damaged. I should commit any securities to your safe hereafter with additional confidence. With great respect, yours very truly,
Alexander H. Rice.

THE LATEST YET.

BUT THE SAME RESULT.

So Sprucewoods, Me., Feb. 1, 1881.

Messrs Morris & Ireland, Boston Mass.:

The safe I bought of you last October was in a two-story wooden building, which burn ed Jan. 25. The building took fire in the night, and the safe in the building and its contents, fell into the cellar upon a pile of dry wood, making a hot fire which lasted for ten hours. The outside of the safe was red hot. It melted the iron bolts and fluid off the door. The contents consisted of watches, jewelry, silver ware, books, papers &c., all of which came out in good condition. Papers lying against the inside of the safe were not injured. The safe leaves for itself what it is, and I feel well satisfied with what it has done. Please write what you can allow for it towards a new one, and oblige,
O. F. HALL.

ELY'S CREAM BALM
Having gained an enviable local reputation, displacing all other preparations in the vicinity of this discovery, is, on its merits alone, recognized as a wonderful remedy wherever known. A fair trial will convince the most skeptical of its curative powers. It effectually cleanses the nasal passages of Catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions, allays inflammation and irritation, protects the membranal linings of the head from additional trouble, completely heals the sores, and restores the sense of taste and smell. Beneficial results are realized by a few applications. A thorough treatment as directed will cure Catarrh. As a household remedy for cold in the head it is unequaled. The balm is easy to use and agreeable. Sold by druggists at 50 cents. On receipt of 50 cents will mail a package. Send for circular, with full information.
