The Republican organs are beginning to admit that General Grant's views of the duties and responsibilities of public officers, are narrow and contemptible. When did he ever hold contrary opinions ? Nothing in his public life has ever shown.

The Louisville Courier Journal rises to remark that "There is no longer a particle of mystery about Grant. As long as he kept his lips closed as the "Silent Man." he could make an impression. Having now become one of the most garrulous of mortals, the innate littleness of the man leaks out copiously."

Ex-Senator Dorsey carried the state of Indiana for the Republicans last fall, so all his friends proudly claim. The very high toned men of the party gave him a dinner as a sort of acknowledgement of his services in corrupting the politics of the country.
