POETICAL. "WHEN EARTH WAS YOUNG." In days of old, when earth was young, When heroes lived and poets sung, A spirit dwelt in every tree, And voices of decay were free, Spoke in the murmur of the sea, In days of old, when earth was young, But now the earth is growing old, The trees are withered and the sea, And voices now are mute and dead, Are hushed for fancy's self-made feud, The clouds' fresh faith pays its death fee In all to some divinity; But shines are cold, and auras bare, When hearts are worn with age and care, And dancing spirits will not flow, To turn in ought they cannot so. —Edward M. Huntley.

IN TWOS. Somewhere in the world there lies A golden grain, but where it lies I know not, but I know that it lies, Save that it is in happy two's, And that it is in happy two's, But from every man's hand it flies, Leads a pathway straight and true, And man's hand never can be true, Who has this grain, his life is true, Then they seek the golden grain? Never seek so long as this, Never doers so many a feat, As for those who come in pairs, Round and round the globe they go, Not a single pair they have, Not a single pair they have, So the two go through the day, Who is not in all the lines, But has heard a song or sigh, Or another garden gate, Or a new pair of shoes, Or a new pair of shoes, When he wanders, knowing not, "Five-and-twenty" his the air, With a silver coin in his hand, All about the started pair, Papper left the garden gate, Clever heart to lead the pair, Still a note, falls the light, Low the motor, and far between, Till, at last, as in the pass, Look on the path, and there you know, One again at hidden gates, Stand the two; they enter slow, Golden gates of fifty years, May our two year light press! Golden of the sunset land, Hold their darest happiness! Then a quiet walk again; 'Twas a quiet walk the night; Then one stepping on the air, Then two to the light, —Boston Transcript.

SELECT STORY. THE BARONESS' JEWEL BOX. A STORY FROM THE GERMAN. The Baroness Rukavina Eltz was the most splendid and distinguished personage in the city of Vienna. Her husband, a great nobleman and a great soldier, had died in the prime of his life, and she, a Hungarian by birth and a Roman by marriage, seemed to unite all the brilliant characteristics of both these picturesque races. She was a widow to begin with, and since the annual man has speculated upon the varieties of the angel woman, a widow has been pronounced the most amiable variety of the species. She was very beautiful, tall, slender, blue-eyed, black-haired, piquant, red and white, with the most delicate profile; her hand and foot were models, although the latter was frequently stamped when she was not pleased. She was—in the third and last place, as preachers say—very rich, and had fallen heir to two collections of jewels which were almost fabulous in their brilliancy. A brilliant creature, the Baroness. She owned villages and vineyards, and made a large income every year from her sale of Ruster, which had full and peculiar a flavor as she had herself. The Baroness sent her wife to Vienna, where it was fashionable and more equal to Tokyo. Of course, she had suitors; the beautiful, sharp, Russian, came from Transylvania and Hungary, from Austria and all the German Principalities; and for the unimpaired splendor of her jewels, she had suitors from all the countries of the East, from Persia to the Indies. The ancient Egyptians knew when an cat was the most to be honored. One of the greatest troubles of our people is weakness of the stomach. As this is the cause of indigestion, nervousness and rheumatism, they prevail in almost every American household. There is positively no need for anybody to suffer from these painful troubles who can buy a 50-cent bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic; for this superior medicine always cures the stomach and nervous system, and keeps the kidneys active in carrying off the foul matter, thus leaving a good foundation for perfect health.—V. The house fly can only see a distance of thirty-eight feet, but that never bothers him any. He always manages to keep within thirty-seven feet of everything. BABY SAVED. We are so thankful to say that our only was permanently cured of a dangerous and protracted irregularity of the bowels by the use of Hop Bitters by its mother, which at the same time restored her to perfect health and strength.—The Parents, Rochester, N. Physicians employ Speer's Fine Grape Wine in their practice in all cases where a pure wine is called for, and do all in their power to foster and encourage its production; for the reason that pure Fort Wine is a difficult thing to get, and they are loth to prescribe a doubtful or inferior article. Hundreds of New York doctors have visited Speer's vineyards, and twelve miles from New York, and examined and tested the wine. For sale by C. A. Klein, druggist, Bloomsburg, Pa.
