Poetical. THE WAYSIDE WELL. He stopped at the wayside well, Where the water was cool and deep; There were feathery ferns 'twixt the mossy stones, And gray was the old well-sweep.

THE UNCHANGEABLE DEAD. They change not, though the world to ever change; In memory still they live, the dear ones gone, While others die, they seem to fondly linger, To cheer our pathway as we wander lone.

THE LAST CABINET DAY. A special correspondent of the Philadelphia Times in Washington writes as follows, under date of August 22nd: A long residence in Washington proves the sad fact that "court life" at the capital of a republic is precisely the same as in a monarchy, except in the change of its decoration as the time to accomplish results is so very brief that the odious process becomes more patent and less care is taken to hide all the art and skill practiced by the parasites who surround the Executive and who change his nature in a very brief time unless, like "old Hickory" or Abraham Lincoln, he cannot be veneered by his surroundings because the identity is too strong.

THE LAST CABINET DAY. In proof of the above assertion the writer will give the readers of The Times a description of the last day at the White House before the attempt was made upon President Garfield's life. It was Friday, the 20th of July, in the annual of this administration. It was the first day of July, hot and sultry beyond description. The breeze which swept through the open doors of the Mansion came like the breath from an open oven. The spray from the fountains turned into steam in the ascending flight and reminded the beholder of boiling geysers in a volcanic plain. Inside the White House a crowd had congregated to improve the opportunity of the last chance before the President should depart on his summer tour. Both branches of Congress, army, and navy, Governors of States and Territories, with all the odds and ends of humanity all unknown to fame, were collected in an indescribable whirlwind kaleidoscope. At times the stairs leading to the "throne room" would be turned into a cataract, but instead of animals in the water it was humanity.

THE LAST CABINET DAY. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For all Female Complaints. This preparation, as its name signifies, consists of Vegetable Principles and has been found to be invaluable. up the stairs. Thank heaven, he has gone. A moment later and a prominent Governor says: "Garfield never knows what that man is bringing about!" Stand aside! He's little, but how he can sting! It is MacVeigh—a Scotch chief. The tartan plaid, bare legs, and bluish apron, round, broad, and compact as a bullet, with the characteristics of Scotland which mark him as surely as the furze that each season adorns the heather. American-born generations may stand between him and his ancestors, but he is no more changed than an English walnut would be, transplanted to the Western continent.

STILL THEY COME. Square, heavy-rigged, sitting low in the water, bearing down under full sail, determined to reach the port in time, this is Secretary Kirkwood. His clothes are thin and heavy, but more shaggy-looking than cloud-like. He perspires! One is reminded of great drops of rain pattering on a shingled roof, only the noise must exist in the imagination. White from the sun and the old straw hat, he turned away with a sigh: "Nor could coachman or footman tell why the master stopped in his ride that day. To drink at the wayside well."
