THE TOWN PUMP.

In the motion to continue the preliminary in anction restraining the removal of the pump in front of the Central Hotel, the Court re fused the motion, and filed the following OPINION.

If the pump in question was not in the highway, the agreement of 1811 between lot wners, to sink a well at their joint expense on the lot of one of them would have been valid, and an attempt by either to cause irreparable damage, by the filling up of the well or otherwise destroying its usefulness would be good ground for the exercise of the restraining Kuhn, the now owner of the lot opposite to Rev. Enos. Balsley, Muncy, and the Rector, which the well is located, was a purchaser for termining the rights of the parties. But if the pump is placed in a public street, without authority of law, whether he had notice of the agreement of the lot owners or not at the time of his purchase is wholly immaterial, inasmuch as he could not be bound to continue the existence of an obstruction in the highway prejudicial to the rights of the public.

The main street in the village of Blooms burg, now called Second street, had become highway before the sinking of the well under the agreement of 1811. The parties to that agreement knew the fact that a town had been laid out, bounding lots on that street. Wheth er it had become a highway by dedication by the owner of the land in laying out a town plot in 1801, or earlier, or whether it had bee laid out by authority of law does not appear But it does appear by the old map of the town that the street ir laid down on the plan and that lot No. 45 opposite to which is the pomp, bounds upon it on the north. It was rec ognized by the parties to the agreement as highway, by agreeing to sink a well therein calling it in that agreement, "the main street o said town" At that early asy no doubt a well thus lo cated was a convenience to the adjoining to owners and to the neighbors; and for all pur poses of the case it may be considered that so continues to the present time. If it is in contemplation of law a public no sauce, the contract to crect it is of no binding force, and its abatement cannot be restraine because of the benefits it confers upon a portio of the citizens. In Commonwealth vs. McDon ald 16 S. & R. 394, Judge Duncan uses the fol lowing language: "The distinction between public and private rights is quite ratural Every man must look to his rights; but in the case of public rights, where no individual has a prior right or interest distinct from his fellows, where he can bring no action for public nuisance, acquiescence, silence goes for nothneighbor. That is, what is every one's concern is ro one's corcern, and therefore it is that length of time is no answer to a public prosecution for a public injury, as it wisely is to a civil action for a civil right." "Unless where there is a limitation to prose cutions by statute there is no limit." The doctrine of that case was fully reasserted and concurred in by the Court in Rung vs. Shoneber-ger 2 Watts 25 et seq.

If an obstruction in a highway was co-exist ent with the dedication to the public and had continued time out of mind, the party claiming the benefit of the encroachment might put hi title on the ground of prescription. But where the evidence establishes that the highway existed before the obstruction was placed in it, and fixes with certainty a time subsequent to which the obstruction was first created, the application. The continuance of a nuisance is the ere ion of a new nuisance. A nuisance whether public or private may be abated by the party aggrieved so that it is done peaceably. 3 Blk Com. 5. So one who has been a party to the continuance of a nuisance and therefore him self liable to a prosecution, may abate it without the consent of other parties who had before assisted him in maintaining it-

At the time when the well in question

I am of opinion in this case, that the damage to the defendants by permitting the pump remain, will be equal to that sustained by either of the complainants if it is removed. And as at present advised, I am of opinion that both complainants and defendants render themselves liable to prosecution by the continuance of public nuisance. By refusing to continue the injunction, we do no more than to refuse to interfere by the member of the legislature, and a member of strong arm of the law, but leave the parties of the public. It is said that to doubt the propriety of granting a preliminary injunction is to determine against issuing it. I do not think this case so clear in favor of the complainants as to justify the continuance of the injunction heretofore granted.;

On Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, a business meeting was held, at which reports of committees were presented, officers elected for the ensuing year, and the preachers and essayist appointed for the next meeting. Lock Haven was chosen as the place and January 10th, 1882, as the time of the next necting. The Convocation then adjourned for divine service at half past ten o'clock, This service consisted of the Holy Communion and a sermon on the "Unity of the Church" by the Rev. John Loudon. In the afternoon at three o'clock a discussion was held on the "Revised New Testament," the leading part in which was taken by the Rev. Dr. Hopkins, who thought the new in many respects better than the old, though not perhaps destined to be universally received. He made the point that the Church of England was the Keeper of Holy Writ more than any other, as the old version was her work under King James the First, and the movement for a revised version was initiated and carried to a successful completion under her supervision and control. On Wednesday evening at seven o'clock a missionary meeting was held with reports from missionaries and missionary addresses This Convocation is one of the largest in the Diocese of Central Pennsylvania, under the jurisdiction of Bishop Howe. It embra ces the following ten counties: Lycoming, Clinton, Centre, Tioga, Potter, Northumberland, Montour, Columbia, Union and Snyder. There are three other Convocations in Bishop Howe's Diocese named respectively, the Reading, the Harrisburg and the North Eastern. "The clergy resident in each o ing. No man wishes in such a case, to single these districts who are entitled to seats and votes in the Diocesan Convention, together with one Lay delegate from each Parish, shall constitute and be a Convocation therein." The promotion of missionary work and of church extension within its own bounds, is the chief object of each Convocation. Besides this, the triennial meetings of these bodies are beld in high estimation by the clergy as affording a short relief from the routine of parish work and giving opportunity for the interchange of thought and for the forming of closer ties of friendship among themselves. The parishes in which the meetings are held are also sought to be benefitted by creating a more general interes in the Church. Parishes as well as individ uals are disposed to be selfish; and it is to enlarge the parochial vision by letting the people know something of the Church bedoctrine in regard to prescriptive rights has no youd the limits of their own parish, that the Convocation exists. It creates a sisterhood of parishes and thus by a community of zeal and interest, of thought and feeling advances the growth and strength of the gen eral church. Convocations thus become embryo diocese and are creeted into separate diocosan jurisdictions, whenever they become numerically and financially strong enough to be separated from the parent diocese. There is a movement on foot at present for the division of Bishop Howe's diocese, but it is still pending and awaits the decision of the Diocesan Convention in June next at Mauch
