The Blooms burg Journal last week donned new dress and presents a very neat typograph ical appearance. The paper has changed its form and is now a twelve-page sheet, quarto size, with a large additional amount of reading matter. The publisher has procured a new press as well as new type and the Journal is now a very pretty paper.

a great deal more. The springs and streams are very low and should cold weather set in before they are replenished, farmers will have great trouble in watering their stock. There is probably no danger of such a distressing event, but the year 1881 has been so peculiar that almost anything can be expected.

A large delegation from this county will atand the Northern Montour fair next Thursday, leaving Buckhorn at as near seven o'clock band will accompany the party and the Execucultural Society will also go. All who intend to visit this fair should be on hand at the time and place mentioned and make the procession as large as possible. It is probable that there will be an immense crowd. The famous Ringgold band, of Reading, will be one of the attractive features, and many persons will visit the grounds merely for the pleasure of listening to excellent music.

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER.

The Seneca Falls Reveille says: "The editing of a country newspaper is no light task, as many are led to believe. The sunshine was of brief duration on the second day of the fair. Clouds of ominous blackness rolled up and covered the sky and heavy showers fell at intervals. The roadsoon became muddy, and the grass too wet to walk upon with comfort or safety. It began to look as if, for the first time in the history of the Society, the weather would spoil the exhibition and most of those were exhibitors and proprietors of booths. In the evening, however, the wind shifted to the West, the air grew cooler and the clouds dispersed. Friday was a perfect October day, clear, cool and bright. At an

All the stalls were occupied and there were enough entries to have filled many more. Farmers are evidently taking more interest in raising blooded stock, than they have heretofore.

The display of poultry was not extensive There were some immense turkeys, a few ducks and chickens. James Shaffer exhibited a fine assortment of fancy pigeons and A. Solleder had pigeons and Golden Seabright fowls. The agricultural machines were many and various-the best we have ever seen. They were handsomely painted and shone resplendent in brilliant colors and polished metal.

M. C. Sloan & Bro., had on exhibition tw beautifully finished buggies and a platform leasure spring wagon. They were fair samples of the excellent work always done by this firm. Mr. M. C. Sloan is a farmer as well as carriage builder, and carried off the first prize

Henry S. Reav deserves a word of praise fo his elaborate display of paints. The numerous cans were arranged with good taste and produced a most creditable effect.

The exhibits of fancy articles, embroidery, fine needlework, (so interesting to the ladies next Wednesday evening, October 26th. The and so wholly beyond the power of any newspaper man to describe intelligently,) were not only numerous but were said by competent judges to be better in quality than had ever been exhibited on any previous occasion. This we are disposed to believe because hosts of fair inspectors were always to be found in this department feasting their eyes on the novelties displayed.

Mr. David Lowenberg exhibited China and spanese wolf robes, buffalo robes, suits for children and adults, overcoats and wearing apparel generally. One of the overcoats merits special mention. It was of very heavy, vie most creditable to the maker. Yetter had the Ithaca pianos and organs, and the Domestic sewing machines. Some of the braiding, embroidery, quilting, &c., was really wonderful, and was as beautiful as anything of the kind that ever came under our notice. Gomer Thomas, of Danville, had a large assortment of pianos and musical instruments. and a crowd was always to be found at his stand listening to the playing of diff-rent performers. Very good music they furnished, and the audience was apparently gravified.

The display of fruits was not large, but the samples exhibited were of much better quality than was to have been expected in so unfavorable a season. The jellies, preserves, pickles, &c. were the best for years and received the places, the mare got the pole, with Lem second praise they richly deserved.

In some of the departments the exhibits were never larger nor better, and the total number is greater than last year's. The buildings were all in good or der, as were also the grounds. There was such a liberal use made of circulars and hand bitle, that on the last day, the grass was literally covered with paper which drifted about at the caprice of the wind and disfigured the grounds There was no lack of minor amusements of fered to the people. Booths abounded and at them could be obtained cardies, the inevitable pink lemonade, peanuts, pop corn, cigare. tays, oysters and coffee. No intoxicating liquer was sold. An immense business was done in toy balloons and nearly every one of the hunup the editorial heart. The labor bestowed on dreds of children on the grounds, was equipped with a pink or bine rubber bubble. The effect produced by the fleating of these bright bits of color was very striking and, added to the various hues of ladies' attire, made a perfect kaleidoscope, when viewed from the towering height of the judges' stand. In addition to the booths just mentioned, there were places where you could shoot at a mark with parlor rifles, or throw base ball-at wooden heads set at a conenient distance. The prize offered for knock ng down a bead was a cigar, and one dollar i hree were struck in succession. So tar as we observed, nobody carried off the dollar. The Buckhorn band was engaged by the So ciety to play during the four days of the fair, and did their duty conscientiously and acceptably. Whenever a race was announced, the band proceeded from the band stand to the amphitheatre and discoursed divers airs, between the heats, to keep the people in good humor and oblivious of time. In compliance with the programme made by the Society, there was a grand cavalcade of stock on Thursday morning. The inclemency of the weather deterred many from visiting the grounds and comparatively few persons had a good view of the animals—as the stalls are so narrow that the occupants cannot be seen to advantage. In the afternoon there was a foot race, which was easily woo by Michael Clark, of Centralia. The first trotting was for the county purse of $50-first horse $25, second $15, third $10. For this there were the following entries: W. W. Sutliff's Dexter.

Jos. Knelly's Bird. J. C. Mensinger's Brown Pat.

J. S. Blue's Sorrel Bob. The latter won in three straight heats, but a protest was entered, and he was ruled out. Dexer was awarded first money, Brown Pat secmule race announced for the afternoon did not

The first thing on Saturday's programme was the prize for female equestrianism. This fell through, as for some reason or other the ladies did not come to time. A foot race not on the programme, was made up to fill the vacancy caused by the non-appearance of the coucariennes and the non-performance of the mar riage ceremony, which was postponed on account of the sickness of the would-be bride. Three young men entered for the race: Mi chael Clark, of Centralia; Tom Hirst, of Ashland, and John Johnson, of Catawissa. The distance was one mile. There was more ex. citement over this race than at any of the preceding horse trots. Clark took the lead at the start and maintained it until coming near the home stretch on the second half mile. Hirst, who up to that time had run a waiting race, and kept a few feet behind Clark, lapped his competitor, and then passed him, coming under the wire about a dozen feet ahead. The time nnounced was 5.04.

In the draught horse contest two teams competed, one owned by Jacob S. Martz, the other by Wesley Bowman. They drew 5500 fbs. of pig iron on a stone boat. Mr. Martz's team was decided to have pulled with greater steadiness and received the first prize.

The programme closed with a free for all race; for a purse of $185; $100 to first horse, $60 to the second and $25 to the third. NOTES.

Incredible as it may appear to the people of Bloomsburg, it is nevertheless a fact that numbers of people who live in the upper township of the county, refused to attend the fair on account of the small pox, which loathsome disease they firmly believed was epidemic here. Really, there is not a case in town.

Despite the rainy weather of Thursday, we are pleased to know that the Society not only met their expenses, but realized some profit. The receipts foot up $2800. The up train on the L. & B. R. R. on Fri day night, consisted of ten cars and all these were crowded with passengers. There is a steady increase each year in the number of visitors outside of the county, to our fair. There was a good-bumored but noisy crowd in town on Friday night. Far too many in toxicated young men were to be seen on the fair grounds, both Friday and Saturday. An inusual amount of liquor was drank and much of it by mere boys, who very plainly showed the effects of their indulg-nce. The police had an easy time on the grounds as the large crowd was very orderly. Not a fight or disturbance of any kind occurred, so far as we have knowledge. The hotels did a lively business on Friday The Exchange was crowded to its utmost ca pacity, the bed rooms were all taken and numbers of guests had to content themselves with and, and Bird third. No time was taken. The with one set of hurgry men and women, and

W. H. Giger, a barber of Catawissa, while prossing the track during the colt race on Friday, was struck by the wheel of a sulky and knocked down. He was not nuch hurt, but is somewhat sore from his tumble. The little daughter of I. S. Kuhn was run over, near the entrance gate, and it was at first thought by those who witnessed the occurrence that she was seriously injured. The horse's knee struck her and she fell between the wheels, turning a complete somersault. Fortunately, she was not struck by the hoofs, and was only stunned and bruised. She was able to walk home, and bears no marks of her adventure except bruise on her forehead. Considerable indignation was expressed at the earelessness of th young man who drove the horse. He should have been more watchful in passing an en trance gate, through which crowds were entering and departing.

In the intervals between the heats of the rac m Friday, a merry crowd of young fellows af forded much amusement to the crowd around the stand. The hardest-worked officer of an Agricult ral Society is the Secretary and on him depends to a greater or less extent, the success of a fair Mr. Fred, B. Hartman is entitled to praise for the energetic and intelligent labor he gave to the affair, and may well feel satisfied with the result. He was always polite and obliging and ready to furnish any information desired, no matter how many demands were made upon him. It is unavoidable that there should be some failures of plans in such exhibitions, but there were very few last week, and none that materially affected the public enjoyment. We, n common with many others, are indebted to Mr. Hartman and to the other officers of the Society for many courtesies and for facts that could hardly have seen attained without their aid. That there was money enough to pay all expenses and leave a balance on hand, although one day was practically of no account finan cially, proves good management, and the offi cers are to be congratulated upon the very satisfactory condition of affairs.

There was a commendable absence of squab ding and quarreling at the races this year and there were neither harsh words nor angry feelings on the part of the judges or horsemen Mr. Caspar Rhawn was the orator of the board of judges, and it was agreed by an unanmous vote, that as an extempore speaker he possesses merits far above the average.
