

The Columbian.

BLOOMSBURG, FRIDAY, DEC. 2, '81

Before this time last year, five inches thick was taken from the river, and boys were throwing snow balls.

Rev. Mr. Strunk of the Reformed church preached an excellent sermon in the M. E. Church on Thanksgiving day.

The preparations for Christmas have already begun and there are whispered conferences and mysterious movements in scores of households, suggestive of gifts to be made.

Our boy and girl readers will be sorry to learn that the prices of candies of all kind have been advanced. Such is the fact—and just before the holidays, too.

The boilers at Lockard's coal shops are to be inspected on Monday, in a thorough manner, to ascertain whether any repairs are necessary.

The Hughesville Enterprise was in error in stating that Meyer Brothers had purchased the pharmacy in that town. A gentleman named Brittain was the purchaser.

No trouble to give prices and show goods at the People's Drug and Book Store.

The new dress of type on the COLUMBIAN's local page is one of our most welcome exchanges.—Berkley Independent.

Just received, another invoice of Christmas and New Year presents from New York and Philadelphia, at the People's Drug and Book Store.

A party of hunters from Benton went to the woods last week and returned with three fine deer and a fox. Mr. Boyd McHenry, one of the party, shot two of the deer.

The regular monthly meeting of the Gospel Temperance Union will be held in the Presbyterian church on Tuesday evening next.

A meeting of the directors and officers of the North and West Branch Railway Co. was held in the office of L. E. Waller Esq., last Monday.

For SALE—A three-horse power steam engine and boiler, in good condition. Suitable for running a printing press or other light machinery. Inquire at this office.

A number of young men of this town have organized a debating club, and meet every Thursday evening in the Y. M. C. A. rooms, Hartman's building.

HOW SLOW! HOW FAST!
The great system renovator is Bunkel Blood Bitters. Try it and be convinced. Price $1.00, trial size 50 cents.

Some of the yard-hands at Lockard's coal works struck for higher wages last Friday. The firm declined to make an advance and some of the strikers returned to work at the old rate.

Telephone communication has been established between Williamsport and Pittston, a distance of 110 miles. Conversation is carried on with little difficulty, the words being heard with great distinctness.

The London Ladies' society through the public the importance of breathing through the nose in damp, cold, or foggy weather. It is nature's respirator and protection to the delicate.

Venor, the weather prophet, is beginning to feel more at ease. We have reached the season in which it is quite safe to predict cold weather, and hit the truth nearly every time.

Poems—Tennyson, Longfellow, Shakespeare, Moore, Scott, Byron, Burns, Campbell, Ingelows, Hood, Spenser and Milton in cloth or morocco, at the People's Drug and Book Store.

A very pleasant entertainment was given at the Normal School last Friday afternoon. Declarations and compositions were interspersed with musical selections in a most agreeable manner. There were many visitors present and all expressed gratification.

Prof. S. J. Pealer and M. W. Belding, who were hunting on the North Mountain a few days ago, shot and killed a white deer. Deer of this color are rare and this, it is said, is the first ever killed on the mountain.—Shickelmy Echo.

Small pox is spreading rapidly all over the country and appears to be of an unusually virulent type. Bloomsburg is happily free from the dread disease, but every precaution should be taken to prevent its obtaining any entrance again.

"Signs of a severe winter" are now being brought out. The sportsmen who bag wild ducks say they have never known these birds so plentiful, to be so thickly and heavily feathered. Ducks, especially, are loaded with a mass of down under the feathers.

We do not wish to show our own horn but everybody acknowledges our Holiday Goods to be the finest and largest line ever brought to Bloomsburg. Call and be convinced at the People's Drug and Book Store.

The order restraining boats from running on the Pennsylvania canal on Sunday has been revoked for the season, in order that the boats may be enabled to reach their destination before the canal is frozen up. Quite a number were running Sunday last.

We would advise those of our farmers who are holding potatoes in expectation of a rise in price, to dispose of their stock at present rates. Already there has been a fall in the price and the chances are that before long, sixty and perhaps fifty cents per bushel will be all that can be obtained.

Judge Walton recently made a decision at Wellsville, that if a pensioner gives his wife his money, and the latter deposits it in a bank to her credit, the amount cannot be attached by the creditors of her husband. This decision has been appealed from, however, and will come before the supreme court.

Thanksgiving day passed very quietly in Bloomsburg. There was a general suspension of business and the churches were well attended. Thanksgiving is a family holiday and there were many social reunions and much consumption of turkey and comestibles. No disorderly proceedings occurred to mar the harmony of the day.

All ladies who wish to save money in Millinery Goods, will find a fine stock of ladies' plush and felt hats and bonnets and feathers all colors, wings, flowers, ornaments, velvets, satins and ribbons, for winter wear, all of which you can get at city cost at A. & H. McHenry's store, Benton. Produce taken the same as cash in exchange for any of the above.

On Thirty Days Trial.
We will send Dr. J. C. Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belt and other Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days to young men and older persons who are afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality, etc., guaranteeing speedy relief and complete restoration of vigor and manhood. Also for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Paralysis, Liver and Kidney difficulties, Ruptures and many other diseases. Illustrated pamphlet sent free. Address Voltaic Belt Co., Marshall, Michigan.

Oct. 28, '81-13

THE TREASURER OF THE Normal School at his office, H. J. Clark & Son's store, will pay coupons on outstanding bonds, including No. 15.

CERTIFICATE.
"I have used Bunkel Blood Bitters with great benefit for indigestion and constipation of the bowels."
C. L. EATON, Hamilton, Ont.

Price $1. trial size 50 cts.

Executors and administrators' account books, containing full instructions how to settle an estate, receipts, etc., for sale at this office. These are the most convenient books of the kind ever printed, and they are in use all over the State.

Stickshiny is afflicted with a gang of ringleaders, who on pay days, indulge in riotous and disorderly behavior. On the last pay day there was much drunkenness and fighting and several arrests were made. The Echo protests vigorously against the presence of these rowdies in the town.

T. W. Conner found that the store-room he occupied on Main Street above Iron, was too small for his largely increased trade, and has removed his stock of goods to the room hereafter occupied by S. H. Miller & Son, in Kuhn's building, Main Street. He will be pleased to greet his customers in the new quarters, where he will have greater space for the display of his goods.

No more small pox in Orangeville, but it has left me with a large stock of Fall, Winter and Millinery Goods on hand, which I intend to sell at ten per cent less than they can be purchased for anywhere else in the county, in order not to carry them over. So bring in your cash and secure the great bargains of your life.

Nov. 25-47
Mrs. Henry Gable, died very suddenly of heart disease at her home in Locust township on the 18th inst. She had just returned from a visit to Philadelphia and was apparently in good health. Her age was 68 years. William Yost, of the same township also met with a sudden death on the evening of the 18th inst. He was found dead in bed and it is thought, was seized with a fit and was unable to call for aid.

It is reported that the hog disease is spreading in this part of the State, and our farmers would be wise to look carefully after the condition of their animals. It is not very likely that any diseased meat will find its way to market, but possibly bad meat. Purchasers ought to satisfy themselves that the meat they buy is in all respects pure, as the use of a tainted article might be attended with danger.

People from the country will find it to their advantage to look at our stock before purchasing elsewhere at the People's Drug and Book Store.

By a recent act of Assembly, which will be found on page 54 of the Pamphlet Laws for 1881, all borough and township as well as State and county taxes, are made a first lien on real estate upon which they are levied.

The law provides for a lien docket to be kept in the Commissioners' office, and a new set of books will be required for that purpose. In case a judicial sale takes place, the lien docket is to be satisfied before any money is paid to the creditors. Collectors of taxes should inform themselves as to the requirements of the law, so as to guard against the penalties prescribed in the third section.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist congregation in Bloomsburg are engaged in a laudable effort to raise a fund for refurnishing their church. In the furtherance of their aim they propose during the winter to furnish a number of public entertainments.

They open the season with the appearance at the Opera House on Wednesday evening, December 7th, of Ralph Bingham, of Richmond, Va., the boy orator. The oratory of Master Bingham, who is only ten years old, is warmly praised by the leading dailies of New York and Philadelphia and our citizens can expect something instructive and entertaining.

The Scranton Republican of Monday last, states that C. P. Fowler has the small pox and is now in the pest house at that place. It further states that "Fowler came here from Bloomsburg, Columbia county, a few days ago, where he took particular pains to visit friends who had had the small pox and was even reckless enough to visit the pest house." Stuff and nonsense. Nobody in Bloomsburg has had the small pox for nearly two months, and there is not now, nor has there ever been, a pest house here. The publication of such statements tend to convey the impression that Bloomsburg is not free from the disease, and consequently, is not a safe place to visit. The contrary is the truth.

All owners of real estate should remember that under the laws of this Commonwealth all deeds and conveyances which are not recorded six months after they are made will be regarded as void and fraudulent against any subsequent purchaser, and hence it is of the highest importance that our farmer friends should examine their old deeds and see if the Recorder's certificate is indorsed upon them, with the time of record, book and page given. If the certificate is not indorsed the deed is not recorded. Persons having unrecorded deeds in their possession will have an excellent opportunity to bring or send them in at the next session of the county court.

Celidifol, Deatite and Buffalo sets in all colors, bottles for covering, wrap holders, at the People's Drug and Book Store.

The Wilkes-Barre Union Leader states that Col. John Jamison of Bloomsburg, was in that city recently and in speaking of the North and West Branch railroad, said the grade from Nanticoke to Catawissa would be completed by the first of January. In a further conversation the Colonel made the remark that Wilkes-Barre has now an opportunity to secure complete drainage at less expense than it ever can be done in the future—viz.: by means of a sewer that can be easily constructed of the North Branch Canal, which is to be filled up or covered for the new track of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. By this plan the cost of excavation would be saved to the city. Wilkes-Barre is the wisdom of the words that the people of Wilkes-Barre may well heed.

"A lady had the flesh eaten off her arm by scrofula. Could she see the shewings working. 'Lindsey's Blood Searcher' cured her." J. Ralston, Elderton, Pa.

The Mountain White Lead, Zinc and Color Works, of Rupert, Pa., have recently increased their facilities and put their mills in first-class working order and have secured the services of W. E. B. Davies, of Philadelphia, an experienced practical painter and manufacturer as Superintendent. They have no hesitancy, therefore, to guarantee all the goods equal, if not superior to any in the market. Their motto is "QUALITY THE FIRST CONSIDERATION."

They are now manufacturing pure ready-mixed and Pure Tinted Paste Paints from Pure Linseed Oil, White Lead, Zinc and Fine Colors. Car, Bridge, Ship and Road Paints, Dry, in pure linseed oil and ready-mixed, Pure White Lead, Zinc, Colors, Pure Linseed Oil, Putty, etc., etc.

If you need paintings of any kind, send for sample card and price list.

HENRY'S REAY, Rupert, Pa.

Oct. 7-24

"Indian Department," Washington D. C. I am anxious to introduce Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup among my Indians, having used it myself for several months, and think it one of the finest remedies I ever found. I assure you, it is the only thing that ever relieved me of a protracted cough, brought on by exposure while on the Sioux Commission last year.

A. G. BOOSE, Agent for Poncas and U. S. Commissioner.

Personal.
J. S. Blue, of the Exchange Hotel, has returned from his hunting trip in Maryland.

Agile Ricketts, Esq., of Wilkes-Barre, was in town on Wednesday.

Years. Charles Barish, C. M. Conyngham, Reuben Downing, Henry W. Palmer and C. S. Struthers of Wilkes-Barre, and Thomas Beaver of Danville, were in town on Monday last.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Elwell and Miss Maude Freeze are spending a few days in Philadelphia.

Mr. N. W. Barton of Weston, Ohio, is in town.

J. H. Maize Esq., was admitted to practice as an attorney in the Orphans' Court at Luzerne county, last week, on motion of Hon. H. B. Payne.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Sloan went to Simcoe, Canada, last week, to attend the funeral of Mrs. Sloan's brother, a prominent and highly respected citizen of that place. They returned on Tuesday morning last.

Mr. J. M. Belford, who has been in the office of the Good Hope Mutual Benefit Association, has accepted a position in an insurance office in Philadelphia and will be missed.

P. M. Traugh, formerly of this county, now residing in Minneapolis, Kansas, is here visiting friends.

A Course of Lectures.
Since the announcement in our last issue that "Bloomsburg should support a lecture course" we have learned that a committee had already been organized for that very purpose. We are informed that the "Bloomsburg Lecture Lyceum" under the management of C. C. Pascoe, President, John C. Youm, Secretary, and H. V. White, Treasurer, have secured talent for a course of lectures, to be opened Thursday night December 15th, in the Opera House by Eli Perkins, the greatest humorist of the age, in his double lecture, "The Philosophy of Fun" and "The Perkins Family." He will be followed on December 21st, (New Year's evening) by Col. J. P. Sanford in his popular lecture "The Old Times and the New." Wallace Bruce, Hon. Daniel Dougherty, and Gov. Will Cumbach of Indiana will follow in order. We are glad to make the announcement and trust the people of Bloomsburg may give such liberal encouragement to the plan as to ensure its success. If the course proves profitable as well as pleasurable this season, it can be repeated next winter and regularly thereafter, as has been done in Berkley. The Lecture Committee deserve praise for their effort to furnish intellectual amusement for the community, and ought to meet with substantial aid.

My Geraldine.
"My Geraldine" is not the best work of Bartley Campbell's pen, but it is a very interesting play, and was effectively presented by Mr. Power's company last Tuesday evening. There are many dramatic scenes requiring skillful acting, and these are agreeably relieved by light and humorous passages. The plot is cleverly drawn and well maintained through the five acts. Mr. J. F. Ward was as happy in his rendition of the character of Tolly O'Grady as in that of Higgins in "Dr. Clyde," although it does not afford as much scope for his peculiar abilities. Mr. Power did justice to the part of Phil Gardiner, as did also Mr. Caine as Malone and Mr. Wilson as Mr. O'Grady. Miss Carey as Geraldine and Miss Herndon as Mary Carroll were very acceptable emotional actresses and played their respective parts with taste and power. Miss Herndon is however somewhat staid at times. The other parts were rendered agreeably. The company is well backed and is above the average of traveling troupes. Their rendition of "My Geraldine" was the best dramatic effort of the season. The audience on Tuesday night was not so large as the merits of the company and play deserved. Should Mr. Power and his troupe pay us another visit it is probable that there would be few empty seats in the hall. So deserving a band of thespians should meet with substantial support.

Everything about Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh invites confidence. It is the prescription of one of our ablest physicians, and is prepared by one of the largest and most reliable drug houses in the United States.—Boston Herald.

Important to Fruit Owners.
We have been handed the following, says the Williamsport Sun and Banner, with the request to publish. The points here involved have been the source of quarrels and litigation from time immemorial. Two persons own lands separated by a line fence, which is common property between the two parties. One has an apple tree on his side of the fence, whose limbs overhang the fence of the other. Apples fall on either side. The question after asked is, Do the apples that fall on one's land belong to one or the other, or to both? This subject has been several times discussed, with some contradictory decisions and judgments, but the rules are now pretty well established. If the stem or trunk of the tree grows so close to the line that parts of its actual body extend in each other's owner can cut it down without the consent of the other, and the fruit is to be equitably divided. If the stem of the tree stands wholly within the boundary line of the owner he owns the whole tree with its product, although the roots and branches extend into the property of the other. There was an old rule of law that the latter might claim from the yield of the tree as much as would be an offset for the nourishment it derived from the soil, which is obsolete. The law gives the owner on whose land the tree stands the right to cut it down at his pleasure and to pluck all the fruit from it while it stands. In New York State the courts have decided that trespass for assault and battery would lie by the owner of the tree against the owner of the land over which its branches extended if he prevented the owner of the tree, by personal violence, from reaching over and picking the fruit growing upon these branches while standing on the fence dividing the lands. The owner of the land over which the branches extend may pluck the branches close to his line. He may so dig down and cut the roots square with his line, so long as the trunk is on his side of the line. In plain terms, if no portion of the trunk is within his line he may refuse all trespass of the tree on his premises, either above the ground or below it. But if he gives the tree license either to extend its roots under the soil or to hang its branches over his premises he does not thereby gain any right to its fruit. He must stick to his line, and if he interferes with the picking by the owner so long as the latter remains in the tree or on the fence which divides the property. This right to the fruit does not, however, permit the other to come upon the soil on the other side of the line to gather the fruit, and all the fruit which falls without violence to the ground on that side may thus become the property of its owner.

The skating season is at hand and already the lives of venturesome boys have been sacrificed by trusting to their ice. Parents should keep a watch over their children and prevent them from skating until the ice is of sufficient thickness to obviate all chances of disaster. Every winter, scores of thoughtless and reckless boys are drowned by venturing upon the ice too thin to bear their weight. The knowledge that the sport is dangerous does not deter them from taking the risks, and the only way to prevent them from running into danger is vigorous action on the part of parents.

Keep your family supplied with "Sellers Cough Syrup." Use it in time, you will avert bronchial and pulmonary affections. 25 cents, dec.

An Important Law Decision.
An important question has just been decided by the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of the appeal of Mr. J. B. Stark from the decision of the District Court at Williamsport. The suit involved a matter of some importance, and the decision, the plaintiff being the Second National Bank of Wilkes-Barre. Mr. Stark had indorsed certain notes, and the drawee having failed, proceedings were instituted against the indorser, who in defense alleged usury on the part of the plaintiff. The judgment of the District Court was against Mr. Stark, on the ground that a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had the right to issue currency under their charters and to charge discount rates ranging from six to ten per cent, and in some cases even a charge of usury could not be maintained against National Banks in Pennsylvania under the 30th section of the National Banking Act, as many of the State banks had