Poetical.

RECOMPENSE. BY CAROLINA PERCY.

The earth gives its treasure four-fold for all that we give to it.

The sun draws the sea to the sky, oh, stiller and strange of powers.

The mother rejoins her nest youth in the beauty and youth of her daughters.

We are fed for many long days by the bread that we cast on the waters.

Never a joy do we miss but we for that joy are the gatherer.

Never a labor do we grieve but we for the grieving are the reaper.

Never a slender so vile as the lip of the willing wanderer.

And curses, though long, loud and deep, come none to abide with the curser.

And who doth give a best of that best is the certain sower.

And who with a hand himself of his gaining the giftful labor.

The things that are sown for the dead bloom first in the heart of the living.

And this is the truth of truths, that the best of a gift is the giver.

PREPARING FOR THE FUTURE.

Yes, I am going to turn it, my picture, a blank into a daily gift frame.

Has been on my mind a long time, and I will not let it pass.

And one I have found, I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

It is a very good one, and I am taking; it is a very good one.

Tricks Upon Jewellers.

"Of all the tricks, devices, subterfuges, and deceptions I ever saw," said Jeweller Johnston to a reporter, "was one by which a sharp fellow stole from me three pairs of diamond earrings. He evidently knew when I was not in the store. He came in one day and said to one of my clerks: 'No,' was the reply. 'I am sorry for that,' he said. 'I wish to buy a pair of diamond earrings for my wife. 'This was repeated on four or five successive days. The last time he would not wait to see me, but would look at some earrings. The clerk showed him an assortment, and he finally selected three pairs, valued at $450, and said: 'I guess I will let my wife select from these. She will be at my store in an hour and will tell me to let Mr. Johnston bring these around himself, as he is acquainted with my wife. 'All right, sir; I will,' replied the clerk. 'By the way,' said the fellow, 'if you will permit me, I will write a note to Mr. Johnston. Certainly,' said the clerk, who showed him to a desk and pointed out where he could get paper and envelopes. He sat down, wrote a short note, folded it and put it in an envelope and directed it to me. Then he went back to the counter and said to the clerk: 'I think you had better put the three pairs of earrings in here and I will seal them up so that Mr. Johnston will be certain to bring the right ones. 'Very well,' said the clerk, who handed out the three pairs of earrings and the fellow drove them into the envelope before the clerk's eyes, and was apparently about to seal the envelope when he said suddenly: 'Oh, I guess you may put in that other pair, pointing to a pair which the clerk had laid on the shelf behind him. The clerk turned and took the other pair and handed them to the fellow, who dropped them apparently into the same envelope, sealed them up, handed them over and said: 'Let Mr. Johnston bring the four pairs to my store as soon as he comes back, giving the address of a well-known store in the vicinity. He left, and the clerk laid the envelope on one side until I returned. Of course we found but one pair of diamond earrings in the envelope, which was the last pair dropped in. The other three pairs were packed about the same size. The fellow had taken two of my envelopes, and into one had placed the three bogus pairs. When the clerk turned to get the fourth pair, the fellow had put the genuine in his pocket and substituted the others. We never saw him afterwards, but he had practiced the same game in other places. 'Of course the imperative rule is to not let goods go out of your sight until you get the money. The trick of having goods sent to hotels and boarding-houses with bills for collection is so stale that the clerk at home that the clerk had not the slightest suspicion. Of course the check was worthless, and we found that he had secured the desk privilege at the carpet store by pretending that he was buying a large stock of carpets among other purchases in the city. He fooled his fellow clerks in New York, and others in other cities.

One day a smart, foreign-looking, well-dressed young man called on a brother jew
