Seeding Land to Grass.

Probably nine-tenths of the farmers of the United States sow all their grass seed in the Spring, and usually can give no better reason than that they have al-ways done so, and their fathers before any means; so when he saw the admithem. Many of them do not know that ral's big coarse, ugly looking figure comany other season will answer for seeding. On the majority of farms in this latitude, August and September are better than spring, as a crop of hay may be obtained the following season, whether the grass seed be sown alone or with wheat or rye. I have sown grass seed with wheat in early September, on land not subject to heaving and have taken a good crop of each the following season. Clover seed will necessarily have to be sown in great strong hands twisted it around the porter's neck like a ribbon, so that the the spring, as the young plants are liable to winter-kill. When the frost leaves the ground in winter or spring, after seeding with or without grain, it pays to roll the field with a heavy roller, first sowing the clover seed. If the plants stand firm and well the smoothing harrow may be substituted for the roller. The roller, or harrow should be used as early in spring as the surface becomes dry enough to crumble. In many cases it is good policy to sow grass seed alone. For instance, one has a line of the roller, or this must be the terrible Count Orloff, of whose strength he had heard so much, and he fell on his knees to ask pardon. But Orloff only laughed, and told him not to be quite so ready to judge a man by his outside another time; and, indeed, For instance, one has a "run out" meadow, and wishing to keep it in grass, can plow down the sod as early in spring as possible to work it well, apply a good surface dressing of manure, harrowing it in well, making a fine seed bed, and on this sow the varieties of grass and clover seed desired. Usually a fair crop to have been made by a party of six of hay may be made from the land the | Spaniards while on a shooting expedition in early fall to good advantage. For instance, take sward land that hardly sowing it immediately to grasses, includ-ing clover, which will become well rootsward may be thus seeded, if done in August, (provided it be sufficiently fertile), and produce a good crop of hay the

On a clear day in winter, the shingles of build ings might have a coat of whitewash, which would preserve them many years, and though it would not render them fire proof, yet it makes them less liable to take fire.

With corn the best way to rid it o smut is to pass through it and gather and burn all the affected ears and stalks. In this way the many millions of spores are kept from being spread and continu-ing the pest. With the smaller grains, as wheat and oats, this method, though it is the most effective, would probably be impracticable. Though the remedy is not easy of application, it is a step nature of the trouble, and about this there is no doubt. > It is an easy matter to train a heifer to stand quietly to be milked, but it is easier to train them to jump, kick and run. The way to teach them to stand still is to require them always to do so. If there is naught to hinder a wild heif-er from running, and if her fears prompt her to run, she can and will run. If she cannot run, in a short time she loses her fear and stands from habit; and habit is one of the most powerful influences in this world for either brute or man. If you want to transform a wild beifer into a well-behaved and well-trained cow, you must be patient and exhibit no temper. Never strike her.
