The Winonas in Lock Haven. On Friday of last week a dispatch was eccived from Lock Haven inviting the numbers of the Winons Fire Company to participate in the celebration of the Fourth of July in that city. The invitation was accepted, and on Monday afternoon twenty seven of them left by way of Northumberland, accompanied by the Bloomsburg Cornet Band. Through the influence of a the stable of the Central Hotel, was W. B. Poust all the necessary arrangements were made for transportation, so that a special car was assigned to the party all the way through, and the Hose carriage was provided with a separate flat. At Williamsport there was a stop of about half an hour, during which time the Capital City Band of Harrisburg, which accompanied the Paxton Fire Company of that city, played a tune on the platform and were followed by the Bloomsburg Band, the latter receiving hearty applause. This little tournament gave our band encouragement, and from that time on they never played better in their lives. At Lock Haven the party was met by Messrs. Fancher, Brown, and other members of the committee of reception, and escorted to their head quarters at the Eagle Hotel. By this time rain had commenced to fall and the prospects for the parade on the Fourth were gloomy. The rain continued all night, and most of the time until noon next day, so that the was an imposing spectacle, there being nine bands, nine fire companies, fantastics, a number of other organizations, wagons epresenting the industries of the city, carriages with city officials, &c. The tramp through the mud was a hard one and the route was cut short on this account. At one o'clock there was a meeting at the that effect. I hereby deny all reports of Court House when the Mayor made an address of welcome to the visitors, but there were none present but the bands and firemen from Bloomsburg and Renovo. After supper the Winona boys with the band, renaded the Mayor, Judge Mayer, and other prominent citizens, all of whom made very complimentary speeches. At eleven o'clock at night the party started for home

Duty of the Town Council.

[Communicated, ] The act of 1851, Section 2, provides that the corporate officers shall have power, "To make regulations relative to the causand management of fires, and within such limits within the borough as they may deem proper to prescribe; . . to appropriate money for the purchase of

The law incorporating the town

fire engines, &c."

Bloomsburg, provides for three rates of taxation; the highest rate for the built up portion of the town, two thirds of the highest rate for the suburban portion of the town and one half of the highest rate for the agricultural portion of the town-The built up portion of the town is most exposed to danger from fires, and also against danger from fires as can reasonably be provided. When an Act of Assembly gives corporate officers power to do any act and to use the public money for such purposes, it signifies thereby that such is their duty so far as is reasonably practicable. It might not be the duty of the town council to build water works, or go to like extraordinary expense to furnish protection against fires, but where the citizens of the town by a stock company have already incurred such expense for the sake of such protection and the town authorities have once commenced to avail themselves thereof, it would be a clear neglect of duty on the part of the town council if for any private reason of their own, they should cause all protection against fires to be cut off. We say for any private reason of their own, because the water company by a resolution have offered to do whatever the town council may reasonably desire, to get the matter before the Court of fixing the price for fire protection, in case the town council would apply to the Court. But the town council at a meeting called for the purpose have refused either to agree with the water company, or to apply to the Court to have the price fixed. The public welfare therefore cannot be the real reason tor their action. Their reasons are private, but so far as the President of the council is concerned his reasons are generally understood and publicly expressed. He cannot trust the Courts, is one of them. He got justice once and cannot trust the courts again. So we have a case where notwithparade which was to have taken place at standing an ample fire protection already 10 a. m. did not come off until 2 p. m. It provided in our town, it is shut off by the sction of the town council; and the town in case of a fire is helplessly at the mercy of the flames without so much as a street sprinkler to haul water, or a place to haul t from. It is a clear neglect of duty on the part of the town council, and if persisted in it will sooner or later cause damage by fires. In such case would not the town be liable to pay the damage? Wharton on the Law of Negligence, page 1, defines negligence thus; "Negligence is the omission to do something which a reasonable man, guided upon those considerations which ordinarily regulate the conduct of human affairs, would do, or doing something which a prudent and reasonable man would not do." It might be argued that the duty of the reaching here Wednesday morning. The town council to provide for protection against fires in this case is discretionary, and they can do it or not, as they please. So it might be argued that their duty to ly. The following comments are clipped "regulate the roads, streets, lanes, alleys, ments, &c.," is only discretionary, for the "The Winona Hose Company, No 3, of act of assembly is the same in both cases; does it expressly require them to exercise that power. And there is no doubt but the town would be liable to pay damages if they should neglect to repair bridges, pavements, streets, &c., and horses or persons should be injured in consequence of such neglect. As the town council are not of the best, and at the lowest prices. willing to come into court voluntarily to have the price of fire protection fixed, there may be a fine opportunity in case of a fire in town to bring them into court against their

Orangeville Academy. Orangeville, July 3 1882. Mr. EDITOR.—It was our privilege to attend the commencement exercises of the Orangeville Academy, which began on Friday, June 30th, and we thought a brief account of them might not be uninteresting to your readers. Notwithstanding the blow which the Academy sustained when the small pox plague fell upon the town, and from which it is just beginning to recover, there were three members in the graduating class. The final examinations were held on Friday June 30th and were conducted by a committee which is appointed annually. We were not present at the examinations, but the chairman, Mr. J. E. Robins, reported that the committee had examined the graduating class, and also their papers of previous examinations, and, while they found few errors, none of them were serious and that in the opinion of the committee the members of the class could be graduated with credit to the institution. On Friday evening Prof. W. B.
