Unless it is the intention to haul away the heaps of dirt from the gutters, it seems useless to pay men to clean the gutters. The heaps are left until the first rain comes, when the dirt is all washed back into the street. This does not look like good management on the part of the street commissioner.

The mission held at Central last week attracted an immense number of people nightly. As the crowd was gathering one evening an alarm of fire was sounded and eight hundred people rushed pell mell toward Peifer's Hotel. The alarm proved to be false and was raised by some parties who saw large volumes of black smoke issuing from the rear end of the house. It was caused by the lighting of a wood fire in the kitchen.

It is a long time since we have published called the attention of subscribers to their accounts, and we ask indulgence only for a few words now. Statements will be sent out during October, in the papers, and we hope that all who receive them will promptly give them their attention.

Dallman, fish commissioner, for violating the fish laws. They were arraigned before Justice Maize, who, after hearing the evidence, discharged them all except David Hollingshead, who was fined twenty-five dollars, or allowed the privilege of appearing at next term of court by entering bail. He gave bail for one hundred dollars and will have a hearing before Judge Elwell at December court.

There was considerable excitement on the street on Monday night, caused by an attack made by Frank Brewer, on another colored man from Wilkes-Barre. As the latter was passing Kinports' drug store Brewer hurled a large stone at him, but missed the mark and the stone went through one of the heavy plate glass show windows. Brewer then drew a revolver and fired at his retreating foe, but missed again, when he ran down an alley and escaped. The difficulty is said to have grown out of an alleged intimacy of the Wilkes-Barre party with Brewer's wife. When Frank is captured he will probably learn that he took the wrong method of redressing his injuries.

Mr. Frank N. Turner, of Rendeville, Ohio, and Miss Ada H. Eschleman, were married on Wednesday morning, September 27, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Eschleman, on East street. A large number of presents were received.

By the act of the 24th March, 1817, all bets on elections in this State are declared null and void. By the act of 31 July, 1839, any person making a bet on an election or offering to make such a bet, forfeits three times the amount bet or offered to be bet, and all public officers and grand juries are required to commence proceedings against any person known to be guilty. It is also made the duty of election officers to reject the vote of any voter who has made a bet on the election or who is interested in such a bet, and it is made the duty of the Directors of the Poor to sue for and collect for the use of the poor of the proper district or county all moneys wagered on elections. They can recover it from either the stakeholder or the winner. See Purdon's Digest, volume 1, page 561.

Miss Bertha M. Hagenbuch of Orangeville, was married on Thursday of last week to Geo. A. Eriq of Williamsport. The wedding ceremony was performed in Orangeville at 9 o'clock in the morning by Rev. Charles E. Eriq, and it was an occasion long to be happily remembered by the friends and relatives who were so fortunate as to be present. The presents were numerous and costly. Mr. and Mrs. Eriq are now absent on their wedding tour, visiting New York, Philadelphia and other eastern cities, and will return a pleasant home, furnished by the groom's father, and near their place of business on Pine street, at the residence of the bride's father, held in high esteem by the people of her native place. Mr. Eriq is a member of the traveling register, sensitive of his father, John G. Eriq, the steam cracker baker, and his trade on the road precludes the young man an energetic business man.

The organ recital at the Mahoning Presbyterian church, Danville, on Tuesday evening, was a rare treat to musicians. The organ is a new one, presented to the church by Mr. Thomas Beaver, at a cost of $8,500, and is a noble instrument. Mr. D. D. Wood, the blind organist of St. Stephen's church, Philadelphia, was the performer, and he displayed his wonderful gifts to the best advantage. The programme consisted of selections from Mendelssohn, Beethoven, Handel, Bach, Rossini and other masters, and though rather heavy for a miscellaneous audience was greatly enjoyed by those who could comprehend it.

Sudden Death.

Sheriff Deegan, Sullivan county's candidate for State Senator, who was taken sick at the conference at Danville, died suddenly at Hughesville, Lycoming county, on the 24th while on his way home. He was sixty-three years of age, and for a number of years has been prominent in the politics of Sullivan county. He was a genial gentleman, and a good citizen, and his untimely death will be mourned by a large circle of friends through the State.

Interesting History.

The very beautiful and wonderfully cheap edition of "Green's Large History of the English People," which is published by the Useful Knowledge Publishing Co., New York, is most deservedly finding a place in thousands of home libraries. No history is better worthy of a place in even the smallest library, and, though formerly published by the Harper's at $10, it is now easily within the reach of anyone, the prices varying in the several forms, from $1.00 in one volume, octavo, cloth binding, to $2.50 in 5 vols. Elzevir edition, half Russia binding. It also forms a part of the Cyclopaedia of History which is publishing by the same publishers. For sale in this town at the COLUMBIAN store.

Peter Herdic in Trouble Again.

Mr. Peter Herdic has been arrested at the suit of David Reid and his wife, and taken before Judge Cummin, where he gave bond in the sum of $1,500 for his appearance this week, to answer the allegation of plaintiffs and abide further order of court. It is charged that Mr. Herdic got possession of a note for $1,000 made by George Luppert in favor of Mrs. Reid, and that Mr. Herdic got the note cashed and appropriated the money to his own use.

Ripe Tomatoes in the Winter.

It may not be generally known by farmers, truck patch owners, gardeners and others, but it is nevertheless a fact, that where there are vines still full of unripened tomatoes remaining in the garden, until the fall of the year when the frost comes, that if the vines are carefully pulled up by the roots and placed in the cellar or in the garret the green fruit on them will continue to ripen until all has matured, and thus instead of a great many tomatoes remaining in the garden and going to waste, for they will not ripen in the natural manner after the season for frost has come, you may continue to have ripe tomatoes until late in the winter season. The vines should be raised before the fruit is frost bitten. The dryer the place the more favorable to the ripening process.

A Hint to Teachers.

There are innumerable cases in which the failure to learn is not the fault of the child but of the teacher who does not know how to impart information. There are many teachers who spend most of their educational efforts on making the children sit straight, refrain from talking and in other respects conduct themselves with decorum. To enter a school kept by such a teacher is an insult to the mind of a reasonable beholder is that the children are placed with a view of having their photographs taken. When such a teacher carries such children through a recitation, it is as when a parrot is under training. The parrot follows with rigid exactness what it is told to say. So do the children. They receive merit marks for parrot-like recitations. In spite of this process, they sometimes manage to pick up a little knowledge.—Phila. Times.

Gas Explosion at Plymouth.

Last Monday the Dodson shaft at Plymouth was the scene of a disastrous explosion of gas by which two men, Thomas Cape, fire boss, and John Rake, miner, were instantly killed, and Henry Barnes, miner, seriously and perhaps fatally burned. It seemed as though Sunday night several breaches in the upper vein caved in, and next morning about 4 o'clock three more gave way. As a result of this the ventilation in that part of the mine was greatly impeded and the gas collected in considerable quantities. About 6 o'clock the fire boss entered the mine with a naked light and a fearful explosion followed, resulting as above stated. The explosion caused a further cave in, and about 10 o'clock a large strip of ground in the immediate vicinity of the breaker and along the line of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad sank about three feet, while for nearly one acre on each side of the track the ground was covered with cracks and crevices, reaching on one side almost to the main street of the town. Trains were delayed considerably, and it was not until 9 o'clock P. M. that they were suffered to pass without unduly delaying the passengers. One of the operators gave it as his opinion that there was no apprehension of further caving, as the sinking of the surface had not been gradual, but the whole space had gone down at once. The miners, however, are of a different opinion, holding that a cave in was liable to occur at any moment near the foot of the shaft. Much excitement was occasioned in the town concerning the accident, and hundreds of people rushed to the scene of the disaster, while around the breaker the men and boys employed there, collected in groups and speculated on the probable consequences. The accident is attributed to the carelessness of the fire boss.

Among the candidates for favor with the music loving world is the Ivers & Pond piano.

These instruments represent a lifetime of study and practical experience. Mr. Wm. H. Ivers, who has brought this piano to its acknowledged high state of perfection, is without doubt one of the most skillful and scientific piano makers in the country.

In 1847, he as a young man, entered the factory of the celebrated house of Chickering & Sons, and for twenty-five years held important positions in the various departments of that very successful house, thereby gaining a comprehensive and extended knowledge of piano making.

In 1870 he began business for himself, and the merits of his instruments were at once recognized. Wherever these Pianos have been introduced, they have made friends and found admirers, and have universally won the reputation for their great durability, the finish, tone, and other desirable qualities.

No better evidence of their merit could be given than that they have been selected for use in the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston, where they are made.

The management should purchase fifty Pianos of this make is conclusively evidenced by their confidence in the instrument. Had they entertained the least particle of doubt as to the durability or perfection of the Ivers & Pond Pianos, they would have acted more cautiously and purchased a few of these instruments for trial. But this was not the case; they were entirely satisfied that the Ivers & Pond Pianos were as really perfect as could be made, and having arrived at that conclusion, adopted them for use at their conservatory.

J. Salzer of this town is agent for these pianos, and has them on exhibition at his war rooms. From personal examination the writer is satisfied they are just what they are represented to be.
