A man who was a blacksmith by trade, but who possessed taste and fore sight, indulged in what might be termed "arbor day" fifteen years ago, and with axe and spade prepared and plant-ed two hundred poles of common white willow, on both sides of the road, about 40 feet apart. Nearly all grew, and they became year by year more attractive, and the once bald and open road has become an avenue where people rea ready and eager purchaser, whose choice was partly influenced by the the name of Willowdale to this once uninteresting spot.

Among the reports of such tests, is that by the Pennsylvania State College, of experiments perform-ed by Robert Tait, a graduate of the college, in which he gives the percentage of pure seed in the package (or unmixed with other seed), and the percentage capable of germinating. Nearly all the seeds examined were pure, mostly exceeding nine tenths, but the germinating power was exceedingly various. Some of the common grass seeds were among the best, red clover containing only one part of impurity in 499 parts, and 77 per cent. germinated. Timothy was nearly as pure, with 92 parts germinating. Kentucky blue grass, with about one-fifth impurity, did not afford a twentieth dogs'-tail, with scarcely any impurity, gave only one part in 66 capable of growing. It would seem from these and other results that the more care and other results that the more com-mon seeds being readily sold and sup-plied, are nearly always fresh; while the rarer kinds, for which there is little call by purchasers, are kept long on hand, or more or less mixed with good seed. Another proof of the correctness of this conclusion was the fact that lettuce and radish seed gave about nine tenths growing seed, while kohl-rabi, which is not much planted, contained more than four-fifths poor seed. But it must not be forgotten that in common, careless planting under clods, or in burying too deep, much excellent seed is pronounced worthless by unskillful farmers and gardners .- Cultivator.

The Egg Trade.
