Slavin's face fighting distance of victory, let alone was horribly mangled and for a time it was thought he would not recover. Cavanaugh was not in a much better condition, being terribly cut and bruised. Cavanaugh is the lion of the day among the Lish in the coal regions. Already talk is heard of training him for the professional ring. No arrests were made.

The 19th of the present month will mark the centennial of an event whose importance in the history of the coun try is, perhaps, equal in importance to the 4th of July, 1776. It was on this ratification of the treaty of peace, and the acknowledgment by great Britain of the independence of the American states. The two events are complement-ary; the one marking the period when the great design was determined upon, the other its successful accomplishment. It was for some time questioned which of the two dates was the more proper from which to date the existence of the United States as an independent commonwealth. Of course, patriotic enthusiasm naturally led the colonists to insist upon the earlier date. Certainly, the one hundredth anniversary of the day when the announcement was made that our country was recognized as be-longing to the family of natious deserv-

A prize fight occurred just outside the borough limits of Nanticoke on last Friday, between Tom Slavin, of Wanamie, and a man named Cavanaugh. A defiant challenge was made by Slavin and Cavanaugh accepted. There were twenty-two rounds fought, Slavin being knocked down twenty one times. When time was called for the twenty-third round Slavin lay prostrate on the ground bleed ing from his wounds, and he failed to come to time. His second immediately threw up the sponge, and Cavanaugh was declared the winner. Slavin's few.

Coming nearer they saw that the birds were not turkeys but eagles, bald eagles, too. As they came close most of them flew off toward the north and were hid by the timber. But six remained. Among these six was one which looked like Old Abe, the Wis consin war eagle. This one craned his neck as the two men passed directly under the tree where he sat. The men halloed, but neither this white headed veteran or any of the six flew off. Mr. happened to come back in a body.

The bald eagle is not entirely the noble bird that he is pictured by the poets. Truth compels the statement that he is by birth and practice a thief, and his principal source of support the fish-hawk, which bird he robs remorselessly. He will catch rabbits and other small game when he cannot find a fish hawk to rob, and when on the tramy and hard up will eat carrion. The bald aspiring Republicans to lay aside their tract system of Pennsylvania, and to eagle, it may be mentioned in this connection, is the bird of our country .-Sioux City Journal.
