It is learned from the Millouian that a Wednesday night last week, between one and two o'clock, a burglar entered the house of C. A. Godcharles, in Milton, by placing a ladder against the second story window from Front street. His entrance was not made noiselessly, as Mrs. Godcharles heard him and saw him make his way to the bureau. Before she could alarm her husband, who was soundly sleeping, the chief had rifled Mr. Godcharles' clothes of his gold watch, a very valuable one, and sum of money reaching over $200. When Mr. Godcharles awakened he followed in the direction of the thief to the window and saw him descend the ladder, while below on the pavement stood an accomplice of the the thief who pointer a revolver at him, and told him to withdraw his head or he would be shot. Thi request seemed reasonable enough and for the reservoir and pump house was was promptly complied with. The thieves then made off, up the alley in the rear of the Front street lots. They were heard by a number of parties as they made goo time on their retreat. This should serve as a caution to people who make national banks of their pants pockets.

How to get to Sleep

Prolonged habits of weakfulness often okes serious implement of the servous ystem. What may be done by the person imself, on awakening during the night in der to again induce skep ? The expedients our disposal, it must be admitted, are cordingly variable in their officacy, but tost of them are worth trying. A sense drowsiness is sometimes easily induced getting up and standing by the bedside atil one feels almost chilled and the bed is old. Another expedient is to wash the ad, neck and upper part of the body in d water-a lower temperature of the skin inducing a probably more active circulation of the blood to the surface and away from the nervous centres. I have found, says one writer, a bit of dry bread thoroughly masticated and eaten at this time to act almost like a charm in some cases, by drawing blood from the brain to he stomach, and thus securing sleep. Anyhing which serves to detract attention from one's self and surroundings may availsuch as saying the alphabet, counting one's respirations, repeating the multiplication table, and a multidude of similiar expedlents. An ancient monkish receipt selecting A Horse.

Many of our people know but very little bout the selecting of a good horse, and the following from the Turf, Field and Farm will prove of interest : In buying a horse, first look at the head and eyes for signs of intelligence, temper, ourage and honesty. Unless a horse has brains you cannot teach him to do anything well. If bad qualities predominate in a horse, education only serves to enlarge and intensify them. The head is an ndicator of disposition. A square muzzle, with large nostrils, evidences an ample breathing apparatus and lung power. Next see that he is well under the jowl. with jaw bones broad and wide apart un der the throttle. Breadth and fullness be tween the cars are always desirable. The eyes should be full and hazle in color : ears small and thin and thrown well for ward. The horse that turns his ears back very now and then is not to be trusted. He is either a biter or a kicker, and is sure be vicious in other respects, and, being aturally vicious, he can never be trained o do anything well ; and so a horse with a ounding nose, tapering forhead, and a road, full face below the eyes is always treacherous and not to be depended on. Avoid the long-legged, stilled animal-always choose one with a short, straight tack and rump, withers high and shoulders sloping, well set back, and with good depth of chest, fore legs short, hind legs straight with low down bock, short pastern joints and a round: mulish shaped foot. A Piece of Advice.

MESSES EDITORS .- As I read an article in A newspaper is new a church in wants fostering; then it can reflet credit on its location. Take your home paper. It rives some of his ideas as to sheep snots or stag gers the parasites that he thinks is caused through herbage is from a long fly that stings or lays their nits in the nose of the sheep. If the sheep is kept long in one place by watching them you can see the fly strike them, fly away very quickly and he sheep will run and rub their nose; the sound of the fly will make them run. As sulphur is death to insects, feed the sheep a teaspoonfull of the hard brimstone, o each sheep once a week. 2 or 3 doses not as a disagreeable duty : but as an inwill cure them. I have used it for a number of years and it has not failed. As well as in diphtheria it is a sure cure. For cattle it is the best medicine I have used. For yellow water and other diseases ariswatsel or rowl root, dose a large table spoonful of roots cut fine repeat the dose 2 or 3 days once a day. In more than 20 cases I have not lost. But there is one disease the name I can't give but the cow will swell at the navel and the milk will stop to flow in a very short time. A handful of polk root will cure it very soon. Now the idea of those parasites passing through a body thence in the herbs, thence through the stomach of the beast is all fudge ; as all flesh and the water we drink is made partly of living material therefore whenever the system gets diseased or the flesh dead then they work but not before. What I have written I can sustantiate and if you think it worth room in your columns it may save some man's stock, if he will try the medicines as above.
