DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.

The Democratic State Convention of Pennsylva nia will assemble in the Opera House, Allentown at 10 A. A number of the democratic district committees in this state have met and elected delegates to the S ate Convention. In nearly every instance they are instructed to vote for Samuel J. Randall for president.

The bill abolishing the convict contract labor system as fast as contracts expire became a law of Ohio on Tuesday. The new law will make a radi-cal change in the Ohio Penitentiary.

Col. A. K. McClure in a despatch to the Times says : The nomination of Samuel J. Randall on an acceptable platform would make a desperate contest in Pennsylvania, and would hold New Jersey, New York and Connectiout to the party.

Senator Mitchell in an interview last Saturday evening referring to the methods used to secure the nomination of Arthur by the Republican convention is reported to have said : "It is possible that if the President uses the power of his administration to control the representation from the Southern States he might be nominated against the undoubted wish of the majority of the Republicans of the country.

Democratic Harmony at Allentown-

From the Wilkesbarre Union-Leader, Dem. A Harrisburg correspondent of the Philadelphia Times guesses that there will be no factious contest at the Democratic State Convention; that Congressman Elliot will be renominated; that the convention will be largely for Randall; that a delegation will go to Chicago for Randall, with Wallace as one of the members, but that it will not be instructed for him, as Randall himself is committed against what is known as the unit rule by his action in 1876 and again in 1880; and that the Ohio platform, which is made up bodily from expressions of Jefferson, Jackson and Polk, is about what will be the view of the convention on the tariff. All the signs point with sufficient plainess to these probabilities to make it reasonably certain that each and every one of them will be fulfilled. And the great advantage of the situa tion such foreshadowing presents is its indication of entire peace and harmony in the ranks of the Democracy of

The Ex-Attorney General Threatens to Run a Saloon of his Own.

WILKESBARRE, March 18 .- A citizens' mass meeting held here this evening for the purpose of devising means of enforcing the liquor law, was attended by 2,000 persons who packed the largest hall in the place. Speeches were made by Robert Graham, A. R. Brundage, Rev. Woodruff and H. W. Palmer. Resolutions pledging support to the judges of the courts in reducing the number of licenses and enforcing the laws were proposed fifty prominent citizens were appointed committee to carry out the purpose of the meeting. Mr. Palmer in his speech said : The statement made by the Harrisburg Patriot that he was a theatrical temperance man was correct. He was politician enough to know that it was always best to get on the winning side, and if the 200 rum shops in Wilkesbarre are going to dictate to its 80,000 inhabitants he would start a saloon of his own. "For twenty-five years," he said, "every public official elected to office in this county had to bow down to the power of rum, and the time had come when political opinion should call a halt."

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

The city of Brotherly Love is never at its best at this season of the year. The streets are dirty, (though from general report that appears to be their contractors) and the weather up to this time, has been anything but agreeable. The stormy weather of the past few weeks has retarded the opening of the spring trade, and the business world is anxiously looking for clear and warm-er weather in the hope that its advent will set the wheels of commerce in motion. There is no scarcity of money, and there are no indications of hard times, and if the weather will only give business a chance things are und to brighten up soon.

Politics have not fairly warmed up yet for the Presidential campaign. Different candidates are talked of, but of course, no one can yet be named with any certainty. On the Democra-tic side are Randall, Morrison, Tilden, Hoadly, Payne and several others, though it is now understood that Tilden is out of the race, having posi-tively declined to allow the use of his name, on account of physical inability o go through with another such a campaign as that of 1876, when he was elected President, or of 1880, when the Watterson tariff for revenue only plank in the Democratic platform brought defeat to us. On the other side, Blaine, Edmunds, Arthur, Logan and some lesser lights are in the list, but where lightning may strike no one can tell. It looks now as though the Pennsylvania delegation to the two national conventions will be for Randall and Blaine, respectively.

Last Saturday evening I attended an xhibition of mesmerism at Assembly Hall by Prof. Carpenter. His perform nce was wonderful, if there were no collusion. After delivering a lecture on Psychology he called for volunteers from the audience to come upon the stage, and as they did not come fast enough he passed down through the crowd and by a few motions of the hand around the head, he apparently compelled any one he chose to follow compelled any one he chose to follow him to the stage. I say apparently, because I do not know whether they could help it or not. He didn't try me, so I am unable to tell whether the influence that he seemed to exert over were about twenty on the stage at one time, and the Professor made them do snything he commanded. The laying of the last rail of the Mexican road was attended with as much ceremony as was possible at the time. Two locomotives, one from the United States and the other from the city of Mexico, decorated with the American and Mexican colors, after the last spike was driven approached until the cowcatchers touched. It was quite a different meeting from that which took place not far from the same locality about two weeks more than thirty-seven years ago between the American and Mexican colors on the battle-field of Buena Vista. Had it been predicted at that time that a railroad connecting the two countries would pass not far from the field where their armies were then contending, it would have been regarded as a vagary of unbridled tancy.
