The Potato Crop-

A year ago at this time, potatoes were selling throughout New England at prices fully double their present larger number of acres planted last season than usual. The season proved favorable to the crop, and potatoes have been selling low, as an inevitable result. We find some of our cotemporaries advising their readers to learn lesson from the experience of the past year, and to give more attention to other crops, particularly corn, and let the potatoes receive less thought. Now it is true that the potato is an exhaustive crop to grow, as it returns very little to the soil, and in some loca-Ities its culture may have been carried to excess, because it is so easily turned into cash as soon as harvested; and in such localities it might be well to reduce the area devoted to it, but its cultivation should not be neglected because of the unusually low prices that have ruled the past season. The prohave ruled the past season. The pro-bability is that the present low prices will cause a great many to give up the potato as a farm crop, for this year at least, and that the next season's crop will bring much better prices. Those farmers usually succeed best who follow some chosen line through good seasons and bad seasons; then they learn how to do their special work in the very best manner, and they get the benefit of the occasional high prices, which are sure to rule every few years. There is far too much shifting from one thing to another among many of our farmers. They take up new things institute of the supplied with the cheaping to season to make a losing every just in season to make a losing every press and yellow pine of the states time, while if they would stick to a farther south. It may be accepted as a fact that soil supposed to be benefitted by fall plowing to prepare it for a potato crop s just the soil not to plant potatoes in In the first place, not one winter in five will so carry plowed soil but what replowing will be required in the spring. Soil for potatoes needs to be very fine and at least six inches in depth, which cannot be done by fall plowing alone. If the soil is cloddy, so that freezing and thawing are required to pulverize it, it will be too cold to profitably grow potatoes upon.

Remedy for Currant Worms. A correspondent asks us for a rem edy for the leaf pest of the current, saying that he lost last year a fine crop of currents by the sudden disappear ance of the leaves, which he discovered to be done by this destructive worm. We know not how often we have referred to the deprecations of this pest. Their operations are rapid, and unless their first appearance is watched they may do their work before one is aware of it. There are several remedies. We have used fine, sifted coal ashes, first sprinkling the leaves thoroughly with water, so as to reach the under parts, and apply the dust profusely, and repeat it once or twice if necessary, which may be the case. But there is nothing so effective as white helle bore, dusting it over as well as on the under side of the leaves, which never fails in destroying it. It can be had at the druggist's, and some general stores. The leave- should be watched to soon as they appear, as the worms as meThe Hard Wood Region

It is a disturbance of the balance between the several parts of the nervous system, brought about by the shock of a sudden or prolonged exposure to the depressing effect of "chill;" although the same physiological results may be produced in the organism by cold to profitably grow potatoes upon. It is a good way to plant as fast as the land is fitted and marked, and thus avoid covering the seed with dry soil.
