

SUPPLEMENT.

BLOOMSBURG, MAY 9, 1884

ITEMS.

Jay Cooke, whose fortune was swept away by the crash of 1873, is to-day one of the wealthiest men of Pennsylvania. He has investments in iron, coal, gold, and silver mines and railroads far reaching into the millions.

In the great go-as-you-please race in Madison Square Garden, New York, last week, Fitzgerald, beat all former records. He made 610 miles in 140h. 34m., and 49s. Rowell followed with 602 miles in 140h., 39m., and 39s.

A singular coincidence is related concerning the recent death of Dr. Vandell of Louisville. On the day of its occurrence he described the case of a patient to whom he administered chloral for angina. It relieved him for a few moments, but he then fell back in his chair and died. The doctor was himself, subject to angina, and a few hours later he had an attack, for which he took a dose of chloral. He, too, experienced a momentary relief from pain, but soon expired.

Workers in ornamental wood now assert that yellow pine, hard finished in oil, is the rival in beauty of any wood that grows, not excepting the costliest of the hard species, it being susceptible of polishing and maintaining as high a degree of polish as any known wood, while, when impregnated with oil, it is almost indestructible. In such a condition it is impervious to even hot grease and other substances that leave an ineffaceable stain upon white pine, maple and various other woods.

John Matthias Hollenback, of Wilkes-Barre died at the Exchange Hotel on last Saturday evening aged about 59 years. Mr. Hollenback would have been a man of princely wealth had it not been for his solicitous interest in the sufferings and errors of the poor and needy who never applied to him in vain. He was the only heir to a vast coal estate lying on both sides of the river between this city to Pittston. But as they were unproductive in the early life of their owner, he kept selling off parcels in order to meet expenses and in this way most of his property went from him.

Prof. Samuel D. Gross, the distinguished Philadelphia surgeon, died on Tuesday. His body was taken to Washington, Pa., for cremation on Wednesday. He favored cremation as being of the greatest benefit to the living, rather than having hundreds of bodies decomposing in the ground.

The address of the Bishops of the M. E. Church, delivered before the General Conference at Philadelphia contains the following statistics: There are 99 annual conferences and 14 mission conferences, 11,349 traveling preachers, 12,026 local preachers and 1,759,534 members and probationers, an increase during the last four years of 69,232. Since the last General Conference 654 traveling preachers have died and 58,891 members. The accessions to the membership number 158,787. In 1883 there were 18,741 churches and 9,815 parsonages, the total value of which is $79,238,055. There are 10 theological seminaries, 45 colleges, 66 classical institutes and 8 female colleges.

A Paradise for Gunners and Anglers.

The Chesapeake and Delaware Peninsula, comprising portions of the States of Maryland, Delaware and Virginia, contains a square area of six thousand miles, and measures about two hundred miles by forty. Within this limited surface, and distant only a few hours' ride from Philadelphia, Wilmington, Baltimore and Washington, are to be found the finest sporting and fishing on the Atlantic coast. So abundantly has this favored region been endowed by nature with game of every description that it is worthy to be called "A Paradise for Gunners and Anglers." Such, indeed, is the title adopted for his book by a writer whose work now lies before us. His description of the peninsula, and the advantages it affords to sportsmen, are carefully and accurately written, while the excellent engravings and maps with which his book is adorned add greatly to its appearance and value.

This essential code mecum of the sportsman may be obtained free by addressing J. R. Wood, General Passenger Agent Pennsylvania Railroad, Philadelphia.

Picturesque Washington.—The American public will welcome this beautiful new volume upon the capital of the nation. There are few places so frequently quoted, and turned to as Washington; yet comparatively few people know the history of the city, of the manner of conducting the business of government, the life of officials, or of the other characteristics of Washington life. Mr. Moore here tells all that people can wish to know on these subjects. In reading this volume one becomes better acquainted with the institutions which help make the American people a great nation, for while Washington receives special treatment by the author's pen, the machinery of national government is necessarily described. The work is very profusely illustrated. The typographical make-up of the book is exceedingly attractive, and the volume must meet with a wide and ready sale. J. A. & R. A. Reid, Publishers, Providence, R. I. Sold only by subscription.
