BLOOMSBURG, PA. FRIDAY, JUNE 27, 1884.

The Reading Times sees trouble in the fact that Cleveland is a bachelor, and remarks that Buchanan and Tilden were also bachelors. Both were elected too, it might have added.

The Democratic National Convention, to be held in Chicago next month, will be composed of 820 delegates but the eighteen delegates from the Territories and the District of Columbia will not be allowed to vote. As the twothirds rule will prevail in the Deniocratic Convention, it will require 585 votes to nominate the candidates for President and Vice President.

The Philadelphia Press is making an effort to obtain $20,000 from parties interested in a high protective tariff. With this money it proposes to pay itself for papers to be sent broadcast over the country during the cam-paign. We always supposed that the Press advocated a protective tariff as a matter of principle, but this looks very much as though it has adopted that theory as a money-making scheme

The Army bill, as amended in the Senate, appropriates nearly $300,000 more than the House voted; the Legis lative, Executive, and Judicial bill, as enlarged by the Senate committee, appropriates over a million additional Every appropriation bill thus far, if we rightly remember, has been increased in the Senate, the addition to the Navy bill being the greatest of all. The friends of the River and Harbor job are relying on this peculiarity of the Senate for adding several millions to that annual steal. Yet all these measares combined sink into insignificance compared with the Senate's proposed amendments to the Mexican Pension bill, which would take more than $300,-000;000 out of the Treasury.

Apropos of cremation, there are several interesting reports among the medical reports of the Imperial Maritime Customs of China. One states that children are sometimes cremated from superstitious reasons. Where several young children in a family have died in succession it is believed that if one is cremated the next one born will There is only one Buddhist temple in which the inmates are cre-The simple method consists in placing the body in a stone seat inside a small dome-like building, in the temple grounds. The interior of this structure communicates with the open air by a small door. Around the body a quantity of firewood and charcoal is placed; this is set on fire and the door is closed until complete combustion has taken place. The bones are collected and placed in a jar, which is kept in a mortuary chapel.

Every Democratic voter of this county is interested in seeing that the party nominations for county offices should be made fairly and honestly, so that no questions can be raised after the convention that may lead to dissensions, and thereby weaken the vote for President in November. To secure this result there should be a full attendance at the delegate election. It is too often the case that the delegate election is considered a matter of little importance, and many men will not take the trouble to go to the polls. Under the present rules of the party, the nomina-tions are virtually made by the people at the primaries, and the convention is simply the machine which declares the result. In this way a small portion of the party may make the nominations, whereas the candidates named should be the choice of a majority. A full vote and unbiassed expression of the people in the selection of delegates who cannot be tampered with, will leave no room for charges of corrup-tion of any kind. Let us try it that

In making a selection of a candidate for President the Democratic party must look at things as they are. They are confronted by an opposition ticket that is acknowledged to be a strong one, and one that will command the support of the great body of republi-can voters. This must be met with a candidate on our side who can draw out a full democratic vote. There are enough democrats in the country to elect a President, and wise action on the part of the Chicago convention will bring about this result. But it will not be wise to select a candidate simply because he can draw the vote of dissatisfied republicans, nor because he has been nominated by several other so-called parties. This would be a repetition of the Greely blunder of 1872, and it would undoubtedly meet with the same disastrous defeat. There are dissensions in the opposition, and it is evident that many influential republi-cans will not support Blaine, but when taken in comparison with the millions of voters of the country their number is so small that it would be suicidal to name a candidate at their dictation. Let the choice of the party be a sound democrat, with a clean record; let him be nominated on democratic principles, and placed upon a democratic platform. After that the ranks are open, and all those who see the error of their past political views, and who wish to support our candidate, should be welcom-ed with open arms. But it would be a blunder to name a man simply for the reason that the malcontents and sore-heads of the republican party could be drawn in by such a nomination. The democratic party can better suffer de feat than to sacrifice principle as a matter of expediency.

In May of last year, three months after her marriage, the three months after her marriage, the lady was taken violently ill, and after lingering for ten days, apparently died. There were certain peculiarities about the appearance of the supposed corpse, however, which caused a suspicion in the mind of the attending physician that his patient might be in a trance; but after keeping the body for four days, with no signs of returning life, the remains were consigned to the grave, temporary interment being made grave, temporary interment being made in the family lot in an abandoned graveyard. A few days ago the body was disinterred prior to removal to another cemetery. To the susprise of the sexton the coffin lid showed signs of displacement, and on its being removed the grave-digger was horrified to find the remains turned face down-ward, the hands filled with long tufts of hair torn from the head, and the face, neck and bosom deeply scratched and scarred, while the lining of the coffin had been torn into fragments in the desperate efforts of the entombed vicim to escape from her terrible fate. Since the discovery the young husband has been prostrated and his life is de spaired of. The names are withheld. Trades for Young Men-

The fact that apprentices are be coming fewer each year has become a fruitful subject for discussion. Some ascribe this state of affairs to the polcy of the trades unions and others to he unwillingness of the rising genera tion to engage in any occupation less "genteel" than that of a dry-goods clerk, or a book-keeper, or a vender of drugs and toilet articles. Parents are than that of a dry-goods largely responsible for the increasing lack of interest in the various trades. They fail to study the character of their boys, and, above all, fail to inculcate in their youthful minds a proper respect for the dignity of labor. Some people think they have done their whole duty when they furnish their children with the necessary books and send them to school. In truth their duty has hardly begun. In the first place the every-day life of the lad should be thoroughly familiar to his parents. If he manifests any special parents. If he manifests any special aptitude the parent should be on hand to see that it is developed. As it is, the average boy becomes his own master than the control of Lindley Murray, he is up and ready for the next jump. Let them address themselves to that question at Chicago, the tariff can abide awhile. The Causes of Poverty.

The reasons why the poor are always with us it might be worth while to inquire into much more carefully and systematically than has yet been In general the causes of poverder the society's notice. They are intemperance, ignorance, laziness and Nine-tenths of all the poverty was found to be owing to drunkenness, leaving the other tenth to be divided among the other causes. Only a very small percentage of real want was found to be due to illness or bad luck, notwithstanding these two causes get the credit of a great deal of the misery in the world. What was found to be true in Boston would doubtless found to be true the country over if the same care was taken to gather the statistics and analyze the causes.

The reader will say that there is nothing new in this statement and that everybody knew these facts before. In a general way this is true, and yet the presentation of the facts and figures is advisable whenever and wherever possible. The charitable associations in this city and the country over could do no better work than to collect statistics

Listen for Logan!

This is going to be a real lively cam-aign. The republican candidates aign. must divert the popular consideration from the numerous murky attach ments to the record of their ticket's head, Mr. JINGO BLAINE, as well as from a point or two perhaps in the history of their ticket's tail, JACK LOGAN. The means on which they most rely to do this is talk. There will be all sorts of talk, and much of it; lots of bluster and brag, of whoops and bullabaloo and eagle screams from BLAINE, and howls and yells, perhaps both Yankee and rebel, from Logan. The air will be full of the revolutions and fights of the past, and the possible and probable scrimmages of the future; and the ground will be strewn with the fragments of all the old Fourth of July or ations that have been brought out again to help give tone to the canvass, and have failed to stand the strain. Both the first and second Republican candidate will talk from end to end of the campaign, and the talk will be full of gush and expectation, and with little to say about the past. The past can't be

But the only speeches that will be at all worth watching will be Black JACK's There will be nothing cut and dried about them. Every one may know what he will say, but nobody, not even Black Jack, knows beforehand how he will say it. The regulation curves and channels of our native language are not those in which the tongue of LOGAN has been accustomed to travel; and though in his speech he may set for himself the same mark as the average man, he will be sure to move toward it over an unexplored and original road When he begins a sentence he leaves the well-worn grammatical track as a lofty tumbler spures the springboard, and like an athlete who has lost his "cut" in the midst of a double somer sault, he turns and writhes in helpless ness, grimly certain that he must come down sometime, but equally in doubt whether it will be on his head or on his beels. They have now four members of the United States senate, one each from the state of New York, Missou ri, Virginia and Florida. The whole energy of the Catholic church is now exerted to increase it power in the congress of the United States. The Papists everywhere are watching the result of Madigan's campaign in this district, and it will be halled everywhere as a great triumph for the Catholics, if a New England Protestant district sends a Roman Catholic to represent it in congress. PROTESTANT DEMOCRAT. This circular written by Mr. Blaine. and signed in a deceiving and untrue manner, according to ex-Governor Plaisted, was issued against Mr. James C.
