BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY, JULY 11, 1884.

Congress adjourned on Tuesday. We should be very glad to be able to deny the charge that whiskey is being distributed in demijohus in several townships, by Democratic candidates, for the purpose of influencing votes at the coming delegate election. That such charges are allowed to go undenied is a disgrace to the party. If it is not true, then let every candidate who is accused of this make an open denial of it in the newspapers; and if true, the respectable voters who can-not be influenced by a drink of whiskey should put the seal of condemna-tion on such methods by finding out who are doing it, and then by a big vote at the primaries, give the guilty parties the "grand bounce." The time has come when men should be put in office because of their qualifications, and those who expect to secure nomi nations by the free use of money, and by the influence of whiskey are liable to be disappointed.

In a speech to the Massachusetts delegation at Chicago, Ben Butler said that he would "support the nominee Butler, the several parties which have already nominated him for President will be placed in an awkward fix. Butler has accepted the nominations of the Greenbackers and Anti-Monopolists, and now pledges himself to support the candidate of the third party. He thus repudiates his own action in accepting these nominations, and it remains to be seen what the two organizations will do about it. If Butler is for the Democratic nominee, he cannot support But-ler, and he is therefore in the awkward position of being the candidate of two parties whose success he does not de-fire. Ben Butler is a political prob-lem, and his ways are past finding

THE CHICAGO CONVENTION

At 12.40 p. m. on Tuesday the Con vention was called to order by Chairman Barnum of the National commit tee. Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. D. C. Marquis of the Northwestern

Theological Seminary.

At the conclusion of the Chairman Barnum said:

"GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION:--HAPMO seems to be the sentiment of this convention; ever the air seems saturated with a desire and determination to nominate a ticket for president and vice president which will be satisfactory to the north and to the south, to the east and to the west; nay, more, a ticket that will harmonize the democracy throughout the Union, and insure victory in No-vember. No effort was made to nominate a temporary chairman in the interest of any candidate, but, on the contrary, one who shall preside over the deliberations of this convention with absolute impartiality. In that spirit and to that end I have been directed by the unanimou vote of the national committee to name the Hon. Richard B. Hubbard, of Texas, for temporary

Governor Hubbard in stentorian tones expres ed thanks for the confidence reposed in him by his election which he regarded as a compliment to the state from which he came, and which more than any other state, was cosmopolitan in every fibre. He would not attempt to speak the great history He would not attempt to speak the great history of the democratic party. Its magnificence, its progress, its power and its wealth, but that party in all essential elements was the same to-day as when founded by the framers of the constitution. Men die, but life and the principles of the democratic party could not perish from the earth, though their advocates might sleep for ages. He thanked God that the democratic party was as much an organized party to-day as ever it was in days gone by. The democratic party to-day had the house of representatives, and but for treason stalking in the senate chamber they would have that, too. [Great cheering.] They would have that, too. [Great cheering.] They had their presidency, too, but the robbers had had their presidency, too, but the robbers had stricken down their rights at the ballot box and in the very temples of liberty perjurers with pale lips and chattering teeth had stolen the fruits of victory from the democratic party. Wnat the Veto Ought to Have Contained.

A reference to the Army Register shows that Congress and the President have in no less than ten other cases concurred in doing the very thing which the President now says Congress has no right to do and which he thinks it would be improper for him to do—that is, in restoring to his rank in the service an officer wrongfully dismissed by sentence of court-martial. These cases are those of Surgeon General Hammond, Captain George A. Armes, Lieutenant Edward R. Clarke, Major Joseph B. Collins, Captain James B. Sinelair, Captain P. W. Stanhope, Captain Thomas B. Hunt, Major N. H. McClean, Lieutenant Lowell A. Chamberlain, Captain George T. Olmsted. Benedict Arnold's Vault.

IGHT LET INTO A SECRET CHAMBER IN THE OLD ARNOLD HOUSE AT NEW HAVEN.

An interesting discovery has been made by Thomas Alling at the old Benedict Arnold house in Water street. In taking out a portion of the garret loor he found a vault which is supposed to have been used by Arnold dur ing the war of the revolution as a hid ing place for suspects or fugitives whom he wished to befriend. The lifting of some of the garret floor planking revealed the pocket or vault underneath. It is about four and onehalf feet deep and six feet square, and is plastered on the sides. Two or more former staircase extending to a small enclosed space on another side of the chimpey. This place, which is now plastered up, is supposed to have been a sort of a closet. Whether Arnold used the vault for secreting Tories or the patriots, or built it to afford a retreat for himself, no one knows. That it should have remained undiscovered shows that it was well designed for the purpose which led to its construction.

Blaine Convicts Blame

HIS BOLD AND COMMENDABLE SENTIMENT CONFLICTS WITH FACTS.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Evening Post, in a series of articles in which candor and acuteness have kept even step, brings out very clearly the fact that Mr. Blaine told at different times two entirely different stories about his connection with the Little Rock and Fort Smith speculation. In other words, leaving out of sight alto-gether the question of his guilt or inocence of corruption in that business. his own statement and the testimony afforded by the letters which he ad mits having written convict him of de-liberate falsehood.

It will be remembered that the same thing happened in the case of several of the Credit Mobilier congressmen during the investigation that, curiou ly enough, was set on foot by Mr. Blaine himself. In their ignorance of the existence of Mr. Oakes Ames' memorandum book, some of the senators and representatives whom Oakes Ames had bribed, made sworn statements at the beginning of the investigation which were utterly demolished by the production of the record evidence a few days later. Then they were oblig-ed to change the defense. The wholesale denial under oath which had been the first refuge of the inculpated statesmen profited them nothing; in the light of the subsequent disclosures it simply added perjury to their load of

Mr. Blaine made the same mistake In April, 1876, when the report was first circulated that Mr. Thomas Scott had taken off his hands, for $64,000, bonds of the Little Rock and Fort Smith Railroad Company of the face value of $75,000, Mr. Blaine hastened o his feet in the house of representatives with a personal explanation. It was made on April 24, 1864, and it is printed on page 2,725 of volume 4, part 3, of the Congressional Record. Mr. Blaine then said :

"The absurd rumor has lately appeared in ce tain newspapers that I was the owner of from $150,000 to $250,000 of the Little Rock and Fort Smith railroad bonds which I received without ensideration, and that it was from these bonds toward the close of 1868, a company of Boston gentlemen, representing considerable capital, un-dertook its construction. In raising the requisite means they placed the bonds of the road on the New England market in the summer of 1899, offer-ing them on terms which seemed very favorable to the purchaser, and offering them at a time

In common with hundreds of other people in Ner England and other parts of the country, I bough some of these bonds—not a very large amount others paid. "I never heard and do not believe that the Little Rock Company—which I know is controlled by

If there had been any thing to conceal about it. I should never have touched it. Wherever concealment is desirable avoidance is advisable, and I do not know any bet-ter test to apply to the honor and fairness of a

After putting this noble sentiment into the form of an apothegm, Mr. Blaine summed up his denial : "Instead of receiving bonds of the Little Roc one except at the regular market price, and in-stead of making a large fortune out of that company, I have incurred a severe pecuniary loss from my investment in its securities, which I still retain. And out of such affairs as this grows the At the time when Mr. Blaine made garet A. Baker, Scott.

J. Fisher, jr., would ever see the light again, or that the memorandum of Mr. Fisher's bookkeeper, Mr. Mulligan, Frederick, Catawissa, Fisher's bookkeeper, Mr. Mulligan, would ever be produced for the information of a committee of congress. He therefore took high ground. The rumor that he was the owner of of $150,000 or more of these bonds was absurd. He had bought some of the bonds—not a very large amount-paying money for them precisely as every other investor did, and at the market price. Had it come to this, he demanded, that Nevin U. Fank to Sarah A. Petrikin, an American citizen was to be excluded from a perfectly honorable and open ousiness investment merely because he happened to be a representative in con-

"I have been treated with positive cruelty in re-800 first mortgage bonds. Of this whole amount of bonds due me I have received but $50,000 land grants, leaving $75,000 of those and $32,500 first mortgage still due."

It appears that the "absurd rumor" It appears that the "absurd rumor" as to the amount was about right. But if Mr. Blaine had paid in cash for his $157,000 of bonds, just like every other investor, and at the open market price, how was it possible for Josiah Caldwell and Warren Fisher, jr., to defraud him of his rights? How did it happen that the Boston, capitalists it happen that the Boston capitalists were in a position to treat the innocent and simple-minded legislator with

The answer is afforded by the mem random in Mr. Blaine's handwriting showing that he did not pay a dollar for his Little Rock bonds, but received them as a gratuity or commission; and further light is afforded by Mr. Blaine himself in one of the Mulligan

"Augusta, June 29, 1869." The maxim which Mr. Blaine laid down for the government of his relation with speculative enterprises may be slightly improved to fit his case "Where avoidance would have been advisable and concealment is urgently secessary, silence is the best policy until the memorandum books have all been produced."

Despatches from Decatur, Spring until Mr. Alling accidentally found it field, Shelbyville, and other places Central Illinois, report that a severe wind storm swept over Macon, Sanga mon, and Christian counties between midnight on Friday night and daylight on Saturday morning destroying much property. No loss of life was reported. In the neighborhood of Illiopolis, Sangamon county, several farm houses were badly damaged, barns and outhouses were carried away, and crops were ruined. Corn was beaten flat to the ground and blown into ribbons, and wheat in shock was blown away and levelled with the ground. The loss in Sangamon county as far as heard from, is estimated at over $100, 000. The loss in Macon county is estimated at $200,000. Christian county is said to have suffered severely, but no details are given.
