Fighting Insects.

Bulletin No. 9, of the Massachusetts Experiment Station, gives the following as the best means of destroying many insects that make havoc among the crops of the farm and gar-

Cabbage Flea. - The first insect of importance that appears is the small black flea or jumping beetle that attacks the cabbage, radish, turnip, etc. Dusting with Paris green mixed with 100 times its weight of plaster has proved an effectual remedy. Apply when the plants are wet and after every rain. The Cut Worm, of which there are several species, including the army worm, works only during the night, and may be destroyed by the same remedy as above. We advise a trial of pyrethrum powder mixed with five times its bulk of plaster as being more safe, although we have no positive proof that it will be effectual.

The Striped Squash Bug which has been so abundant for the past two seasons, is best kept in check by plaster and Paris green. For the family garden the safest and most satisfactory way is to make bottomless boxes, 12 hes square, and 6 or 8 inches deep, and covered with mosquito netting the plants have become tough and hard, is a sure protection.

Potato Beetle -Paris green extended with plaster, flour, or water, is the only cheap and easily applied remedy known at present, but great care must be exercised in its use, and especially in the place where the package is kept, that it may not get upon the food of animals.

The Cabbage Worm, the larva of the common white butterfly, may be easily destroyed. Hand picking, if begun before the first brood has passed into the perfect state, is effectual. rethrum powder mixed with five times its bulk of plaster and dusted into the centre of the leaves with sulpbur bellows is certain destruction to every one of them. The application of insecticides in liquids to the cabbage has not been satisfactory on account of the peculiar structure of the leaf surface which allows the water to roll off in drops and not adhere to any part of it. Paris green is unsafe to use after the leaves have become over four inches in diameter.

The Currant Worm should be de stroyed, while small, with the dust of hellebore or pyrethrum. The latter being perfectly harmless is to be more highly recommended.

Apple and Peach Borer .- For the destruction of these two insects no sure remedy has been found except the It is probable that covering the trunk of the tree near the ground with the ink or tar used to catch canker worm moths, or wrapping around the trunk bands of tarred paper, would assist in keeping them away.

The Rose Bug has thus far been the most difficult to overcome of the whole tribe of injurious insects, and we can to eradicate them is an important question. Could they at once be cleared out, and there be a probability of their remaining so, the farmer could go at them cheerfully, hopefully; but quite the contrary is the experience of all. Land that has grown nothing but timothy and clover for twenty years will produce a spontaneous growth of pignorduce a spontaneous growth of pignorduce as spontaneous growth of pignorduce growth growt produce a spontaneous growth of pig-con grass, rag weeds, pig weeds, etc., if put under the plow for a few years. Cutting the pests before they go to seed is the common remedy offered, but it takes a vigilance committee for each farm to do that, if all all weeds look is declared to be favorable, al-

hold crops, for the seeds in the fertilizer add to the labors of the farmers. we use manure upon the grass land and get the benefit of it in the increased production of hav, and also in the their grain crops. Year after year the the quantity shipped will exceed 2,000-plow is put upon the field, year after 000 baskets. The canning factories year a half crop is gathered, a great and evaporators have become a great amount of labor expended with poor factor in saving the shipments which compensation for investment. Soil glut the markets in large cities. Few needs rest-that is, rest from the proneeds rest—that is, rest from the pro-duction of such crops as sap largely its prices in the cities are low the fruit is primitive elemements.

Force of Habit.

A good story is told of a French lady well known in the higher circles of society, who happened to see, not long ago, a monkey beging pence from the public in the prettiest manner for the benefit of his master, an organgrinder. The Marquis took a fancy to it, bought it, dressed it in the gaudiest of raiment, and made it a pet. The lady, the other day, had in Paris a fashionable reception, and, of course, her pet was the wonder of the room. In the course of the evening a young lady sat down at the piano, and accompanying herself sang with exquisite as water, when tainted, will work the taste a little drawing room song. As soon as the lady had finished, the monkey, who, though now partially civilized, had not torgotten his former duties, sooners something near him that only a pure article is within reach of the cows. ed, had not forgotten his former duties, seeing something near him that reminded him of his old occupation, seized it and transformed it into a temporary hat and commenced a collection. The vocalist laughed, the Marquise looked vexed, but to the amusement of everybody, the animal went the rounds and collected a large sum. His task ended, he jumped upon the knee of the singer amid shouts of laughter, and deposited the contents of his hat in the posited the contents of his hat in the lady's lap. The collection was, of course, devoted to a charitable fund.

A Musician can Better Lose the Sense of

If I had to choose one of these two terrible calamities, deafness or blind-ness, I do not think I should hesitate an instant. The deaf are generally said to be less cheerful than the blind, but notwithstanding that, And notwithstanding the fact that loss of hearing would affect me in regard to that which has always been the source of my very keenest and deepest feelings—I mean music-yet, between being deaf and never again seeing anything one sufficient to decide the question. One and ailments peculiar to Women"must not forget that a musician can sensation of the sounds is necessary to make the impression absolutely complete, yet it is sufficiently strong to convey melody, harmony, rhythm, quality and all the other elements of music—in a word, to give a real mental hearing of the piece s) as to stand the same physician.

Complementally "Backs !!!!"

Hence, when these remedles are combined we derive an interpolation for indicating the strength of the second conveying the surface of the second conveying the second conveying the second conveying the surface of the second conveying the second co tal hearing of the piece so as to stamp it on the mind without the aid of the pieces after he was completely deaf: but he cannot have written them withone of these placed over each hill until out hearing them in himself, and it therefore follows that the convers can take place and the music can be heard by merely reading it. Deafness, therefore, does not entirely destroy musical enjoyment. In fact, as far as the sense of hearing goes, every composer, when he writes down his ideas, is virtually on the same footing as a deaf person; for what he writes is the product of his mind alone. But blindness ! the privations it implies; the sacrifices it imposes! the virtual imprisonment of not being able to walk alone! the dismal darkness of never beholding the face of nature! the silence and solitude of being unable to read and write! As long as he can read a book a deaf man remains in close communication with the whole circle of human thought. Historians, poets, philosophers, critics—all are still his companions; the world of painting and sculpture is still open to him. The blind man on the other hand, is dependent on others for all he wants; he has to ask for every thing;

However strange this may seem, i is nevertheless true. A gentleman, named Dwight Whiting, residing in the neighborhood of Anabeim, Califorthe neighborhood of Anabeim, California, as we learn from the Gazette of that place, in entertainining a dininer party of ten persons, some time ago, after counting the number of his guests, and finding them to be ten in number, said, "I guess one egg will be enough for the party," and disappeared from the house. Presently he came back with the egg, and the surprise of the guests were dissipated when they saw it was an ostrich's egg he meant. To Destroy Weeds

The soil is prone to weeds as man to sin, and it is psssible that men have been provoked to sin by weeds. How been provoked to sin by weeds. How company and to spare; besides it was the unanimous opinion that it was

A Heavy Yield of Peaches Expected.

Reliable reports are being received from the peach country, regarding the are kept down.

The plan we adopted has proven satisfactory, and that is not to till any piece of land long enough for the weeds to get possession of the soil. Sod is turned for corn; the second year for corn or any other crop most desired; the third to wheat or oats and stock down. Where convenient, it is a good plan to turn under a crop of clover, then seed again. The second piece of sod land is turned, and by the time that it is ready to be stocked, the first is ready for the plow again. It will be seen by this method that manuring is not necssary. We do not believe in the use of manure on land used for hold crops, for the seeds in the fertilizer add to the labors of the farmers. We use manure upon the grass land ed production of hay, and also in the growth of corn when the land is turned for tillage.

Farmers depend too generally upon their barnyard manure to help out the land evaporators it is estimated that their barnyard manure to help out the land is turned. sold to the evaporators.
