It may appear to some that the subject of a bolt has received more attention than it deserves, as the prospect of anything like united effort on the part of the dissatisfied element is not at all bright. We are informed, however, that strong efforts are soon to be made, and we have endeavored to place the matter in its true light before the people.

A MINE SHAFT'S GRIM SECRET. - A skele on found at the bottom of a shaft near Beaver Glen, has been identified as that of John Ireland, who disappeared sixteen years ago. On a tobacco box near the skeleton was a writing accusing Ireland's wife of having murdered her children, and with one Ira Tompkins inflicted terrible infuries upon and then throwing him down the shaft. Mrs. Ireland, who married Tompkins, died four years ago, and Tomkins soon after left the country. - Hasleton Sentinel.

The Bloomsburg Water Company have made an advance in their water rates which will go into effect October 1st, 1884. For yard bydrant or kitchen sink, or both, with not and cold water, the rate is fixed at $6.00 per annum, instead of $5.00, as heretofore. Bath tubs and water closets are $3.00 each, and stationary wash tubs. $1.00, same as last year's rate. The greatest advance is in the wash paves. For street, sidewalk, lot sprinkling, &c., per season, not over 50 feet, $4.00; for each additional fifty feet an extra charge of 50cts, is made. The former rate was $3,00 and was not limited to fifty feet.

DEER SHOT .- On last Saturday morning while the Sheriff's sales were taking place at the Court House, a small dog got in the yard and began chasing the deer, when 'Colonel' taking fright, jumped against the fence, breaking out a panel and effected his escape. He rau down Market street, thence to Mahoning and across the meadow to the canal, which he swam and made for the hills. A short time after, Mr. A. J. Mans discovered a deer in the field near his residence, he quickly procured his gun and being a crack shot, brought down the buck, which he afterwards found to be the one that had escaped from the Court House yard. The carcass was cut up and divided among the Court House officials. - Danville

> A railroad company is expected to keep has an official whose principal business it is to look after the comfort of passengers and the safety of their baggage. In order the more forcibly to impress upon the minds of those who are inclined to be disorderly when under the influence of liquor that the company will not tolerate improper conduct, a prosecution was brought sault and battery, and resisting an officer. The difficulty arose from the use of pro- cemetery. fane language in a car in the presence of ladies, and being persisted in, the passenger was ejected by an officer who happened to be on the train. The officer got off at prosequi was entered on payment of costs, which amounted to nearly forty dollars, the prosecutor deeming the payment of this sum sufficient punishment. We have called attention to the case for the purpose of showing that it is unprofitable to trifle with the rights of the public, and to resist an officer in the performance of his duty, and hope that the result of this case may prove a warning to others who may be inclined to be disorderly on the cars.

The annual fair of Lackawanna county which commences on Tuesday next, bids favorable of being the finest and most exensive exhibition that the agricultural society has ever given. The former successes of that organization has attracted the attention of people from various portions of the State, and the result has been to fill the entry books and crowd their exhibition hall with competing articles and products. In the list of stock entries are the celebra ted Devon herds of the Banker Bros, of Franklin Forks, W. H. Jones of Montrose Christopher Burns of Friendsville, and others of equal notoriety. In addition to this superb display the officers have arranged for the entertainment of their guests, many amusements and field sports, 'among which is a grand display of Japanese fire works to take place on Thursday; also trials of speed on their excellent course, for which the liberal offer of $1,200 in premiums is made, as follows: Oct. 1st. 3.00 class $200; 2.30 class, trotters and pacers, $400; Oct. 3rd, 2.45 class $200; free for all trotters $400. We believe that our citizens can spend a day or so at this fair very profitably.

One Little Rule.

As this life is what we make it, a few hints may smooth many a path and calm some aching heart. We, all of us, are striving to be happy and enjoy the bright unless proof satisfactory to the Standing and sunny side of everything. Yet, I may say that this is no easy task, for some obthat the nominations were unlawfully stacle, some unexperienced grief will present itself an enemy to the attainment of the rules of the party and the laws of the our future prospects. These binderances State, as we believe, and we shall do all are not always to be overcome in a mothat can be done, honestly and fairly, to ment, hence, the necessity of a timely prep-

One old adage which presents itself for our consideration is this: What is worth doing at all is worth doing well. Although this saying is worn by the use of men, and faded by the sands of time, it is not threadbare. It stands out as the true and the tried of success.

There is no place where you can meet with a successful man or woman but that, ands the tocsin of the onward march of It you stop to inquire into the secret of his difficult task perfected.

Pride, in the perfection of our work, should be the aim of every one who may labor either with body or mind. It should make no difference what that work may be, but it should be finished with that same taste and eare that the belle of society adorns her person. Parents should be vigilant in the care over their children; see ing that they perform all things from the building of a toy-house to the highest callcannot be compared to a species of the ing to which they may attain, with a beauty and symmetry that will command the

Thus, if the home could be made the gradle in which this one little rule could be fostered, grand results would follow. Many difficulties would be overcome; our lives would be smoother; families would order on its trains and about its depots, so be happier; societies would be benefited, that its patrons may not be subjected to and our governments would be free from annoyance in any way. It is with this an error too often committed, should this understanding that the D. L. & W. road one gem be practiced and not passed so lightly by.

Mrs. Wenner and Rebecca their daughter became frantic with excitement and grief, and could hardly be retained in the buggy though driving at almost a ranaway speed It looked as though they would arrive just in time to witness the consummation of a fearful conflagration, and just too late to avert destruction, or save a thing, and for once experienced the suddden transportation from at least a living to utter want, or all the horrors incident to a genuine burn out. But on quite near approach they saw to their joy that the fire was in an out building in the rear of their dwelling. Fortunately there was no wind, and fortunately also just arrived in time to arrest the flames from communicating with other combustibles that led to other buildings, and thus prevented the whole from a general sweep. The fire originated in a little house where wood ashes were kept, and burnt the small structure, which communicated to the other building. Several chickens roosting therein were burnt to death This is the second time that family have had a good scare from the same cause. Let people beware where and how they keep their wood ashes.

lilegal Voting.

James McGuire was indicted at last term of court for illegal voting. On Monday morning he was brought before court and pleaded guilty. On Tuesday morning his case was disposed of. District Attorney Buckingham stated to the Court that the facts in the case were these: McGuire lives in Conyngham township, but for a few months prior to the Spring election he was working in Centralia. At the February election he voted in Centralia, and afterwards went to his home in Conyngham, where he was persuaded to vote again, on the ground that that was his proper voting place. He was ignorant of the law, and was induced by others to violate it. Under all the circumstances the District Attorney thought it was a case where the Court could exercise leniency with justice. "The Court said: "While ignorance of the law is no excuse for crime, in this case we may say that if those who induced this young man to vote Illegally were before us, we should inflict upon them a much heavier penalty than we shall place on him. The purity of elections lies at the attempt to pollute the ballot box. "James McGuire, come before the Court "We have heard from the District Attor ney what are represented to be the facts in this case, and, in view of the statement pose upon you the highest penalty which of Seth Hartman, Nancy Kahler, Susan the law inflicts for the offense which you have committed. The Act of Assembly Return of inquest in estate of Harriet provides that if any person shall vote a e than one election district, or other wise fraudulently vote more than once on wise fraudulently vote more than once on ankle so bad he could hardly hobble to the the same day, or shall fraudulently fold house. Used Thomas' Eclectric Oil and imprisoned for any term not less than have no discretion below the minimum mentioned in the statute. It is the first I was court; and, were it not for the mitigating but, in view of the facts, will impose the lowest. The sentence of the Court is that you pay a fine of fifty dollars and the costs one will take a small teaspoon and half file

Mr. John Crane of South Conyngham died at this place on Tuesday morning. The remains were taken to Conyngham for interment. Mr. Crane's many friends will be pained to hear of this affliction.

PHILADELPHIA, No. 2, 52. At the very beginning of a new season in dress it is natural to take a general look over the field. We speak of what we see and know, not of what we read in the Fashion Journals and doubt. We hav'n't been long enough in dry-goods to make us an oracle. For that very reason, perhaps, we put our best foot forward, not two or three times a year, but every day in the chance remark of the managing man of the firm that supplies American merchants with the Lupin fabrics: "Pm astonished," said he to our buyer, "at the length you go in bringing over these little extravagances." He referred to the extra-fine fabrics and novelties that constitute so small a part of anybody's trade that very few people, nerchants included know nuch about them. He referred to the things that cost the most money for the least practical use; things that everybody likes to look at, but very few buy; things that have to be made, even in wild extravagant Paris for the delight of the luxurious world, in very small quantities; things that ladies are wont to value according to richness and rarity: things that are sacred from degradation by the very conditions of their existence, the taste, skill, facilities, capital, history itself, that are in them--It takes Paris, the Parisian spirit, Parisian luxury, Parisian taste, Parisian life, a generation or two of Parisian textile and artistic plant to make them.

The astonishment was out of the fact that a merchant who sells clothing for millions should also be able to sell the richest and rarest of dress for the few. Need we say over and over that the trade of the many is the best possible foundation on which to build up the trade of the few? Exclusive trade we never shall have. Inclusive is better. Better for us, better for you, whosoever you are.

It is worth our while to print this now for the purgeneral way, that we have a most comprehensive collection of stuffs; that nothing in desirable dress is beneath our care, and nothing beyond

We're guessing what is, not what is to come. There isn't much guessing about it. Our dress-stuffs abound la soft vigogne, harsh cheviot, tricot, serge, heavy and coarse-looking serge, camel's-hair, a hairier camel's-hair than ever before, bourette, great curls of rough-looking wool; and the color-strength is equal to the textile vigor.
