THE RESULT. ALL DOUBT REMOVED.

CLEVELAND AND HENDRICKS ELECTED.

The official count of the vote in New York ended tast Saturday, giving Cleveland a plurality in the state of 1107, deciding his election beyond any doubt. The following is the vote of the several States as nearly as can be ascertained, with the electoral vote. It will be seen that Cleveland has a majority of 37 in the Electoral College and nearly or quite 100,000 popular majority :

FOR CLEVELAND.

Cleveland's Electoral majority, 37. Cleveland's popular majority, 88,600.

RETRIBUTION. The abuse that the Republican party, from the defeated candidate down, are heaping upon poor old Dr. Burchard since the election, is unjust on their part and undeserved on his part. True it is that the Reverend gentleman made a speech to Mr. Blaine in the presence of a thousand clergymen brought together by the Republican managers for the purpose of giving Blaine a religious boost into the Presidency. True it is that Burchard characterized the Democratic party as the party of "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion," an alliterative appellation which Mr. Blaine forgot to resent until three days later, when he found it was being used to his disadvantage. And it is probably true that this speech cost Blaine many votes, and may have done sufficient damage of itself to change the result of the election. But why should Dr. Burchard be abused for uttering in those three words the war cry of the Republican party for twenty years past? For two decades or more the opposition has called us the "whiskey party." They have called us the party of ignorance because the laboring classes clung to us for protection against monopolies. They have called us the party of Romanism because the Irish vote has been cast with the Democratic party. And they have attempted to take to themselves all the glory and all the credit of crushing the rebellion, and charged the Democracy with being responsible for the attempted secession of the Southern States. Having never hesitated to charge all these things upon the Democratic party, why should Republicans curse Dr. Burchard for combining in three words the leading and favorite epithets which for years they have been pleased to apply to the Democratic organizations? Burchard, no doubt, believed that by repeating these time-worn charges, he would please the party that had made use of them for so long a time, and therefore that party is responsible for his intolerant utteracces. That party taught him his lesson in bigotry and name-calling, and now when he stands up before his instructors and repeats what he has learned in their school, they turn upon him, and tell him he has opened his mouth and put his foot in it. By their sharp criticism of his language they admit that his allegation is false, and by this admission they also acknowledge that the charges which for years they have laid at the door of the Democracy are false, because if Dr. Burchard did not tell the truth, then his party has certainly been lying about us all along. But the day of retribution came at last, and the batteries that the Republican party has been using against us with success for them the Presidency. Retributive justice is slow, but always sure.

I do not believe the American people will accept a fraudulent result. The Republicans have carried the Northern States by more than $00,000 majority and they do not propose to have the leading State taken from them by frand.

A UDITOR'S NOTICE. SSTATE OF PETER MOURER, DECEASED.

Manamaker's.

"Where shall I go for my furs?" The answer is easy; but, coming from an interested party, it has got to bear its reason with it. "Go to a furrier who understands furs: go to a maker who understands making; go to a seller who has some stake in his business; go to a merchant who takes his share of the peculiar risks that furs involve: go to a man whose word is as good as his bond."

To understand furs is to buy them raw, to watch them through their several stages of preparation, to judge them in every state they undergo, to know how to sort and grade them when ready.

To make them is first to know and then treat every skin according to knowledge. A seal is rarely caught with a perfect skin. A dozen defects do not dishearten the skilful cutter. If a perfect garment were only got out of perfect skins, there'd be no perfect garments. Look at the back of a sealskin ready for lining, and learn what the knife and the needle have to do with the smoothness, evenness, color, apparent unity, wholeness, of the garment. It takes knowledge and skill and diligent faithfulness to guide that knife and needle.

And the fit, the easy hang.

the draping. But in this land of tailors and dressmakers need we speak of fitting and easy garments? And yet the usual experience with furriers is disappointing. Fur skins are not so easy to fit and hang and drape as cloths. Experience is less. There isn't work enough to give experience to many, even in the largest cities. Furs are worn by few; and most of the few buy ready-made from the wholesale shops (for "furriers" generally buy their garments readymade); and readymade furs are very different from readymade cloth ing. Readymade may fit or not fit; may drape or draw;

may be graceful or ugly. But there is another sort of reason for having furs made for you. You've got to trust the maker; and you'd better trust a man you can see and talk to, whose name you can know, rather than one behind a screen. The wholesale maker is a man behind a screen. You can't get at him, if your fur goes wrong.

There are qualities of fur. There are differences in skins.

The fur itself you can see and guess at. The skin is known to the maker who sees both sides of it, handles it, cuts it, sews it. It may be tough or tender, heavy where it ought to be light, or light where it ought to be heavy. Nobody knows it but the maker. Buy of the maker then. Buy of the man who has seen the back of the skin. But what if the maker doesn't warrant his work? Don't buy of that sort of a maker. There are fur-makers that take the risk of their work. It is fair, in case of risk, that the man should bear it who can avoid the loss. That's the maker. It is fair that he should bear the risk of merchandise who enjoys the profit. That's the seller. It is fair for the seller to make the buyer secure.

The next thing is to see that your surety is sure. There are sellers that warrant their goods more freely than make good their defects. It is common in selling to use smooth manners and generous speech. It is common for merchants to be less smooth and generous when called on for damages. We understand furs Mr. Freeland, our furrier, is well enough known to be trusted; too well to be praised.

We make our furs. Mr. Freeland goes to London and Leipzig for skins. Our factory has grown to be the largest in town. Our trade has grown by excellent work and management. There is nothing accidental about it. Fitting more than goodness of fur, goodness of fur more than smooth words, and standing by promises more than all else, have won us our trade.

Is our word as good as our bond? What we have said over and over, year after year, in a thousand ways, in print and by proxy, is it true-that we guarantee stuff that we never see to satisfy buyers whom we never even hear of, and take uncomplainingly the losses that befall us?

It is a good place to buy furs-furs that almost nobody's judge of.-We have said not a word about money. This is all that ought to be said: There are no bargains in furs; but we know of no place where money goes far-
