SELECT STORY. AN ACT OF JUSTICE.

"Ah, this is the country! How quiet it seems after the battle of the city, and how deliciously fragrant the air!

"Pausing, the soliloquist transfers his satchel from his right hand to his left, while with his handkerchief he wipes his brow.

THE FATHER AT HOME.

Some fathers fail to gain their children's confidence by an apparent lack of interest in their studies.

A few evenings later, with her hand clasped in her lover's, Rose relates to him the above-mentioned trouble.

"Indeed I would," she cries.

"And John—what does he say?" the old man asks, with a glance in the direction of the young man, who is leaning against the mantelpiece.

Just then, chancing to glance over the low stone wall beside him, he sees a charming picture.

POVERTY OF PRESIDENTS.

THE MOST OF THE NATION'S RULERS DYING POOR.

FINANCIAL CONDITION OF THE PRESIDENTS FROM WASHINGTON DOWN TO GARFIELD.

If you will look back over the list, which the Washington correspondent of the Evening Star has prepared, you will see that from the beginning most of our Presidents have been poor men.

George Washington was, perhaps, the wealthiest of them and Lutherford B. Hayes will perhaps rank next.

John Adams, at the age of 66, after twenty-four years of continuous public service, retired to his little estate at Quincy, Mass., with barely enough to quit.

Rose does not stir, thinking that the room's sudden accession of inmates will ensure her own security, for, of course, both ladies will disavow having seen

"How handsome Rupert is," Mrs. Moore says, "Maria, when in his engagement to Miss Martelle to be consummated."

"Oh, that was off six months ago," Mrs. Arnold answers. "Her father failed miserably, and, of course, with Rupert's ideas and tastes, she was no longer a suitable wife for him. He drew the first opportunity to withdraw."

"In that case, Maria, I must ask you to consider a country farmer's income the proper person to throw into daily association with a young man whose family will be in great peril from her face, which, I must confess, is the prettiest I have ever seen!"

"Spare yourself any anxiety on that score, Sarah, dear. Let me tell you something. That girl, although as yet too young to be married, is a very poor in New York. John Quincy Adams must have received over half a million dollars in government salaries, and he is one of the few Presidents who again took up public life after he left the White House."

Down at the Congressional Library in Washington, is a musty old file of their cash receipts, and the New York which the following account of Mr. Jefferson's inauguration is taken:

At an early hour on Wednesday, March 4, 1801, the city of Washington presented a spectacle of uncommon animation, occasioned by the addition to the ranks of the Federal Government of citizens from the adjacent districts.
