Members of the State Legislature who are merchants recently held a caucus for the purpose of formulating some stringent law to protect merchants from the encroachments of hawkers and pedalers. It was decided to make an entire revision of the existing laws on the subject and enact a new law prohibiting hawking and peddling in the state except by cripples. A committee was appointed to get up a law like this.

The new heads of departments at Washington have been overrun with friends. No changes have yet been made, and none are likely to be until the members of the Cabinet become acquainted with the duties and necessities of their positions. Petitions for the President for offices that come under the Cabinet officers appointments, will be useless, as it is understood that all such applications will be referred to the head of the proper department.

Republican office-holders don't get much encouragement from Senator Edmunds. He says that the logic of the situation is that they must go. As the Senator reaches his conclusions by logic only, the opinion is weighty, even if displeasing. Mr. Edmunds doesn't think there is to be haste, but that ultimately the offices will be in the hands of the dominant party. He says this is according to the inexorable logic of necessity, weightier than that of any attracts the attentions of Mr which Cleveland or any one, sincere and deli berate as they unquestionably are. The Vermont Senator's forecast of the fu ture has always been skillful.

Under the new administration there will not be many removals for the purpose of appointing democrats to office. Those who have held commissions will ed. probly be allowed to serve until their in that way the democratic party has a perfect right to expect that all vacan-cies will be filled by democrats. The republican party established the prece dent, and has rigidly adhered to it for commissions of the latter can be no termine where licenses are unnecessary cause for complaint.
