milk. How to test the milk is thus explained by one who has experimented for himself. It is of no little importance to have at hand a convenient and reliable mode of testing the richness of milk. This is usually done by the mere rule of "guess." There is a more reliable way, within the reach of all, and whereby any person may safely govern himself in deciding upon which of any number of milkmen he will patronize, or which of any number of cows he will purchase. Procure any long vessel—a cologne Procure any long vessel—a cologne bottle or a long phial. Take a narrow strip of paper, just the length from the neck to the bottom of the phial, and mark it with one hundred lines at equal distances; or, if more convenient, into fifty lines, and count each line as two and pasts it much the phial as as and allow it to stand in a perpendicular ed fruit very much lengthened.

It is surprising that a plant s ber of spaces occupied by the cream will give the exact percentage in the milk, without any guess work.

The Strawberry as a Window Plant.

To those who seek variety in their window plants the strawberry makes a pleasing contrast; its bright, green leaves, the white clusters of flowers, and the numerous bunches of luscious fruit, are all deeply interesting, and the developing of each affords quite as much pleasure as the growth of the leaves and the expanding of the blos-soms of any of the flowering plants. To have good plants for this purpose the work should begin in August, or earlier, if the newly set plants begin to throw out runners. Six-inch pots should be filled with good, rich loam and set in the ground at the right distance from the strawberry plants to re-ceive the first new plant that forms; when this gets well established it may

Cases of Diphtheria-

The precautions to be taken in the management of a well-marked case of diphtheria are, or should be, generally known, says the Sanitary Engineer They have been published as circulars by many health boards and through the secular and medical press, and may be summed up as follows: Isolate the patient in an airy room having the least possible amount of furniture, especially that which is upholstered and having no carpet or curtains. Disin-fect all excretions and secretions, and especially those from the throat, nose and mouth, and all articles soiled by them promptly, while they are yet moist, and thoroughly. Use clean, soft rags for receiving the discharges from the nose and mouth, and burn them as fast as soiled. If other articles are soiled, use solutions of chloride of zinc or bichloride of mercury, under the instructions of the physician. Be especially careful as regards toys, pencils or other articles which may be given the child for its amusement, of the articles used in giving it food or drink. Everything that has touched the pa-tient's lips, or that has been touched by anything that has touched the patient's tips, is dangerous.

When convalescence has set in denot yield too soon to the importunities of the patient to be allowed to see his friends or to go out, nor to your own feelings of weariness at the long-continued confinement. Above all things do not, under the excuse of giving change of air and scene, send him off to some other place to complete his re-covery; you might send dynamite about the country with scarcely more risk. Do not send the child back to school in less than six weeks after the attack ; about two weeks after you are satisfied that he is entirely well is a
