SELECT STORY.

INGRATITUDE REVENGED.

You've got a neat little spot, remarked Farmer Hayes to his friend, Mr. Johnson.

Early Hours at the White House.

The news that "the Governor," as he will ever be called here, has ordered breakfast at six o'clock at the White House suggests to his friends and those of Col. Lamont a good story about Cleveland's first days in Albany.

A Veteran's Story.

"I was in Washington in 1812; and while visiting over in Alexandria in that year I saw the first troops called out to fight the British as they entered Washington to be armed. I remember it as well as if it had been yesterday.

Ten Serious Mistakes.

It is a mistake to labor when you are not in a fit condition to do so. To conclude that the smallest room in the house is large enough to sleep in.

HUNT'S KIDNEY REMEDY. NEVER FAILS. PHYSICIAN'S TESTIMONY. A. W. Brown, M.D., of Providence, R. I., says: "I have used Hunt's Kidney Remedy in my practice for the past sixteen years, and cheerfully recommend it as being a safe and reliable remedy."

with a kind word and cheery greeting for all. Jennie was a blooming, bonnie bride, and seemed proud of her stalwart husband.

"What's the matter with the cow?" inquired Mr. Johnson. "Oh, nothing," replied the young man. "I'm going to sell her."

"You had better not do that," said the old man, angrily. "You have nothing to do with her; she is mine, and I shall do as I like."

"You don't know my Jennie; she's the loveliest, best, and truest girl that ever lived. She would never wrong her father."

"What's the matter, Jennie?" he inquired. "Father, what have you been doing to her?" The young man confronted Mr. Johnson, who stood with the uplifted poker in his hand.

"What do you mean?" queried the husband, with a white face, and a touch of fear in his tone. "Father's burnt it!"

Beginning Reform at Home.

The author of Mr. R. B. Hayes' famous scrap books is no more. He was the first victim of the reform axe at the White House.

Waking at Will.

A business man says for years he has been in the habit of waking himself at any hour he wished simply by impressing upon his mind before going to sleep the fact that he must awake at that time.

Not so Big as He Thought.

A bright little fellow, about three years of age, was very anxious to go to walk with his father.

Why He Left.

"Why did you leave your last place?" was asked of the man who had applied for the position of coachman and announced himself without a fault.

To imagine that if a little work or exercise is good violent or prolonged exercise is better.

To go to bed at midnight and rise at day break, and immediately that every hour taken from sleep is an hour gained.

To believe that children can do as much as grown people and that the more hours they study the more they will learn.

To eat as if you had only a minute to finish your meal or to eat without appetite, or to continue eating after he has been satisfied merely to satisfy the taste.

To imagine that whatever remedy causes one to feel immediately better is as alcoholic stimulants—is good for the system without regard to after effects.

Dear Left Ear. "Will you be good enough to let me walk at your other side?" said a gentleman to a companion with whom he was crossing the City Hall Park.

Both gentlemen looked astonished, and went on their way laughing. "There is nothing unusual in such an experience," said a New York aristocrat. "The left ear is peculiarly liable to deafness or partial loss of hearing."

Why He Left. "Why did you leave your last place?" was asked of the man who had applied for the position of coachman and announced himself without a fault.

"Did you have a fuss with the cook?" "Well, sir, she's a very capable person, and no evading. She wanted to dress up of an evening and have me drive her in and let her put on the style of the mistress, but when I desired to give a billiard party, what did she do but kick about serving up the luncheon!
