said in a recent speech that the republican party is no longer the party of great moral ideas. The Philadelphia Press says this is a joke which will be fully appreciated when it is remembered that Douglass holds a fat office in Washington and desires to keep on the right side of the administration. The press may be right about this. Fred. Douglass is a republican and always has been one, and as the practice of that party is to keep in office at any expense, it would not be surprising if Mr. Douglass were carrying out the teachings of his party, even if it becomes necessary to repudiate it altogether. THE DOG TAX.

After referring to the law requiring the county treasurer to keep separate accounts of money arising from dog tax, and appropriating the fund to the payment of damages for sheep destroy-ed by dogs, the writer proceeds to show figures whose compilation must have required some time. He says :

speaking from recollection as far back as 1866, the said fund was then more than a year in arrears. Now pass-ing up to Jan. 1, 1874, the difference between the unpaid sheep orders and didates for office. He has had exper-the uncollected taxes for said fund was jence of how easy it is to manage such in arrear $435.60 ; in 1875, $611.25; in 1876, $393.55; in 1877, $165.12.

In 1878 there was due the fund $16.-87; in 1879, $716.18; in 1880, 1296.43; and in 1881, $1785.83. Then at the settlement of Jan. 1881, there was taken from the dog fund, and thrown into the County, the sum of $500; Jan. 1882, $950.00; Jan. 1883, $860.00; Jan. 1884, $600.00; Jan. 1885, $813.38 ; making a total of $3723.38. Now the point we wish to bring be

The law under which the Commissioners have acted in this matter, appears to have escaped the attention of the Sentinel. It was passed in 1881,

Secrios 1. "Be it enacted, &c., That the county commissioners of any county in this commonwealth, in which a their judgment is not necessary to pay the damages aforesaid.'

But even without this Act of Assembly, the commissioners would have no right either to reduce the tax on dogs, nor to abandon it altogether as proposed by our contemporary. The Act of 1857 passed for Blair and extended to Columbia county fixes the tax at 50 cents per dog. The Act says, it shall be the duty of the commissioners to cause an accurate return of all dogs to ness, and when that is done each day's to be made; they shall levy and cause work is to be finished each day. to be made; they shall levy and cause to be collected annually a tax of fifty cents, etc. This is mandatory and not

Mr. Cleveland's Non-Partisan Administra-tion is What the Country Needs.

In his appointments hitherto it is certain that Mr. Cleveland has paid very little attention to the claims of the machine politicians. Instead of this, he has placed in the front ranks the interests of the public service. He is evidently resolved to give the country a good Administration, and he leaves the discontent of the Democratic politicians to take care of itself.

What will these discontented Demo-oratic seekers do † Will they turn against the Administration † Will hey let the Democratic party be besten? Assuming that they do this, the question is whether the Administration vould allow itself to be disturbed on that account. If it remains, the Democratic office seekers will have gained nothing. But, assuming that the Demwell-disposed citizens who with it gather around Mr. Cleveland should compel the Democratic politicians to support the Administration, or, in spite of the politicians, carry it safely through at the politicians, carry it safely through at the politicians, what then?

It must be remorated that the Republicans out and replace them by Democrats.

The "committee on economy" which is inquiring into the methods of business in the Treasury Department will be engaged for some weeks, perhaps months, before they are ready to reocratic party or that the masses of well-disposed citizens who with it gath-er around Mr. Cleveland should com-

The prospect of an adjustment of the difficulties detween England and the difficulties detween England and bis nomination was furiously resisted bis nomination was furiously resisted bis nomination was furiously resisted.

If the Cleveland Administration satisfies the mass of the Democracy and other citizens, they ought to be in a situation to create an organization upon which the Administration can lean, and which will give it in the elections the necessary votes, and in Congress enable it to carry through the needful measures.

In the experiment which the Presi-In the experiment which the President is engaged in the government of the people is in a great degree at stake. If a good Administration is deserted by its party for the simple reason that it is good, and if it finds among the people no compensation for this desertion, the mainstay of our important institutions maintained by headers and there stitutions would be broken, and there would be no hope for any lasting reform hereafter.

No Faith in Petitions.

President Cleveland tells a story of how he lost faith in petitions for place, which has a moral. When he was elected mayor of Buffalo the first vacancy he was called upon to fill was that of chief of police. There were a number of applicants. One of these had a mammoth petition in his favor signed by any number of the citizens of Buffalo. Mayor, now President Cleveland, was impressed with the magnitude of the petition and the eminent respectability of the signers. He

The In the first number of the Sentinel paper had been signed by men who under the new management an editorial is printed under the above heading. and who would not have signed it if they had. Still it served the purpose to show how easy a thing it is to get a number of signatures on a paper. Mr. Cleveland confessed then and there that he was not as much impressed with the much endorsed applicant for the chief of police as he had heretofore been, and gave the appointment to another man. Just now this scrap of history will serve to show that President Cleveland is not overawed by a mammoth petition recommending can-didates for office. He has had exper-

Mr. Roach now objects to a proper com-pliance with the terms which he originally prescribed, with the view of disarming opposition to the projects he had prepared. It is not pleasant for the engineer to be hoisted with his own netard, and Mr Roach does not like to be held to "strict conformity with the contracts"nor to be inspected by the officers who have no fear of Chandler before their eyes.

The final parting was in front of Lee's mansion in Richmond, two days after Appomattox. Lee's house is an ordinary square brick, standing alone on Franklin street, one square from the Capitol. All the other houses on the square are connected. Upon the afteroon of the second day after the surrender people in that vicinity were surprised to see come riding up the street from the south a company of Confederate horsemen. They were unarmed. Their gray uniforms were worn, soiled, and often tattered, their trappings old and patched. They were slouched hats, and here and there was a feather re maining of the once smart and jaunty drooping plume of the Confederate cavalryman. They were bronzed and browned and bearded. They sat erect and came on with the splendid horsemanship for which they were noted. Upon the collars of some of the gray jackets could still be seen the faded and tarnished gilt stars, the emblems of the wearers' rank.

In front of them rode Lee. His two hands held the loosely swinging reins and rested upon the pommel. His head was bent and his eyes were looking straight ahead from under his downeast brow, but they seemed to see nothing. As the troops cantered up to his old home his horse stopped at the gate, and he aroused himself suddenly, as from a dream, and cast his eyes upon familiar windows and then around over the group of gallant soldiers who had followed his fortunes for four bloody years and gone down in defeat under

The end of it all had come at last He threw himself from his horse, and all his companions followed his action They stood hat in hand, with an arm through the bridle rein, while Lee wen from man to man, grasping each hand, looking intently into each face as though he would press it upon his memory forever. Then he turned and walk work is to be fluished each day.
