The President's Mister.

MISS CLEVELAND ON THE ROSTRUM-SOME

In June, 1883, Miss Elizabeth Cleveland. present mistress of the White House, de livered an address before the Elmira, N. Y. Female College, which the Presbyterian Evangelist pronounced "great,"- a deserved compliment to an excellent woman. It was entititled "Altruistic Faith," and for her illustration she took Chedidja, first wife of Mohammed, who was rich and much older than he was when she married him. When asked in later years why he did not put her away and take a younger wife, he replied that he loved her best because she belleved in him when all men despised him.

Chedidja's faith made Mohammed. There is faith in God, faith in self, and in humanity. The first produces the others. Faith in humanity believes that life is worth living and worth saving. You will have much hunger and thirst, will crave affection when the bloom of youth is supplanted by the ashen hue of age; will cry aloud for help in infirmities, must needs come, because those on whom women rely, though themselves powerless to relieve them of their intolerable aches, pains, prostrations, sleepless nights of agony, and days of distress, -- because of the narrow ness of their code and the selfishness of their purpose, - restrain them from resorting to those agencies which may lift women to a plane of greater usefulnes, and to a no-

ia. If they had faith in their own reserve of physical power, confidence in the personal experience of others would follow : and instead of a race of suffering mortals -slaves to the prejudices of those whose only interest in them is bounded by their professional fees,-we should see nobility of station reinforced by nobility of mind, and robustness of life.

The power to rid themselves of the aches pains and the desperate despair which afflict them, 'is in women, and ought to You all have a countless amount of testimony.' Some one will say to you "Go on and you will conquer." "How?" Do as your sisters have done !

Have faith in their indisputable experiences. We want more life and fuller, and need all the help we can get. Man would fail were it not for the Chedidjas. There is much in good digestion to keep a woman sweet and lovable. There is more in thorough action of the great blood purifying organs-the liver and kidneys, for if they are deranged women can not have the physical comfort so craved and prayed for. To secure this, the help they need,—the help by the action of the current. This that thousands have already used and to which they say they owe all they possess, is Warner's Safe Cure. Mrs. Maria C. Treadwell, Stamford, Conn., (President of the State Woman's Christian Temperance Union) a well known leader, says 'it is the only thing which seemed to reach my case.' These unprejudiced thousands have blessed the world because they have become Chedidjas, who have felt it their duty to declare their own faith and to inspire their sisters with confidence in the extraordinary up-building energy of this wonderful dis-

JEFFERSON AS A NATURALIST.

Soon after Mr. Jefferson completed the French Court were busy years in many ways, but his official duties were of such character that he had more time than over before for the prosecution of scientific study and investigation. He was now introduced into a society where the work of a scientist was looked upon with a much warmer sympathy than was common in America, and he lost no opportunity of making the personal acquaintance of the ablest men in the various branches in which he was interested. Among them was Buffon. The presentation of a copy of the "Notes on Virginia" had failed to convince him that animals do not degenerate in America. In fact, Jefferson found a very general disposition in Paris circles look contemptuously on everything in the New World except political freedom; the Abbe Raynal went even so far as to assert that the Cancasian had deteriorated in mind and body when transplanted to American soil. wittily Dr. Franklin answered this charge, at one of his dinuer parties at is known to every reader of Franklin's or Jefferson's biographies. That such opinions of American animal life should still be held. Mr. Jefferson's love of scentific truth, and perhaps even more, his love of country, would not and the occupants sit on the floor with permit. Steps were at once taken to secure a practical illustration of the falsity of the French view. He wrote to several friends in different parts of America more especially President with one leg over the other. There are no musical instrumenst, no notes, no set music. The East Indians lie down without undressing, and on rising, roll America—more especially President Sullivan, of New Hampshire requesting them to send him the bones and skin of the largest moose obtainable, the horns of the caribou, elk, deer, spikehorned buck, and other large animals which by their size might give ocular proof of the point he wished to establish. After many vicissitudes the moose reached Paris in safety, but was accompanied by such a bill of expense as made think, for a moment, that scientific controversy was indeed a very costly recreation. However, he felt amply repaid when Buffon, after an examination of the specimens and consideration of other demonstrated facts. receded from his former position and said to Mr. Jefferson, in his stately way : "I should have consulted you, sir, be fore publishing my 'Natural History,' and then I should have been sure of my specimens with which he had found the nen of science unacquainted. ANTIQUITY OF GLASS.

The oldest specimen of pure glass bearing anything like a date is a little molded lion's head, bearing the name of an Egyptian King of the eleventh dynasty, in the Slade collection at the British Museum. THE APRICAN INLAND SEA.

A party of French engineers and hydrographers has left for Tunis, charged with making the necessary studies on the spot for the construction of the harbor in the Bay of Nabes, at the mouth of the Oued Mallah, in connection with the canal which is to establish navigable communication between the Mediterranean and the Chotts. It will be remembered that, in tention to convert into a vast inland sea, with the view of testing the results of the late Col. Roudaire's survey, and that he has came back convinced that the scheme was practicable. The expedition which has now started will also make investigations as to the feasibility of sinking artesian wells along the route, and a survey for a railway which it might hereafter be thought necessary to construct. The head of the expedition is Commandant Landas, professor of topography at the school of Saint Cyr. He is accompanied by M. Bar onnet, who assisted Col.

Roudaire in making the preliminary surveys, and several others engineers. It may be advisable to recall to mind the chief features of the report on the undertaking which M. de Lesseps published after his return from Tunis in 1883. It states that the estuary of the Oued Mellah, which is to be the ning of the canal leading to the Chotts to be inundant, offers a part, covered at high water, of sufficient breadth which might easily be excavated, and would form a port sheltered by nature from all the winds from northwest to such passing by the west. The winds from northeast to south passing by the east would not be dangerous to the breakwaters. The roads in front of the entrance are, moreover, in exactly the same situation as those of Gabes. The navigation in the canal, according to the report, would offer no difficulty, as the canal would form almost a straight line. The calcareous rocks found by Col. Roudaire's soundings in 1879 at the base of the Gabes bar, but of comparatively unimportant extent, are an advantage rather than an inconvenience at the mouth of the canal. They will furnish the requisite material for the construction of the pier and port buildings. M. de Lesseps thinks that, considering the nature of the soil traversed, it will be sufficient to cut, in the alluvial part, a canal, on the average 80 to 100 feet wide, which will be further widened cutting could be executed in the maximum period of five years, at an estimated cost of £6,000,000. The proposed in-land sea would be fifteen times as large as the lake of Geneva. It has an elevation much lower than the level of the Mediterranean, the depression being in some places as low as 165 feet

Among the Italians spitting is a mark of supreme contempt. Historians claim that Romulus was not so much angered by the fact that Remus leaped over the wall he had built around Rome, as he out of which the above suggestions have upon the stones of that fragile structure. The writer, a few years ago, was present at the rehersal of a spectacular play, in Niblo's Garden, where two Italian ballet girls engaged in a bitter quarrel over their respective "Notes on Virginia" he was sent abroad on diplomatic service. The years that he smaller and wore irat of the two ladies spent as American Minister at the smaller and more trate of the two ladies spat on the floor in front of her tall and stately rival, and rubbed it indignantly into the boards with her tiny fcot. In an instant the great beauty's eyes lit up with a murderous fury, and she had drawn a dagger on the little woman. when a dozen spectators interfered and probably prevented a tragedy. In speaking of the matter afterward the tage manager said :-"These Italian girls regard that as supreme insult. It signifies the height of contempt, and can only be washed out in blood. It is a peculiarity of the nation. If you want to test the matter buy a pint of peanuts from that Italian vender on the corner, munch one of them, spit it out with disgust upon the payement and rub it in at his feet. You and better have a policeman beside you, though, when you try the experiment."

AN EAST INDIAN'S BED. The bed of a dweller in East India is spread upon the floor, and for a pillow utilized at the same time for containing the valuables of the house. The cover ing for the sleeper is made of cotton, woven by hand. There are no chairs, crossed legs, or in a reclining posture, up the bed and stow it away. Their principal food is rice, which those who are at the table eat with the same spoon. There are no puddings, no desserts, and whoever is the last to rise from the table is compelled to wash the dishes. Woman has scarcely any place in society, literature or art. Man is the master, and rules. The language is simple, consists of twenty-five letters for an alphabet, and can be learned in a year and a half by one associating with the

"Pot holes" have recently been dissovered on Great Island, Me., and some persons have considered them of mysterious origin. A correspondent who has often seen similar excavations along the Columbia River, in Oregon, says they are due to the swift current in the overflow of the rivers, which forms eddies and small whirlpools, causing a motion in a loose boulder, which acts as a drill, and in course of time bores a smooth round "pot" in the rock in which it lies, the loose stones becoming round in the process. Any number of the round stones may be found in the holes and being among loose stones on the beach.

The sufferers at the hands of the inquisition had been generally peasants accused of witcheraft, Moors, or Jews; but on occasions there was a more emarkable train of prisoners. Nobles and gentlemen, ladies of the highest rank, eloquent divines, were among the convicted. The Regent took her place under a canopy of state; the multitude gathered round a platform in the middle of the area, on which the Inquisitor General and his train were stationed. The long line of prisoners consisted of 'the black-gowned penitents who were to be reprimanded and set free; those in robes painted with downward pointing flames, who were to suffer fine and mprisonment, and those whose garbs, nideous with fire and flends, denoted that their bodies were to be burned for the salvation of their souls." A sermon was preuched, then an oath of faith was administered by the Archbishop to the Regent and to her nephew, the heir to the throne. A secretary made known to the multitude the terms of this oath; the Archbishop blessed their highnesses; and then a crier shouted forth the names, crimes, and sentences of the accused. 15 of whom were to die.
