The Seventeen-Year Locusts-

The cicadæ, or "seventeen-year locusts," have appeared in large numbers at Louisville, Kentucky, and in other districts throughout the States, and as we have in former articles said some thing about the expected arrival of insects, a few particulars about their life history will doubtless be in teresting to many.
So far as can be learned these insects should not be called locusts at all, secing that they belong to the cicada or harvest flies. The insect under consideration has the modest name cicada septendecim, or seventeen-year cicada. they have broad, short bodies, broad heads, large red eyes on each side of the head, with three eyelets on the crown. The wings and their cases are veined and transparent, the body is brown, the legs reddish-brown with no power of springing like the grasshood of the springing like the grasshood of the lead, with safety, and the happiest results to the most delicate infant. It takes the place of quinine and bitters of every kind. It is the cheapeast, purest and best family medicine in the world.

The insect has been known in this country since 1633, having appeared at regular intervals of seventeen years since that date.

The seventeen-year cicada does no great damage to crops, for his food is taken under ground, and when visible his mind is on love intent, not food. Egg-laying-The process of egglaying is interesting, as the only damage done by this insect is when the female lays her eggs.

The female is provided with an instrument by which she pierces the limbs of trees, at the same time depositing her eggs in pairs, in a sort of nest which usually contains from fifteen to twenty eggs. After laying an aggre-gate of from four to five hundred eggs in nests made in different trees, the female becomes exhausted and dies. Frequently the limb also dies and falls to the ground, when the young hatch out after a month or so, and at once burrow into the ground and search for the rootlets of a tree, where they anchor themselves for a seventeen-year sacking match. The tree frequently dies after a year or two if the insects are attached to its roots in large num-

In the course of time they grow larger, and when their hunger is satis-fied, that is to say, after seventeen years of continuous feeding, they begin to think of getting up into the air, for which purpose they make passages to-wards the earth's surface. They issue from the earth and usually alight on the H. G. "In this state he remains a week or two, perphaps more, exhausting in this short time the strength it required seventeen years of earnest eating to obtain." At this stage of life the cicada is bent on love alone, enjoys it for a short season, and starving. dies. —

Amputation of the Leg.

Money is the universal necessity, and none but a cynic or a foot will affect to despise it. Mr. Abram Elisworth, of Port Ewen, Ulster County, N. Y., had realized this truth. His disease involved the whole of his thigh-bone, and the suffering man looked forward, not without apparent reason, to death as his only delivery. The tamily physi-cians retured to amputate the limb, asserting that the operation would kill the patient on the spot. Dr. David KENNEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., who was Dr. David KENNEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., who was consulted, held a different opinion and amputated the limit. The Doctor then administered freely his great Blood Specific FAOHITE REMEDY to afford tone and strength to the system and prevent the return of the disease, and Mr. Eilsworth remains to this day in the bloom of health. This continuous disease, was the offending of foul gentleman's disease was the offspring of foul blood, and Kennedy's EAVORITE REMEDY puri-fied the blood and restored the blood and restored to him the power once more to enjoy his life. To keep the blood pure is the principal end of inventions and discoveries in medicine, To this object probably no one has contributed more signally than Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondoul, N. It removes all impurities of the Blood, regulates the disordered Liver and Kidneys, cures Constipation. At the days of our courtship, and that reminds me there might be more pretty wives if my brother farmers would do as I have done." Hoping you may long be spared to do good, I thankfully remain necessary for man's life and health. At night they reverse the process and evolve carbonic acid gas, which is pois-onous to man. This is the reason that plants are always objected to in sleep-ing rooms. Man absorbs oxygen and gives out carbonic acid gas from his lungs at all times. Pettenkofer has shown that two dozen plants give off as much of this gas as is exhaled by one baby sleeper. Sleeping rooms should always be well ventilated.

Light and life are inseparable; that is, such was the generally received opinion many years ag , and in accordance with it houses were built liberally sup-plied with windows, and as liberally now; but go along any of the fashion-able streets of New York and you will find not less than three, and often six, distinct contrivances to keep out this sunshine and gladness. First, the Venetian shutter on the outside; second, the close shutter on the inside; third, the blind which is moved by rollers; then, fourthly, there are the lace curtains; fifth, the damask or other material. In the same train come the exclusion of external air by means of double sash, and a variety of patent contrivances to keep any little stray whist of air from entering at the bot-tom, sides and tops of doors and windows. At this rate we will, in due time, dwindle into Lilliputs, if indeed we do not die off sooner, with all science and art, and leave the world to begin anew from the few sons of the forest who persist in eschewing civili-zation. We lay it down as a health axiom, the more out door air and cheery sunshine a man can have, the longer be will live.—Hall's Journal of Health for May.

How Are You Off?

He was leaning against the railing at the ferry dock looking decidedly out of sorts when along came an oily, smooth-faced man and said: "How are you off!"
"What for !"

"Money."

"Then you are the man I want. Old Captain Smith, of Buffalo, is over in that saloon and has got a crowd around him. He's a great liar, but always sticks to one anecdote. It is about his vessel being wrecked, and of a mer maid taking him in her arms and swimming ashore. Now, then, I want you to go over and hear the lie out and when he is through just get up and claim that you are the identical mermaid that saved his useful old life. I want to set him back, and it will be fifty cents in your pocket." The matter was arranged and the pair went over to the saloon. Captain Smith was feeling good, and in a little time he worked around to remark: "That was a curious thing that happened me in 1848. Did I ever tell you of the wreck of the Mary An?"

He sat down to describe the imagin ary wreck, and when he got along to where the vessel showed an intention to founder the chap who was to play mermaid got the wink and pricked up

"Well, sir," continued Smith, "she finally went down and I found myself struggling in the lake. It was twenty five miles to land, and how do you sup pose I got there?"

An Accomplished Young Girl Elopes With a Railroad Hand.

LOCK HAVEN, Pa , July 10,—During the construction of the Beech Creek, Clearfield and Southwestern Railroad, branch of the Vanderbilt system, two Italians worked in a construction gang at Wayne who were of a better class than the average, and, being good scholars in their native tongue, were desirous of exchanging in their knowledge for a like accomplishment in En-glish. Living at Wayne was the daughter of A. S. Stabley, a well-to-do merchant and postmaster of the village No pains or money had been spared upon the young lady's education, and at the age of 22 she was a bright, pretty girl of many accomplishments. To her the ambitious Italians went and to her a mutual exchange of knowledge was agreed upon. The railroad was finished and the Italians took their leave. Miss Stabley afterwards re-ceived letters from one of the Italians, but this course was not thought irregular by her parents and no heed was taken of the future until last week, when Miss Stabley came to Lock Haven ostensibly to attend the Normal School commencement, but as she did not return that night her father came here and on investigation discovered that she bought a ticket at the Pennsylvania station for Newark, N. J., and had her satchel and other baggage which she had smuggled away from home, checked for the same place. Later a letter was received by the parents telling of their daughter's marriage to the Italian at Newark.

"Haven't got a red." "Say, can you tell a lie?"

"Humph! an infernal lie! I floated ashore on the mainhatch cover, and never had a nicer ride in my life!
