Therefore, the mere fact of embarking on a torpedo-boat is some older persons had more faith in a guaranty of bravery. Figure to yourself the situation of the officer in command of such a torpedo-boat who command of such a torpedo-boat who is ordered to sink a ship of the enemy's squadron. All his surroundings constitute one vast danger. The very sea that hides and protects him during the first part of his expedition may in another moment toss his corpse hither and thither upon its waves. His adversary will seek to riddle the boat with rain of steel, cast-iron and lead The torpedo itself, which carries such terror with it, might be touched with a missile and explode, bursting the torpedo-boat into atoms.

The combat commences. The vessels of the fleet have opened fire. Shell rains in all directions. One of our crusers, cannonaded heavily on the star-board side by a fort mounting twelve Krupp guns, is simultaneously attacked on the larboard side by one of the enemy's iron-clads. She has already suffered severely, and her posiready suffered severely, and her posi-tion becomes critical. A mast signal torpedo-boat starts. The watchful emy has observed the signal. He knows the danger, and at once con-centrates the fire upon the fittle gray speck which is shooting rapidly tow ard him. Three miles separate them, and the torpedo-boat must make that three miles in ten minutes. If it is not sunk before it has transversed that distance the iron-clad is lost. Therefore, the caunoners point their guns with the most scrupulous care. The first shells pass wide of their mark but the aim is rectified, and soon the shells full so near the terpedo-boat that they throw the water over it. Now one has fallen right at its prow. geyser jet of water thirty feet high conceals the torpedo-boat; the enemy believe it has been sunk, and utter a tremendous cheer. But the projectile and past over it. The water falls back in rain, and the brave little vessel reappears all streaming with brine, as though it had emerged from the sea deeps, and rush-ing on at full steam in the face of

There are only nine men on the little vessel, and they are going to attack a sort of leviathan carrying an immense crew. It is not the fight of one against ten, but of one against a hundred. Not a single word is uttered beyond the necessary orders. Those men whom death already touches with his fingers are silent and grave. And do not suppose for a moment that they do not think of danger. On the contrary, they think of nothing else. But it is not of their own danger of failure. It is not a question of their lives, but of the success of the enterprise. It is essential that the torpedo-boat shall reach the enemy's flank and rescue our cruiser. After that, if the torpedo-bout sinks, so much the worse! Every nerve is strained, every eye is directed toward the object in view. Now the boat is only five hundred yards away from the iron-clad. The fire of the mitrailleuses mingles with the showers of shells and sweeps the deck; everything wooden is splintered to atows with grape-shot. An inces sant fire of repeating rifles from the mast tops of the iron-clad plays over the torpedo boat, and the balls entering through the few epenings in the decks, have already disabled three men They lie is a corner, to which they have been able to drag themselves, for there is no time now to attend to them. They may be thought of in two min utes more-after the fate of all shall have been decided.

The torpedo-boat has almost reached its enemy. The success of the expediteries are powerless to harm the torpedo-beat at such short range. The rifle fire terrible as it is, can not sink her. It can only kill some of her crew; but that is of no great consequence. Now is the time when the captain needs all his surety of eye and cool-ness of will; now is the time that his men must execute orders with the rapidity of lightning, for if the torpedo be fired a second too soon it will fail to do its terrible duty, and yet if there be a delay of a moment the torpedoboat must dash itself to pieces against the sides of its mighty adversary.

Now the boat seems almost ready to touch the enemy's vessel. Handgrenades flung upon her deck rebound and burst; one man is killed; the cap tain has received a terrible wound the feet, but, summoning all his strength the supports himself erect against the iron wall by a sublime effort of will. Livid, drenched with blood, but determined in his calm rerolve and bravery.
"Ready! Let her go!"

The awful missile is launched An enormous surge appears in the water, and a frightful crackling noise is heard,

"Hard a starboard ! And the little vessel, suddenly wheel ing around, steams away at full speed, while the enemy's iron-clad sinks to Ten minutes afterward the torpedoboat has returned to its post beside the admiral's vessels. The admiral sends for the captain in order to con gratulate him. He is carried to him upon a bier. Meanwhile the fight goes on. A new expedition may prove necessary. A provisory captain is at once appointed, and four men to complete the decimated crew; and torpedoboat is ready to fulfill another mission; Meantime the Democratic candidate it has another band of heroes to direct-

Amputation of the Leg.

Money is the universal necessity, and none but a synic or a fool will affect to despise it. Mr. Abram Ellsworth, of Port Ewen, Ulster County, N. f., had realized this truth. His disease involved the whole of his thigh-bone, and the suffering man looked forward, not without apparent reason, to death as his only delivery. The family physi-cians refused to amputate the limb, asserting that the operation would kill the patient on the spot. Dr. David KENNEDY, of Rondout, N. Y., who was onsulted, held a different opinion and amputated the limb. The Doctor then administered freely his great Blood Specific FAORITE REMEDY to afford tone and strength to the system and pre-vent the return of the disease, and Mr. Elisworth mains to this day in the bloom of health. This entleman's disease was the offspring of foul lood, and Kennedy's EAVORITE REMEDY purined the blood and restored the blood and restored to him the power once more to enjoy his life. It removes all impurities of the Blood, regulates the disordered Liver and Kidneys, cures Constipation, Tryspepsia and all diseases and weaknesses poculiar to females.

Two Letters That are Worth Reading.

To the President, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SIR: This community read the announcement of the appointment of to the — Judgeship with as tonishment and regret, if not pain-And none were more astonished than those who had signed his petition. And I regret to say that my name is to be found upon it. I have refused several whom I knew to be unfit, but I signed this one thinking it would never be considered, and not for one moment believing the appointment was possible. When first presented to me I put him off, and hoped to escape, but he came again with it, and, with others, I signed it thinking there was no chance for its reaching even a consideration. I think not a man whose name is on it had he remotest idea that his appointment was possible. Not one upon it would have appointed him had he the appointing power. He is not qualified morally or professionally. He is scarcely a lawyer at all, while the place will require a good lawyer. I do not wish to say more than to put you upon inquiry. We are friends, and do business with one another, and is unpleasant to have to say t But it is due your responsibility and from every one who signed that peti-tion. And it was signed by many prominent men who hated to refuse, and hoped and thought it would result in nothing. I do not wish you to take any action upon my representation, but if you wish to know the real opinion of the signers of the petition, cause some of them to be addressed privately, and I think they will confess the objections to the appointment greater than I have intimated. The petition is signed by two of our Supreme Judges, (—) Let them both be privately addressed, if it is not too late, and I think you will learn the feets. and I think you will learn the facts.

There is but one mitigation to the perfidy which your letter discloses, and that is found in the fact that you confess your share in it.
