The small number of Sheriff's sales of real estate that have been made in this county within the past year evidences the fact that most of our people are doing bu siness or a safe basis. Though the prices for farm produce have been low, our farmers have apparently been holding their own, r at all events none of them have contracted debts that they have been unable to pay. Nobody is making much money, as the margins in all kinds, of trade are very narrow, but where they are not more than a half dozen properties sold by the Sheriff in a period of four months, we may safely say that financially the people of this county have little to complain of, considering the long depression in the business of the country, through which we have

Impaneling A Jury.

Under the new law, the mode of impact ling a jury is this: The clerk draws from the box the name of a juror, calls it, and (if the juror responds) the name is written down as the first of a list of twenty thus formed, the twenty proceeding (as called) to the jurybox; when the list is handed to the grand jury of this county, but could the district-attorney, who passes (orders not be tried as the crime with which he is aside) some one or more of the twenty, or challenges for cause, as the defendant may do in his turn. The jurors passed by the commonwealth Danville.

or challenged for cause by either party (if Miss, Lundy returned to her home on the challenge is sustained,) retire from the Tuesday from an extended visit to her box, and their places are filled by the call friend Miss Custer.

Each party now has four peremptory challenges, alternately, beginning with the cherk strikes whom he will; but, in the ex ercise of a sound discretion, will usually not strike from the twelve names first call-

This applies to criminal cases: in civil suits there is no ordering aside, the chalenges begin with the plaintiff.

Peterman vs. Peterman

The first case in which a jury was emanelled under the new law was that of the Commonwealth against Abraham Peterman. Twenty jurors were called, and then each side struck off one until only twelve were lett. The commonwealth was represented by District attorney Billmeyer and E H. Little, and the defendant by Ikeler & Herring, and White. In opening the case Mr. Billmeyer said the prosecution would prove the following facts :

On the 29th day of July a dispute arose between John Peterman and Abraham Peterman while at work in a hay field in Sugarloaf township. Abraham knocked John down and tried to gouge his eyes out with his thumbs. They were separated, and John started to run when Abraham pursued him with a pitch-fork and knocked John down by a blow on the head. The blows were repeated until John was serously injured. Abraham was arrested. and on several occasions said that he was sorry he had not killed John, and when ie got out of state prison he would kill

John Peterman was put on the witness stand and substantiated the above. There were other witnesses, and the whole evidence brought out the fact that there is bad blood existing in the family. The jury returned a verdict of guilty of aggravate-t assault and battery.

We don't profess to have reached our notion of what is attainable. The store is visibly better every year; which implies that there s plenty of room for improvement yet. Let us not be misunderstood. We admit our shortcomings. We aim at perfection nevertheless. What else can it mean when we say Bring back whatever you get here if you'd eather have your money again? t means that there are defects in our merchandising in spite of us. It is almost need-Daniel Yocum and wife and S. H. Ohl less to say so. Everybody and wife, were at Hugh Appleman's Sun-knows it. The delicate part is to hint that you, who are reading this paper this minute, are possibly one of the number who never will find out. And gloves and shoes are perhaps the very best illustrations we have in the store of the folly of buying poor stuff when good is to be got without extravagance. About every sort of glove and about every sort of shoe is made to look like a proper glove and a proper shoe; and you are tempted in almost every store in the world to one of two blunders; extravagance of two blunders : extravagance or buying a sham. You are not unexcelled in healthful properties. It is groves and good shoes. We draw the line pretty high. [We could easily draw it higher] so tempted here. We sell good sold by druggists.
