Curran Confesses.

Patrick Curran has been in jail at Williamsport, for setting fire to the woods in Gamble Township, Lycom-ing county. Curran was stricken with paralysis and since then at times he has been out of his mind. During his has been out of his mind. During his fits of raving he would ery, "Take him away. Why did I kill him ? That is my secret. I will tell you all some day." Sheriff Sprague visited Curran and told him if he had any thing to confess he had better do it, be-cause he only had a short time to live. Curran said that he wanted to make his statement to a barrister. The Sher-iff teld him that there was no need of iff told him that there was no need of a lawyer, and that he would take his statement and it would be all right, Curran commenced to talk to Sheriff Sprague, but before he had spoken five Statement and it would be all right, Curran commenced to talk to Sheriff Sprague, but before he had spoken five minuces his tongue had become swoll, or and it was impossible for him to proceed. The Sheriff left the cell, but before he want away he told Curran that if he felt better in his absence he could makehis statement to one of the at tendants. Late last Thursday night Curcalled one of his nurses to him and asid : "I tell better now and I will now make my confession." The nurse procured upper and ink and after he had propped Curran up in the bed proceeded to write the confession which is substantially as follows :

I was born in a small hamlet near the city of Cork 81 years ago. In my youth I received a fair education, my parents being eugaged in the industry of cotton bleaching. Upon my fath-er's death I spent what money was left me in gambling and drinking, and got into any number of scrapes but was not arrested. I joined the Fenians and was leader of a number of men-desize the investment of the second second second second being the investment of the second second second second desize the investment of the second s during the insurrection which was started by William Smith O'Brien. My boon companion was a young man by the name of Pat Martin and my acquaintanceship with him was my ruination. Martin and I got into a scrape, and that together with our con-nection with the Young Ireland party compelled us to flee the country. We left Cork in disguise and came to America. After knocking about New York for sometime we came to Penn-sylvania and procured employment in the coal mines. We joined the Mollie Maguires and were leaders in all of their conclaves. Tiring of this as there was not money enough in it for us, we left the coal regions and tramp-ed to Howard, in Centre County, where we heard there was a band of counterfeiters. We had learned the art of counterfeiting in the old country and determined to join this band and grow wealthy. At Howard a coldness sprang up between Martin and me on account of a girl whom we were both paying attention to. We had buried our money in an old barn on the outskirts of the town and one night in the early part of 1863 we went there to divide the spoils. Martin was very ugly and we quarreled. He hit me and then we came to blows. He threatened to blow on me and for my own protection I drew my knife from my pocket and killed him. Feeling that my crime would be discovered, I dug a hole in the corner of the barn and buried the body. I covered the spot with a bundle of rye straw and set it on fire. As soon as the barn was a blaze I made my escape and come to Williamsport and have never seen the the place where I committed the crime

Take Care of Your Animals.

Live stock are to be our especial watch and care for the coming 4 months at least. We need to Winter them as economically as possible, yet have them all the time gaining. No animal is profitable at a standstill. Stock Wintered on the warmest side of a cornstack, and coming out "spring-poor, are in no condition to make good re turns during the Summer. At this season, look especially to the comfort-ableness of their quarters, that they may be easily cleaned, warm, and wellaired when needed. Alterations that will facilitate foddering, littering, and clearing out, should be planned and carried out at once. Tight board walls, or any others, are a much cheaper source of warmth than much feeding so far as neat cattle, horses in use, pigs, and poultry are concerned. Horses and sheep with comfortable shelter, out of the rain, and well roofed, will bear any degree of cold they are likely to be subject to, if they have enough to est, and the question of economy de-pends on the price of hay and corn, and of hemlock boards. Food consumed merely to maintain animal heat, deducting the value of the resulting manure, is a dead loss. Beeves, sheep, and pigs gain very rapidly if well fed this month. The bracing air sharpens appetites, and the variety of rich feed is greater now than at any other time of the year. They should be crowded, but not over-fed.—MASON C. ## Reeping Celery in Winter.

There are several methods of preserving celery for winter use, all of which are easy and satisfactory-on paper! In looking back over the last twenty-five years, we can recall more than one failure, even when the best methods were adopted. In spite of all that is said to the contrary, it is not practically such an easy matter to preaserse celery in the best condition, as one would imagine from the books. It is one would imagine from the books. It is an exceedingly easy matter to make a mis-take. You should attend to every detail, and either do the work yourself, or see that it is carefully and properly done. I have great faith in the power of loose, dry earth, to keep out frost. Firm, unbroken earth, if not covered with snow, will freeze to a considerable depth, and so before making the trench for the celery plants, we plow the soil three or four yards wide, leaving a dead-furrow in the centre. We plow at least three times, sticking the plow in the second or third time almost up to the beam. This repeated plowing leaves a mass of fine, loose, mellow soil on each side of the trench. At the bottom of this dead-furrow dig out a trench a foot or fifside of the trench. At the bottom of this dead-furrow dig out a trench a foot or fif-teen inches wide, and set in the celery plants as in the former case. We draw the celery plants on stone-boats to the trenches. And in taking them up, we leave consider-able seil adhering to the roots. Do not bruize the celery, and if any of the leaves are touched with frost, cut off the parts af-fected. It is much easier to keep out de-cay, than to stop it after it has started. With an abundance of loose, fine earth all pround the tranch, pobling is easier than DOWET. to place the plants nicely and propely in the trench with a little carth between them. -Josaro HARRS in Americas Agriculturiat for Nonember.

Confederate Appointees.

The attention of Governor Porter, Assistant Secretary of State, was call-ed to the statement made by Mr. S. V. White, on taking the chair at a Republican mass-meeting in Brooklyn recently that of the diplomatic appointments made by the present administration 80 had borne arms during the late war, but that only one out of that number had fought on the Union side in the contest.

"That is not so," replied Governor Porter. "In making the appointments the fact whether those selected fought in either army is not taken into con-sideration, and consequently no record is kept of it. But from my personal knowledge of the men who have been appointed, I know that those figures are not correct. There has always ex-isted a wrong impression about the number of Confederates appointed through this department. The sur-prisingly few appointements of this kind as compared with the generally sup-possed number has frequently been a subject of comment here in my office.
