

Under the Gallows. FRIGHTFUL CONDEMNATION OF A MOTHER BY HER SON—WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

Not long ago a weeping mother called to her only son who was soon to be executed. "Woman," he exclaimed in a momentary frenzy, "Woman I would never have been here had you done your duty by me when I was young!"

"This was a terrible party! I, the horrible spectators, partly crazed the conscious stricken mother."

"One can scarcely overstate the mother's influence in the moulding of the character of her offspring. But how often, oh, how often, do mothers seem to ignore this responsibility!"

"During a recent trip on the rail the writer made the acquaintance of Dr. A. J. Benedict, of Sacketts Harbor, N. Y., a person who has made a study of human development. Referring to the murderous tendency of the times, we asked that eminent man if the outlook was not discouraging."

"It looks so," he said, "but I fancy we have a cause and the remedy for such evils. In my professional career I have found by hard study that we have emerged from savagery by development of the nervous system and the intellectual life, and we return to savagery as we neglect the fact that without the solid, trustworthy nervous system, we cannot hope to save the race."

"Boys stuff dime novels, and the pistol is to them the only respectable, glorious instrument to secure fame. Women read trashy literature and straightway try to murder their husbands and friends with poison. But men yield to the tempter, and forge and steal and default. Ministers, charmed by beauty, forget the behests of the conscious. On every side we see the weakness of personal integrity."

"Do you regard it as a disease?" "More especially as the result of disease which, however, may be prevented."

"Please define how."

"I cannot now enter into details. Our people see their bodies, their blood, their bones. They never see nerves and consequently many do not suppose they have any. The farmer's wife rejects in a big physical frame, and yet she dies prematurely. The nerve cannot stand the strain of continual work. The minister falls dead in his pulpit, but he never did a day's physical work in his life. The lawyer faints in the presence of the court, and is soon a wreck or a corpse, and yet the work is nerve work. The man of affairs is overcome with apoplexy; the politician and publicist, with Bright's disease. The mind of the untutored man is fired by the exploits of crime and he longs for such fame. These persons overlook or over exact the nervous system and in this fact kills or demoralizes them."

"If all this be so how would you rectify it then?" "Let me tell you. A few years ago I had a lady patient who was an utter wreck. She was the mother of several children. She had let mind and imagination who was cured of God. She was a farmer's wife, and worked early and late. I never saw a finer specimen of physical manhood than she, but she was a nervous wreck! She became bloodless, had the worst of female disorders and was in the last stages of albuminuria or Bright's disease. This latter disease works particular havoc with the nervous system and produces insanity and despair. She was insane and desperate and I fear tainted the blood of her offspring with these terrible tendencies. I treated her for several years. One by one the standard remedies of the schools failed, but I finally cured her with Warner's safe cure, and she is today strong and well. Yet thousands of women like her, every year bring ill-formed and criminally-inclined children into the world. Is it any wonder that nervous diseases prevail and that the whole moral arena is demoralized? If that remedy were generally used, we would have stronger mothers, stronger children, stronger men and women, and with perfect physical and mental health, crime would decrease and society be more secure."

"Such candid opinions are surely worth considering."

The Sensation of Being Hanged. A crazy Briton belonging to the "Suicide Club" has published an account of the sensations of hanging. He has actually tried it before the members of the club. It will be a pity if his narrative has the effect of diminishing the wholesome terror which the rope has hitherto inspired, and I fear it may lead some silly people to try hanging as a substitute for opium. At first there was a great jerk and he felt a violent pain in his neck; but after he lost consciousness the proceedings became quite pleasant.

"He seemed to be transported into a new world, more beautiful than anything imagined by the poets. He was swimming, he thought, in a sea of oil. The feeling was exquisitely delicious. As he swam easily and without effort through the liquid mass he noticed far off an island of the most glorious emerald green in color."

"The sea kept every instant changing its hue. At one moment it was a mass of gold, as though the sun was shining brilliantly on it. The next instant it was a vivid blood red, but there was nothing terrible or disgusting in this new color. In fact it kept changing to all the hues of the rainbow, yellow and red being the predominant tints. He got nearer and nearer to the island. As he approached it there sprang out suddenly from the ground a great number of people, whose faces seemed known to him. At last he reached the land."

"Then a magnificent chorus of voices, human and those of birds, burst forth. He closed his eyes in ecstasy. He floated calmly on to the shore and lay as a child in its cradle, slightly weakened from the enervating effects of the oily matter in which he had been swimming. At last he opened his eyes. The magic charm was at once dispelled. The divine harmony ceased. The faces were still peering at him with an expression of eager curiosity, but he perceived that they belonged to the members of the club. The pain in his neck was great, it appeared, but he was now in the entire possession of his senses. His friends cut him down and he was able to tell them at once his experience. Although he drew a charming picture of the bliss which he had enjoyed, his mother would try his experiment. His neck was quite pliant. To the best of my knowledge this lunatic is still at large."
