There is no bet-ter index of the material advancement retarded by these several drawbacks, of a country than a concurrent increase of its literary means and appliances. That the Pennsylvanians were from the first a news reading people is evidenced by the fact that the infant colony was scarce three years old be-fore it had to have its newspaper. There was further evidence of an early desire for the productions of the press in the printing that was done by devout Moravian brothers at Ephrata, Lancaster county, whose establishment was one of the most remarkable incidents connected with the history of printing in this country. WASHINGTON LETTER.

(Prom our Regular Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 2, 1885.

On next Monday, at exactly 12 clock M., the Forty-Ninth Congress will be called to order. The fact has been almost lost sight of here during the past few days, owing to the death of Vice-President Hendricks. The mestion of the Presidential succession as interested everybody to the neglect of all speculation concerning the organization of the House of Representatives, the revision of the rules, the fate of Mr. Randall, the President's nessage, and other matters that have been the staples of discussion for several weeks. The work of draping all the Gov-ernment buildings in black has been going on since the death of Mr. Henfricks was announced. The White House is draped as it was at the death of ex-President Garfield. Its great white pillars are covered with solid black cloth, with large rosettes in front, and black streamers festooned from one pillar to another. The pilitol is draped up to the balcony above the dome, with very striking effect. The Senators in the city are continnally questioned to learn what they think should be done to fill the place of President of the Senate. The impression strengthens that the Repub ican majority will offer it to Senator ogan. Quite a number of politicans in Washington are busily engaged in urging his election. And yet he is the only man in the Senate of whom it can be said that he was a candidate before the people for the Vice-Presidency and was rejected.

The friends of the Illinois Senator point to the fact that he was a long ime in securing his re-election to the Senate, and that he lost the chairmanship of one committee and positions on two others by the new Administration, which cut off some of the perquisites that belong to the order Senators. Make him President pro tem of the Senate," they say, "and thus give him a nice private room and a what he lost last March."

The "Loganites" assert that Senator Edmunds does not want the honor again, and they talk of his dictatorial manner in the Forty-Eighth Congress, when he was accused of lecturing his fellow Senators as if they were school boys. Every little episode in which sharp words were attered in the Senate last winter is used against Mr. Ed-munds by the friends of Logan.

Democratic Senators freely express their preference for Serator Elmunds They think it would be very unwise to put so strong a partisan as Gen. Logan so near the President. It might arouse too great expectations among Gen. Logan's followers, who are of the most radical class.

Great pressure was brought to bear upon the President for the purpose of dissuading him from attending the funeral of Mr. Hendricks at Indianapolis. A number of Senators, Mem-

There is much talk of legislation to provide for the Presidential succession. The Democrats feel much annoyed at the idea of the Republicans having it in their power to elect a possible suc-cessor to President Cleveland. If the latter should die, the law now goverring the succession would at once be

On Jan. 23, 1878, King Alfonso was married to his cousin, Maria de las Mercedes, Infanta of Spain, the youngest daughter of the Duke of Montpensier. It was a love match, and was bitterly opposed by Isabella, who quitted Spain rather than counten who quitted Spain rather than counten auce the marriage by her presence. The young Queen died on June 26, after a married life of only five months, having only just entered on her 19th year. Three months later, Oct. 25, King Alfonso was fired at byldJuan Moucasi, a workman, but escaped un-hurt. Moncasi was executed in the following January.
On Nov. 29, 1876, the King married Maria Christina, Archduchess of Austria, daughter of the late Arch dake Charles Frederick, and mece of the Emperor of Austria. Just one mouth after their marriage, Francesco Otero fired at the King and Queen as they were driving through the palace gates. Neither was injured. Otero was executed in April, 1880.

On Sept. 11, 1880, the Queen gave birth to a daughter, the Princess M sria de las Mercedes, Princess of Asturias, who, by her father's death, succeeds to the throne of Spain. A second daughter, the Infanta Maria Teresa Isabel, was born Nov. 12, 1882. King is said to have been too fond of ladies of the court, and at one time a separation between himself and Queen Christina was spoken of. Nothing came of the talk. however. In 1873 King Alfonso visited Berlin and was received by the Emperor with marked attention. On his return, through Paris, he was hissed by a mob, and for a time war seemed imminent between France and Spain. The French Min istry disavowed the insult, however, and peace was maintained.

The King first showed signs of catarrhal fever in the Spring of last year. The water cure at Beteln, in the Baseque provinces, exerted a good ef feet upon him. Last Summer he passed with his family at La Granja near Segovia, but returned to Madric about three months ago, when the complications about the Carolines affair became threatening. In September he suffered from catarrhal fever and dysentery, but recovered sufficiently to re ceive Canovas del Castillo and his new ministry in the palace. He declined to take his physician's advice to return to the country, and since the first of last month has been very ill in Madrid. Be a Man.

You have heard it said that "boys will be boys." They are much more likely to be men, and they should be good men, as far as circumstances will allow. There are all sorts of men in this world, my boy. You have been told by a witty writer that the selflittle patronage as a recompense for made man is apt to be proud of his maker. He has a right to be, if he is well made. The self-made man is one, or is supposed to be one, who has struggled to the front under adverse circumstances. But there is a deal of humbug about this. Manhood is not dependent riches. There are thousands of instan-ces where very pinched and poor boys have become very rich men. Some of them have become miserly and very mean men. They are entitled to a cer tain amount of respect for their selfdenials in youth; their miserly habits are full of character; but the man who accumulates more than he ever will need, and who deprives himself of the pleasure of doing good while he lives with money that he only leaves to worthless heirs to dissipate and quarrel over, is not a man to be envied. A. T. Stewart toiled and slaved all his life to be a merchant prince. was a mean man, so far as is known, merciless to young men struggling up in the werld, and never did good with a dollar of his, if he could help it. There are bonanza kings, who are self-made. You have heard of them on the Pacific slope. They have un-told wealth. They have built palaces and with their families have made themselves ridiculous abroad. They themselves ridiculous abroad. They have even paid their way into the senate of the United States—and it always takes a deal of money to buy into that place—and paid their way into society' which fact should be a shame to society, but is not.
