

HANCOCK AND SEYMOUR.

A STRIKING SIMILARITY BETWEEN THEM.

Two Men Made Great by one Event and Both Succumb to a Common Fate.

General Hancock, the pride of the army; of splendid physique, martial bearing; the obedient soldier, whom war made famous.

Gov. Seymour, the old time gentleman; the pacific statesman, the idol of a great party.

Both men standard-bearers of the Democracy, the one as a soldier, the other as a statesman in a presidential contest—both dead; both dead almost at the same hour!

Hancock apparently well one day, the next, says the World, "is sinking step by step, like a person descending a pair of stairs."

Governor Seymour, says the associated press, has been gradually failing for eight years. Both men, though of entirely different temperaments, yield to a common fate.

Hancock's case was discovered by an eminent physician at the very last moment to be beyond help, because, back of the malignant tumor in his neck, was a disorder which made living impossible.

Governor Seymour's life for eight years has been feeble, as the associated press says, because of a serious attack of renal inflammation some time ago, and his death therefrom has only been a question of time!

Both Hancock and Seymour might have lived many years had they known and recognized the fact that they were each of them victims of a dangerous kidney disorder, and treated themselves successfully as they might have done by that great scientific specific, Warner's safe cure.

Well might a well known physician exclaim: "I sometimes think people would never die if their kidneys were always sound."

An eminent physician says: "Hancock's kidneys stopped creating urea. No wonder he died, for 400 grains of this horrible blood poison should be passed out by the kidneys every day; if they fail, disease runs riot through the whole system and death is inevitable."

These two cases, occurring so strikingly near each other, originating in a common cause, and eventuating in a common fate, ought to arouse the people to the necessity of allowing no season to pass without taking a few bottles of the great scientific alluded to, which is the only remedy known that has direct power and control over these great organs, not only preventing and curing the diseases to which they are subject, but also preventing and curing the many, many diseases which would never exist if these organs "were always sound."

Chestnuts for Rheumatism. Chestnuts—not of the story-telling kind, nor yet of the kind roasted and sold on street corners—but horse chestnuts, such as Bishop McTierney is carrying in his trousers pockets for relief from Rheumatism.

Our Washington dispatches report that the good Bishop of Albany has been induced to carry horse chestnuts by a Californian, who told him that the superstition is a native of the Pacific coast.

The California is mistaken. It was introduced upon the Pacific coast in 1851 by a New Englander, who was prominent officer in the San Francisco custom house. He both practiced and preached it, and every year he sent to the East, by way of Cape Horn, for a package of horse chestnuts to distribute among his converts.

It has prevailed in many parts of New England for a hundred years certainly, probably longer, and there is no report between Portland and Boston where dozens of old people cannot be found with horse chestnuts in their pockets, to which they attribute their freedom from rheumatism originally came, and which would be our cure. When the superstition originally came, which would be our cure, that New England is the place from which it has been generally diffused throughout the United States.

An instance, however, has recently been brought to our notice in which it was both believed and practiced by an intelligent immigrant under circumstances which imply that he learned it first in Ireland. According to our observation of the New England usage the anti-rheumatic virtue is supposed to depart from horse chestnuts after a year, when the old-dried nuts should be replaced with fresh ones.

Digestion in Fowls. Stephen Beale, in the Country Gentleman, says: "The process by which the food of a fowl is digested is different from that of any animal, in that it passes into the crop, there to be partially digested before going into the stomach. The crop is formed by an enlargement of the gullet, or, as it is technically termed, the oesophagus. The gullet is of the ordinary size both above and below the crop, and the crop itself is easily distinguished, especially when it is full. In the crop the food is mixed with the grit which is so necessary to the proper digestion of the food, and not only is it wise to provide this grit to relieve the stomach from work that it is not adapted to perform, but if the materials are not given for the grinding up, as it were, of the food, that food cannot pass as it should into the stomach, for the orifice into the lower oesophagus will not allow it to pass. It is from this cause that many diseases of the crop arise. The moral of all this is that every poultry keeper should be careful to give his fowls an abundance of this grinding material, for by so doing he will obviate much of the trouble that will otherwise certainly arise. This grit may consist of coarse sand, fine gravel, road scrapings, ashes, or that which is the best of all, old mortar. They should be no stint of these and they may be placed where the fowls can always have access to them.

J. H. Mercer wishes to state that he has at its merit an article he can sell on its merits. It is with pleasure he guarantees to the public Acker's Elixir, which is a sure and never failing cure for Asthma, Coughs, Whooping Cough, Croup, and all Lung Troubles. It is the standard remedy for consumption. I have never found it equal.

Only Impure Bitters Known.

No other medicine known so effectually purges the blood as Walker's Blood Purifier. Millions bear testimony to its wonderful effects.

It is a purely Vegetable Preparation, made from the native herb roots of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol.

It is the great Blood Purifier and Life-giving Principle; a Gentle Purgative and Tonic; a perfect substitute for the salts of Epsom. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded, possessing the power of Blood Purifier in healing the sick of every disease man is liable to.

The Alternative, Aperient, Diaphoretic, Cathartic, Nutritive, Tonic, and Life-giving Principle. It is a purely Vegetable Preparation, made from the native herb roots of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol.

No person can take the Bitters according to directions and not be cured, provided the point of cure is reached. It is a purely Vegetable Preparation, made from the native herb roots of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol.

ODD ITEMS.

Borrowed trouble is the undertaker's best friend. It needs a high coal bin to stand a low thermometer.

As the mercury goes up the plumber's heat goes down. Real estate transfers—Boys throwing mud at each other.

Something highly prized yet always given away—A bride. A prize-fighter is always willing to take his pay by the pound.

American heiresses are getting scarce in the European capitals. No man can be a thoroughly pure Christian without the aid of soap.

Mr. Neat is a State Senator in Kentucky. Of course he is not gaudy. It is believed that the devil takes his hat whenever he meets a hypocrite.

The Vienna girls all hope that the new American Minister will be Mr. Huggin. In close application to business nothing on this footstool exceeds a mustard plaster.

There are more young men in the present Iowa Legislature than in any previous session. There is no place like home when you have bid your mother-in-law goodbye as she is going away for good.

"No, I shall leave my wife nothing," said old Gribbs. "She'll always had her will, and now I'll have mine." The man who never gets mad is supposed to be a half brother of the woman who never looks behind her.

Progress is always progress, but it is dreadful hard to realize by the man who tries to bury up a balky mule. Mr. Blaud, of Silver hill fame, does not speak in silver tones. His voice is hoarse and deep, like that of a frog with a heavy cold.

If a man could only see his own faults as easily as he can discover those of his neighbor he would be a self-seeker would dwindle. A subscriber asks for a remedy for cold feet. Try banking them up with saw-dust; if they still remain cold, set the saw-dust on fire.

The shortest route to a man's heart is through his stomach. In that case a good cook book is the most reliable marriage guide. Minister Cox has been made a member of a scientific Hellenic society in Constantinople, and his name appears on the Greek rolls as "Kox."

Destitute Miners. Since the flooding of the mines at Ebervale and the consequent suspension of work many of the miners and their families have been reduced to great destitution. Some of them are now begging for food and the common necessities of life.

The disasters to the miners of the Lehigh region have made it almost impossible for the Ebervale miners to obtain employment elsewhere and their poverty has become such that a public meeting was held and an appeal for aid has been sent out. A relief committee has also been appointed to solicit contributions of money, food and clothing for the sufferers.

James McGinty, who is treasurer, said that persons in New York, Wilkes-barre and other places were soliciting aid for the Ebervale sufferers, but that they were impostors, as no one but the members of the Relief Committee had been authorized to solicit aid.

Ebervale has been one of the most thriving mining towns in the region until the mines were flooded the first of last month. Since that time the people have been leaving as fast as they could be secured elsewhere, and the population of 1500 has been decreased by at least half. The doors and windows of many of the houses have been boarded up, the company store has been closed and the once lively town presents a deserted appearance.

The general detailed map of the United States, proposed and already begun by the Geological Survey, will be upon the scale of about four miles to the inch. With contour lines for every 25 to 200 feet, according to the nature of the topography. It is proposed to issue the map in atlas sheets each composed of one degree of latitude, bounded by parallels and meridians.

THE NARROW ESCAPE.

When after fatigue and health after disease are two of the sweetest experiences known to man, it is a rare privilege to find a man who has lived a life of long time through the presence of the most deadly of diseases, and yet to find him still in the enjoyment of good health, and able to do his duty as well as ever.
